

Bram Marchetti

Chronicle, volume 2

Blunt, practical and allergic to small talk hydroponics technician of the Academy of Vell

Volume 4 of 10 in the Bram Marchetti collection. The other volumes cover the rest of this character's record.

About this volume

Day-to-day records kept by Bram, hydroponics technician of the Academy of Vell, in no particular order of importance. Among the things Bram keeps at the Hall of Echoes is a iron kettle; Bram calls it 'Quiet Hours' and will not explain why. It appears in these pages more often than it deserves.

Full name	Bram Marchetti
Volume	Chronicle 2
Name of the iron kettle	Quiet Hours

Entries

Entry 1, summer of year 31

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the census. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the greenhouse cloisters. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Bram repaired the copper pipe at the greenhouse cloisters for Osric, who paid in 32 guilders and a long story about the missing shipment. Bram spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 62 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. The weather turned. Bram moved the glass float indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Bram polished 'Quiet Hours', the iron kettle, and said nothing about it.

Entry 2, autumn of year 31

Bram found a tin whistle half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Bram won 65 guilders on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on supper. At the Hall of Echoes, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. Bram repaired the spool of wire at the Hall of Echoes for Astrid, who paid in 67 guilders and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the Hall of Echoes. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 3, autumn of year 31

Bram closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the Hall of Echoes, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. At the Hall of Echoes, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the Hall of Echoes. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 4, summer of year 31

Rumours about the comet reached the north observatory. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Bram moved the bolt of linen indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta. Bram won 71 guilders on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on supper. A dispute over the census flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 5, autumn of year 31

Bram found a wax seal half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Bram won 68 guilders on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on supper. Bram closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 6, autumn of year 31

The weather turned. Bram moved the wax seal indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the old tunnels. Bram won 45 guilders on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Bram found a iron kettle half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 7, summer of year 31

Bram won 80 guilders on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on supper. Bram was hired to carry a glass float from the bell tower to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Bram won 53 guilders on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on supper. Rumours about the harvest count reached the bell tower. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 8, spring of year 31

Bram closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the bell tower. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 9, summer of year 31

Zeph came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. Bram closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. Bram repaired the spool of wire at the bell tower for Xanthe, who paid in 69 guilders and a long story about the quarantine. Leocadia came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 10, spring of year 31

The weather turned. Bram moved the coil of rope indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the old tunnels. Bram was hired to carry a brass lantern from the Hall of Echoes to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the quarantine reached the Hall of Echoes. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Bram was hired to carry a brass lantern from the Hall of Echoes to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 11, summer of year 31

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Bram won 3 guilders on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 12, spring of year 31

Bram closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Bram was hired to carry a sextant from the greenhouse cloisters to the bell tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Bram repaired the cracked compass at the greenhouse cloisters for Qadira, who paid in 33 guilders and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 13, spring of year 31

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. At the greenhouse cloisters, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Bram spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 24 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short.

Entry 14, winter of year 31

Bram closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. Bram was hired to carry a tin whistle from the bell tower to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Bram closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. Bram repaired the sack of salt at the bell tower for Calloway, who paid in 43 guilders and a long story about the harvest count. Bram found a grain scale half-buried near the bell tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 15, winter of year 31

At the greenhouse cloisters, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. Kenji came by asking about the new curfew. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Bram repaired the iron kettle at the greenhouse cloisters for Corvina, who paid in 48 guilders and a long story about the missing shipment.

Entry 16, spring of year 31

A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Bram repaired the cracked compass at the north observatory for Eamon, who paid in 5 guilders and a long story about the quarantine. Bram was hired to carry a ledger from the north observatory to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 17, winter of year 32

Bram won 9 guilders on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on supper. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Bram found a bundle of letters half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 18, autumn of year 32

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the quarantine. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Bram won 44 guilders on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on supper. Bram closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 19, summer of year 32

Bram closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Bram won 38 guilders on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 20, spring of year 32

Bram spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 13 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. At the greenhouse cloisters, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Bram won 43 guilders on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on supper. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the comet. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.