

Bram Marchetti

Chronicle, volume 4

Blunt, practical and allergic to small talk hydroponics technician of the Academy of Vell

Volume 6 of 10 in the Bram Marchetti collection. The other volumes cover the rest of this character's record.

About this volume

Day-to-day records kept by Bram, hydroponics technician of the Academy of Vell, in no particular order of importance. Among the things Bram keeps at the Hall of Echoes is a glass float; Bram calls it 'The Apology' and will not explain why. It appears in these pages more often than it deserves.

Full name	Bram Marchetti
Volume	Chronicle 4
Name of the glass float	The Apology

Entries

Entry 1, winter of year 28

A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Bram closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. Bram closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. Bram polished 'The Apology', the glass float, and said nothing about it.

Entry 2, summer of year 28

A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. The weather turned. Bram moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta. At the candle library, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 3, summer of year 28

Bram closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the tax on doors. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Bram closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. The weather turned. Bram moved the clockwork bird indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the singing at the docks. Tallulah came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 4, autumn of year 28

Rumours about the quarantine reached the north observatory. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Bram found a clockwork bird half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 5, autumn of year 28

Bram repaired the brass lantern at the candle library for Xiomara, who paid in 31 guilders and a long story about the old tunnels. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the candle library. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the candle library. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 6, summer of year 28

Ignatius came by asking about the missing shipment. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Bram moved the grain scale indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 7, autumn of year 28

Bram won 45 guilders on a bet about the census and spent all of it on supper. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 8, spring of year 28

Bram closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Bram won 3 guilders on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on supper. Rowan came by asking about the quarantine. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 9, spring of year 28

Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the greenhouse cloisters. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the missing shipment. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Bram closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 10, spring of year 28

The weather turned. Bram moved the sack of salt indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the right way to mend a net. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 11, winter of year 28

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Bram repaired the grain scale at the bell tower for Amadou, who paid in 6 guilders and a long story about who really won the regatta. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 12, spring of year 28

Bram won 45 guilders on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on supper. The weather turned. Bram moved the signal flag indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the old tunnels. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 13, winter of year 29

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Bram won 13 guilders on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on supper. Bram won 31 guilders on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 14, spring of year 29

At the Hall of Echoes, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Bram found a bundle of letters half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Bram closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 15, spring of year 29

Bram closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Bram found a oilskin map half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Bram found a cracked compass half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 16, spring of year 29

Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the candle library; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 17, autumn of year 29

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the missing shipment. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 18, summer of year 29

Juniper came by asking about the tariff on salt. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the census flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the bell tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zeph came by asking about the tariff on salt. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 19, summer of year 29

Bram found a hand bell half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Bram moved the sextant indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the old tunnels. The weather turned. Bram moved the clockwork bird indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 20, spring of year 29

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Bram repaired the bolt of linen at the greenhouse cloisters for Amadou, who paid in 6 guilders and a long story about the new curfew. The weather turned. Bram moved the signal flag indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 21, autumn of year 30

Kestrel came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. Bram spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 79 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Bram closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 22, spring of year 30

Bram spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 58 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Bram closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 23, winter of year 30

Bram won 28 guilders on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on supper. Bram repaired the oilskin map at the greenhouse cloisters for Astrid, who paid in 49 guilders and a long story about who really won the regatta. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Bram found a bundle of letters half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 24, spring of year 30

Bram closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. The weather turned. Bram moved the wax seal indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Teodora came by asking about the tax on doors. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 25, summer of year 30

Kenji came by asking about who really won the regatta. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. Bram spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 22 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. At the candle library, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. Rurik came by asking about the harvest count. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 26, winter of year 30

Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. Olwen came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. Bram was hired to carry a oilskin map from the candle library to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Winifred came by asking about the tariff on salt. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the candle library, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 27, autumn of year 30

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Bram won 73 guilders on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on supper. Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the bell tower. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 28, spring of year 30

Rumours about the missing shipment reached the greenhouse cloisters. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Bram won 20 guilders on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on supper. The weather turned. Bram moved the coil of rope indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 29, summer of year 30

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Bram won 13 guilders on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on supper. The weather turned. Bram moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the new curfew. Bram spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 67 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Bram found a clockwork bird half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 30, spring of year 30

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Bram was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the Hall of Echoes to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Bram moved the hand bell indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about whether the bridge will hold.

Entry 31, summer of year 30

Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Bram has a suspect and is probably right. Rumours about the comet reached the north observatory. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Bram found a oilskin map half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the comet flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the north observatory, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 32, summer of year 30

Bram repaired the bolt of linen at the candle library for Marisol, who paid in 67 guilders and a long story about who really won the regatta. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Bram for the password to the workshop. Bram laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 33, winter of year 31

Bram closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. Olwen came by asking about the comet. Bram said nothing useful and made tea instead. Bram repaired the bolt of linen at the greenhouse cloisters for Qadira, who paid in 57 guilders and a long story about the missing shipment. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Bram closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 34, summer of year 31

Bram was hired to carry a cracked compass from the Hall of Echoes to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the harvest count reached the Hall of Echoes. Bram pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Bram found a copper pipe half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Bram moved the signal flag indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the missing shipment. A dispute over the census flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 35, spring of year 31

A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the census flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 36, spring of year 31

Bram repaired the oilskin map at the north observatory for Kenji, who paid in 72 guilders and a long story about who really won the regatta. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the north observatory, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the harvest count. Bram read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Bram spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 74 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short.

Entry 37, autumn of year 31

A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the bell tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the bell tower, Bram taught a newcomer how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Bram and a neighbour outside the bell tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Bram moved the spool of wire indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the new curfew.