

Anouk Duskmere

Character Dossier

Boisterous, generous, easily bored hydroponics technician of Neon Meridian, a rain-soaked megacity

Overview

Anouk Duskmere is a hydroponics technician living in Neon Meridian, a rain-soaked megacity. Anouk is 46 years old, originally from Hessen Cross, and is known around the Undermarket as boisterous, generous, easily bored. In conversation Anouk uses trade jargon and then patiently explains it.

Background

Anouk arrived in Neon Meridian, a rain-soaked megacity 8 years ago after leaving Hessen Cross under circumstances Anouk describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Halcyon Syndicate; the second was the one that stuck. Today Anouk works as a hydroponics technician near Sector 9 transit hub and is paid, when paid at all, in meridian scrip.

Anouk learned the trade from Tomasz Blackwater, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Anouk's life is with Nadira Corvane, over a matter neither will explain. The person Anouk trusts most is Pilar Lindqvist.

Current goal: to earn the title of master before turning fifty. Greatest fear: running out of salt.

Personality and speech

Temperament: boisterous, generous, easily bored.

Speech pattern: Anouk uses trade jargon and then patiently explains it.

Tells: when lying, Anouk mentions Velvet the lizard for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Anouk Duskmere
Role	hydroponics technician
Home	Neon Meridian, a rain-soaked megacity
Hometown	Hessen Cross
Age	46
Favourite dish	the tavern's sour cherry soup
Pet	Velvet, a lizard
Lucky number	183

Workshop password	cedar-lantern
Mentor	Tomasz Blackwater
Rival	Nadira Corvane
Closest friend	Pilar Lindqvist

Secret

Anouk is terrified of deep water and hides it with jokes.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Anouk: I am the hydroponics technician. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Anouk: The tavern's sour cherry soup. Do not tell Nadira I said so.

Visitor: Is Velvet yours?

Anouk: Velvet belongs to nobody. Velvet tolerates me. Lucky number is 183, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, autumn of year 29

Anouk won 43 meridian scrip on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper. Anouk closed early, walked to Sector 9 transit hub, and watched the lights come on. Anouk won 34 meridian scrip on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. Tomasz came by asking about the missing shipment. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 2, spring of year 29

Eamon came by asking about the tax on doors. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Anouk closed early, walked to Sector 9 transit hub, and watched the lights come on. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the quarantine. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Anouk closed early, walked to Sector 9 transit hub, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 3, winter of year 29

Anouk spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 36 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. Anouk was hired to carry a grain scale from the flooded lower rings to the Undermarket without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the flooded lower rings, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 4, winter of year 29

Ravi came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the Glass District; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Anouk was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the Glass District to the flooded lower rings without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Ulla came by asking about the new curfew. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 5, summer of year 30

Anouk was hired to carry a iron kettle from the Undermarket to Sector 9 transit hub without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 6, summer of year 30

Anouk repaired the sextant at the Glass District for Pilar, who paid in 41 meridian scrip and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the Glass District. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Anouk won 2 meridian scrip on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 7, summer of year 30

A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Sector 9 transit hub; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Anouk was hired to carry a ledger from Sector 9 transit hub to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Anouk spent the day counting stock at Sector 9 transit hub: 67 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Anouk found a iron kettle half-buried near Sector 9 transit hub and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 8, winter of year 30

At the Undermarket, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. At the Undermarket, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. Anouk closed early, walked to the Glass District, and watched the lights come on. At the Undermarket, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. Anouk repaired the wax seal at the Undermarket for Vesna, who paid in 16 meridian scrip and a long story about the singing at the docks.

Entry 9, autumn of year 30

Anouk repaired the brass lantern at the Glass District for Yevgenia, who paid in 81 meridian scrip and a long story about the new curfew. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the Glass District. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Anouk moved the bundle of letters indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the census.

Entry 10, winter of year 30

Anouk spent the day counting stock at the Undermarket: 47 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Rumours about the comet reached the Undermarket. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Anouk was hired to carry a hand bell from the Undermarket to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 11, winter of year 30

Anouk was hired to carry a spool of wire from the Undermarket to Kowloon Arcade without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk was hired to carry a glass float from the Undermarket to Kowloon Arcade without opening it, and mostly succeeded. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 12, spring of year 30

Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk found a coil of rope half-buried near the flooded lower rings and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Anouk was hired to carry a signal flag from the flooded lower rings to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 13, summer of year 31

Anouk won 58 meridian scrip on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the Undermarket; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Anouk repaired the glass float at the Undermarket for Tallulah, who paid in 37 meridian scrip and a long story about the tax on doors. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 14, autumn of year 31

Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the Glass District. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the Glass District, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the comet. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 15, summer of year 31

Zeph came by asking about the comet. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Anouk won 73 meridian scrip on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on supper. Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk closed early, walked to the Undermarket, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 16, spring of year 31

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Anouk was hired to carry a coil of rope from the flooded lower rings to the Undermarket without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 68 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short. Anouk closed early, walked to the Undermarket, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 17, summer of year 31

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the census. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 18, winter of year 31

Anouk repaired the pair of spectacles at the flooded lower rings for Xavier, who paid in 59 meridian scrip and a long story about the singing at the docks. The weather turned. Anouk moved the signal flag indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the new curfew. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 28 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short.

Entry 19, spring of year 31

At Kowloon Arcade, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Anouk won 84 meridian scrip on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper. Anouk was hired to carry a clockwork bird from Kowloon Arcade to Sector 9 transit hub without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Anouk won 9 meridian scrip on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 20, summer of year 31

Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk found a hand bell half-buried near the Undermarket and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Anouk moved the coil of rope indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the old tunnels.

Entry 21, autumn of year 32

At the Glass District, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Nikolai came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Anouk closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 22, winter of year 32

At Kowloon Arcade, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. Ravi came by asking about the new curfew. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the missing shipment reached Kowloon Arcade. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At Kowloon Arcade, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Anouk won 29 meridian scrip on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 23, summer of year 32

A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Anouk spent the day counting stock at Kowloon Arcade: 80 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk was hired to carry a sextant from Kowloon Arcade to the Undermarket without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 24, autumn of year 32

Rumours about the quarantine reached the Glass District. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk found a ledger half-buried near the Glass District and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 25, spring of year 32

Anouk repaired the hand bell at Sector 9 transit hub for Zeph, who paid in 21 meridian scrip and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Anouk closed early, walked to the Undermarket, and watched the lights come on. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Sector 9 transit hub; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the tax on doors. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 26, spring of year 32

Anouk was hired to carry a coil of rope from the Glass District to the flooded lower rings without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the Glass District: 53 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. The weather turned. Anouk moved the signal flag indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the comet. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 27, spring of year 32

Anouk won 45 meridian scrip on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper. Anouk found a spool of wire half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Magnus came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 28, spring of year 32

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. The weather turned. Anouk moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 29, winter of year 33

Anouk found a hand bell half-buried near Sector 9 transit hub and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Anouk repaired the brass lantern at Sector 9 transit hub for Viggo, who paid in 60 meridian scrip and a long story about the harvest count. Anouk repaired the wax seal at Sector 9 transit hub for Zubair, who paid in 53 meridian scrip and a long story about the quarantine. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk found a tin whistle half-buried near Sector 9 transit hub and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 30, winter of year 33

At the Glass District, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. Anouk repaired the sextant at the Glass District for Halcyon, who paid in 46 meridian scrip and a long story about the tax on doors. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the Glass District; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Anouk moved the pair of spectacles indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the singing at the docks.

Entry 31, spring of year 33

A dispute over the census flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Sector 9 transit hub; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Anouk was hired to carry a bolt of linen from Sector 9 transit hub to Kowloon Arcade without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Anouk found a grain scale half-buried near Sector 9 transit hub and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Anouk moved the sack of salt indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the new curfew.

Entry 32, summer of year 33

Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk won 74 meridian scrip on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on supper. Anouk repaired the hand bell at the flooded lower rings for Astrid, who paid in 57 meridian scrip and a long story about the census. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the quarantine. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the flooded lower rings. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 33, spring of year 33

Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the Glass District. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Soren came by asking about the comet. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk won 18 meridian scrip on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on supper. The weather turned. Anouk moved the pair of spectacles indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the old tunnels.

Entry 34, spring of year 33

Delphine came by asking about the quarantine. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Baptiste came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 35, summer of year 33

The weather turned. Anouk moved the bundle of letters indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the tax on doors. Anouk found a grain scale half-buried near the flooded lower rings and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the flooded lower rings. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 36, autumn of year 33

Anouk spent the day counting stock at Sector 9 transit hub: 65 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Anouk repaired the sextant at Sector 9 transit hub for Orsolya, who paid in 29 meridian scrip and a long story about the tariff on salt. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 37, summer of year 34

Anouk closed early, walked to Sector 9 transit hub, and watched the lights come on. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Anouk closed early, walked to Sector 9 transit hub, and watched the lights come on. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the Glass District: 84 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Anouk found a brass lantern half-buried near the Glass District and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 38, autumn of year 34

Anouk repaired the pair of spectacles at the flooded lower rings for Seraphine, who paid in 32 meridian scrip and a long story about the tariff on salt. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 12 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Anouk repaired the bolt of linen at the flooded lower rings for Astrid, who paid in 21 meridian scrip and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Anouk found a sack of salt half-buried near the flooded lower rings and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 39, winter of year 34

Nkechi came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk repaired the cracked compass at Sector 9 transit hub for Orsolya, who paid in 15 meridian scrip and a long story about the singing at the docks. Anouk closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 40, winter of year 34

At the flooded lower rings, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. Anouk found a sack of salt half-buried near the flooded lower rings and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the flooded lower rings, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 41, spring of year 35

Anouk spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 6 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. The weather turned. Anouk moved the iron kettle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the old tunnels. Anouk was hired to carry a glass float from the flooded lower rings to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Anouk closed early, walked to the Glass District, and watched the lights come on. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the comet. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 42, winter of year 35

Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. The weather turned. Anouk moved the ledger indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the right way to mend a net. At Kowloon Arcade, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the census. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 43, spring of year 35

At Sector 9 transit hub, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached Sector 9 transit hub. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Anouk won 77 meridian scrip on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on supper. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 44, winter of year 35

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Anouk found a brass lantern half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At Kowloon Arcade, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 45, autumn of year 35

Magnus came by asking about the harvest count. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Anouk was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from Sector 9 transit hub to the flooded lower rings without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Anouk was hired to carry a grain scale from Sector 9 transit hub to the flooded lower rings without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the census reached Sector 9 transit hub. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the tax on doors. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 46, spring of year 35

Anouk closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Anouk won 5 meridian scrip on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the Glass District; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Leocadia came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 47, winter of year 35

A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At Kowloon Arcade, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Matthias came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. At Kowloon Arcade, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 48, autumn of year 35

Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the Undermarket. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the tax on doors. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Anouk closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the Undermarket; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 49, autumn of year 35

Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached Kowloon Arcade. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Anouk repaired the spool of wire at Kowloon Arcade for Greta, who paid in 33 meridian scrip and a long story about the quarantine. Xanthe came by asking about who really won the regatta. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Anouk was hired to carry a grain scale from Kowloon Arcade to Sector 9 transit hub without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 50, winter of year 35

Anouk spent the day counting stock at Sector 9 transit hub: 74 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Anouk closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on. Anouk found a brass lantern half-buried near Sector 9 transit hub and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 51, summer of year 35

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the Glass District; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Anouk closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on. Anouk found a sack of salt half-buried near the Glass District and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the harvest count reached the Glass District. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 52, winter of year 35

Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk found a ledger half-buried near the flooded lower rings and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Anouk repaired the brass lantern at the flooded lower rings for Ignatius, who paid in 79 meridian scrip and a long story about who really won the regatta. Anouk was hired to carry a sextant from the flooded lower rings to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 53, winter of year 36

Anouk found a sextant half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk spent the day counting stock at Kowloon Arcade: 14 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Anouk spent the day counting stock at Kowloon Arcade: 70 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 54, spring of year 36

A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk spent the day counting stock at Kowloon

Arcade: 86 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. Rumours about the quarantine reached Kowloon Arcade. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 55, autumn of year 36

Anouk was hired to carry a sextant from the Undermarket to Sector 9 transit hub without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the Undermarket; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Anouk repaired the sextant at the Undermarket for Noor, who paid in 11 meridian scrip and a long story about the quarantine. Anouk repaired the ledger at the Undermarket for Quentin, who paid in 58 meridian scrip and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 56, summer of year 36

Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the flooded lower rings; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk repaired the bolt of linen at the flooded lower rings for Umberto, who paid in 75 meridian scrip and a long story about the new curfew.

Entry 57, winter of year 36

A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Anouk repaired the cracked compass at the Undermarket for Osric, who paid in 24 meridian scrip and a long story about the tax on doors. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the quarantine. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Soren came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 58, spring of year 36

Anouk closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Anouk closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Anouk repaired the grain scale at Sector 9 transit hub for Eamon, who paid in 72 meridian scrip and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 59, autumn of year 36

Anouk found a wax seal half-buried near the Undermarket and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Anouk repaired the signal flag at the Undermarket for Greta, who paid in 56 meridian scrip and a long story about who really won the regatta. Anouk found a clockwork bird half-buried near the Undermarket and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the new curfew reached the Undermarket. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Anouk won 34 meridian scrip on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 60, winter of year 36

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Winifred came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Anouk moved the sextant indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta.

Anouk won 36 meridian scrip on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 61, spring of year 37

Zora came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the Glass District: 42 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Anouk repaired the ledger at the Glass District for Astrid, who paid in 67 meridian scrip and a long story about the census. Anouk repaired the grain scale at the Glass District for Orsolya, who paid in 12 meridian scrip and a long story about the old tunnels. Anouk closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 62, winter of year 37

Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the flooded lower rings. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Petra came by asking about the tax on doors. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 63, summer of year 37

the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the new curfew. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk spent the day counting stock at Sector 9 transit hub: 87 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short.

Entry 64, summer of year 37

A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Anouk repaired the iron kettle at Kowloon Arcade for Quillon, who paid in 74 meridian scrip and a long story about the right way to mend a net. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Thaddeus came by asking about the quarantine. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 65, summer of year 38

A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Anouk came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Anouk found a sack of salt half-buried near the Glass District and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Anouk moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 66, summer of year 38

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached Kowloon Arcade. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 67, winter of year 38

Anouk won 43 meridian scrip on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. The weather turned. Anouk moved the pair of spectacles indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the harvest count. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Anouk spent the day counting stock at Kowloon Arcade: 69 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 68, autumn of year 38

A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Anouk repaired the tin whistle at the Glass District for Pilar, who paid in 82 meridian scrip and a long story about the missing shipment. The weather turned. Anouk moved the glass float indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the rumour of a second well. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 69, winter of year 39

At the Undermarket, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Anouk won 61 meridian scrip on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on supper. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Anouk won 9 meridian scrip on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 70, summer of year 39

At the Undermarket, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. Anouk repaired the hand bell at the Undermarket for Magnus, who paid in 2 meridian scrip and a long story about the right way to mend a net. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Anouk found a signal flag half-buried near the Undermarket and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 71, spring of year 39

Anouk closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached Sector 9 transit hub. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 72, winter of year 39

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the Glass District: 54 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short.

Entry 73, spring of year 40

Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the Undermarket. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the Undermarket: 42 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short.

Entry 74, winter of year 40

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the Glass District; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Anouk moved the hand bell indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about whether the bridge will hold. Anouk closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Anouk won 49 meridian scrip on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 75, winter of year 40

At Kowloon Arcade, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the old tunnels. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Anouk spent the day counting stock at Kowloon Arcade: 82 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short.

Entry 76, spring of year 40

Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Anouk closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 77, spring of year 41

At Sector 9 transit hub, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Gideon came by asking about the singing at the docks. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Anouk moved the iron kettle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the comet.

Entry 78, autumn of year 41

the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the comet. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Anouk moved the glass float indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. At the Glass District, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 79, autumn of year 41

The weather turned. Anouk moved the grain scale indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Anouk found a coil of rope half-buried near Sector 9 transit hub and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Anouk spent the day counting stock at Sector 9 transit hub: 67 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. Anouk found a ledger half-buried near Sector 9 transit hub and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 80, spring of year 41

The weather turned. Anouk moved the oilskin map indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the census. The weather turned. Anouk moved the glass float indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the old tunnels. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the census. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Anouk for the password to the workshop. Anouk laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 81, winter of year 42

At the flooded lower rings, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. At the flooded lower rings, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Eamon came by asking about who really won the regatta. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Anouk moved the glass float indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the comet.

Entry 82, autumn of year 42

Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached Kowloon Arcade. Anouk pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Anouk was hired to carry a signal flag from Kowloon Arcade to the Undermarket without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At Kowloon Arcade, Anouk taught a newcomer how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk found a signal flag half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 83, autumn of year 42

Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 19 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside the flooded lower rings; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 84, summer of year 42

Anouk spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 89 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. The weather turned. Anouk moved the bundle of letters indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the rumour of a second well. Anouk closed early, walked to Sector 9 transit hub, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 85, winter of year 43

Anouk repaired the clockwork bird at Kowloon Arcade for Osric, who paid in 12 meridian scrip and a long story about the old tunnels. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Anouk read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Anouk found a copper pipe half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Anouk and a neighbour outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 86, spring of year 43

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 10 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. The weather turned. Anouk moved the bolt of linen indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the right way to mend a net. Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 87, autumn of year 43

Vesna came by asking about the quarantine. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right. Anouk found a signal flag half-buried near the Glass District and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 88, autumn of year 43

Orsolya came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Anouk said nothing useful and made tea instead. Anouk was hired to carry a brass lantern from Kowloon Arcade to the Undermarket without opening it, and mostly succeeded. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Anouk has a suspect and is probably right.