

Pilar Lindqvist

Character Dossier

Competitive about everything tutor of the Academy of Vell

Overview

Pilar Lindqvist is a tutor living in the Academy of Vell. Pilar is 75 years old, originally from Little Ashby, and is known around the Hall of Echoes as competitive about everything. In conversation Pilar swears by the weather instead of the gods.

Background

Pilar arrived in the Academy of Vell 30 years ago after leaving Little Ashby under circumstances Pilar describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Faculty of Applied Wonders; the second was the one that stuck. Today Pilar works as a tutor near the north observatory and is paid, when paid at all, in guilders.

Pilar learned the trade from Isadora Okonkwo, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Pilar's life is with Ingrid Kaldwin, over a matter neither will explain. The person Pilar trusts most is Jorah Lindqvist.

Current goal: to find out what happened to the missing caravan. Greatest fear: fire in enclosed spaces.

Personality and speech

Temperament: competitive about everything.

Speech pattern: Pilar swears by the weather instead of the gods.

Tells: when lying, Pilar mentions Clementine the crow for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Pilar Lindqvist
Role	tutor
Home	the Academy of Vell
Hometown	Little Ashby
Age	75
Favourite dish	the tavern's molasses beans
Pet	Clementine, a crow
Lucky number	962

Workshop password	kelp-iris
Mentor	Isadora Okonkwo
Rival	Ingrid Kaldwin
Closest friend	Jorah Lindqvist

Secret

Pilar has a sibling nobody in the Academy of Vell knows about, living quietly in Little Ashby.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Pilar: I am the tutor. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Pilar: The tavern's molasses beans. Do not tell Ingrid I said so.

Visitor: Is Clementine yours?

Pilar: Clementine belongs to nobody. Clementine tolerates me. Lucky number is 962, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, winter of year 12

Pilar won 26 guilders on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on supper. At the north observatory, Pilar taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Pilar was hired to carry a grain scale from the north observatory to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Pilar and a neighbour outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Pilar was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the north observatory to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 2, spring of year 12

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the quarantine. Pilar read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Pilar won 7 guilders on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on supper. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the missing shipment. Pilar read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Pilar has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 3, winter of year 12

Pilar found a ledger half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Pilar and a neighbour outside the candle library; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Pilar moved the wax seal indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about who really won the regatta. A stranger asked Pilar for the password to the workshop. Pilar laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Yannick came by asking about the singing at the docks. Pilar said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 4, summer of year 12

Pilar spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 31 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Pilar has a suspect and is probably right. Pilar found a bundle of letters half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 5, autumn of year 13

Pilar was hired to carry a coil of rope from the candle library to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Pilar has a suspect and is probably right. Pilar won 36 guilders on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on supper. A stranger asked Pilar for the password to the workshop. Pilar laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Pilar has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 6, spring of year 13

The weather turned. Pilar moved the cracked compass indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the census. Pilar repaired the coil of rope at the Hall of Echoes for Juniper, who paid in 68 guilders and a long story about the tax on doors. Pilar spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 50 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Pilar closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. Pilar found a bolt of linen half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 7, spring of year 13

Rumours about the harvest count reached the candle library. Pilar pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Pilar repaired the spool of wire at the candle library for Thaddeus, who paid in 23 guilders and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the candle library. Pilar pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 8, summer of year 13

Pilar found a glass float half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Pilar and a neighbour outside the candle library; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Pilar was hired to carry a sextant from the candle library to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Pilar repaired the sextant at the candle library for Yevgenia, who paid in 3 guilders and a long story about the harvest count. A stranger asked Pilar for the password to the workshop. Pilar laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 9, summer of year 13

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Pilar won 22 guilders on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the north observatory. Pilar pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 10, winter of year 13

Pilar found a clockwork bird half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Pilar repaired the tin whistle at the Hall of Echoes for Marisol, who paid in 89 guilders and a long story about who really won the regatta. The weather turned. Pilar moved the iron kettle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Pilar read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Pilar and a neighbour outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 11, spring of year 13

Pilar found a coil of rope half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Pilar won 76 guilders on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on supper. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Pilar and a neighbour outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Pilar found a wax seal half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 12, winter of year 13

A stranger asked Pilar for the password to the workshop. Pilar laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Pilar spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 39 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the north observatory. Pilar pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Pilar won 67 guilders on a bet about the census and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 13, summer of year 13

The weather turned. Pilar moved the clockwork bird indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Pilar found a coil of rope half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Pilar and a neighbour outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Pilar closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. A stranger asked Pilar for the password to the workshop. Pilar laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 14, winter of year 13

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Pilar read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Pilar has a suspect and is probably right. Pilar found a iron kettle half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Pilar closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 15, winter of year 13

Pilar won 37 guilders on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on supper. Pilar repaired the glass float at the candle library for Imogen, who paid in 56 guilders and a long story about the singing at the docks. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the candle library. Pilar pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 16, summer of year 13

Pilar found a grain scale half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the candle library, Pilar taught a newcomer how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Pilar was hired to carry a hand bell from the candle library to the bell tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Pilar has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 17, summer of year 14

Pilar spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 20 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Pilar read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Pilar repaired the pair of spectacles at the north observatory for Orsolya, who paid in 47 guilders and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Pilar closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 18, winter of year 14

Pilar closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. Pilar was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the Hall of Echoes to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Pilar spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 5 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Pilar spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 87 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short.

Entry 19, winter of year 14

A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Pilar and a neighbour outside the bell tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Pilar spent the day counting stock at the bell tower: 65 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 20, autumn of year 14

Pilar repaired the hand bell at the Hall of Echoes for Thaddeus, who paid in 66 guilders and a long story about the harvest count. A stranger asked Pilar for the password to the workshop. Pilar laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Pilar spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 8 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. A stranger asked Pilar for the password to the workshop. Pilar laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Pilar spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 66 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 21, autumn of year 14

Rumours about the missing shipment reached the north observatory. Pilar pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Pilar closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. Pilar repaired the cracked compass at the north observatory for Kenji, who paid in 55 guilders and a long story about the comet. Rumours about the harvest count reached the north observatory. Pilar pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 22, summer of year 14

Pilar spent the day counting stock at the bell tower: 90 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. Pilar was hired to carry a iron kettle from the bell tower to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 23, winter of year 14

A stranger asked Pilar for the password to the workshop. Pilar laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Tallulah came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Pilar said nothing useful and made tea instead. Pilar closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. At the Hall of Echoes, Pilar taught a newcomer how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. Pilar found a bundle of letters half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 24, spring of year 14

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the Hall of Echoes. Pilar pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Pilar was hired to carry a signal flag from the Hall of Echoes to the bell tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Pilar and a neighbour outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 25, spring of year 14

At the Hall of Echoes, Pilar taught a newcomer how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Pilar moved the iron kettle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the tax on doors. Pilar won 71 guilders on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on supper. At the Hall of Echoes, Pilar taught a newcomer how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Pilar was hired to carry a oilskin map from the Hall of Echoes to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 26, winter of year 14

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Pilar has a suspect and is probably right. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Pilar has a suspect and is probably right. At the north observatory, Pilar taught a newcomer how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 27, winter of year 14

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Pilar read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Ursula came by asking about who really won the regatta. Pilar said nothing useful and made tea instead. Pilar closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. At the greenhouse cloisters, Pilar taught a newcomer how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 28, winter of year 14

Pilar found a bundle of letters half-buried near the bell tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Pilar closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the harvest count. Pilar read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.