

Quentin Norwood

Character Dossier

Theatrical and vain noodle-stall cook of the Frostwall garrison on the northern border

Overview

Quentin Norwood is a noodle-stall cook living in the Frostwall garrison on the northern border. Quentin is 32 years old, originally from Tallow Bay, and is known around the east rampart as theatrical and vain. In conversation Quentin swears by the weather instead of the gods.

Background

Quentin arrived in the Frostwall garrison on the northern border 3 years ago after leaving Tallow Bay under circumstances Quentin describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Frostwall Legion; the second was the one that stuck. Today Quentin works as a noodle-stall cook near the quartermaster's stores and is paid, when paid at all, in iron pennies.

Quentin learned the trade from Jasper Greywind, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Quentin's life is with Cassius Nightingale, over a matter neither will explain. The person Quentin trusts most is Kwame Nightingale.

Current goal: to retire somewhere warm. Greatest fear: losing their sense of smell.

Personality and speech

Temperament: theatrical and vain.

Speech pattern: Quentin swears by the weather instead of the gods.

Tells: when lying, Quentin mentions Yolk the fox for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Quentin Norwood
Role	noodle-stall cook
Home	the Frostwall garrison on the northern border
Hometown	Tallow Bay
Age	32
Favourite dish	cold roast root vegetables
Pet	Yolk, a fox
Lucky number	841

Workshop password	dune-cinder
Mentor	Jasper Greywind
Rival	Cassius Nightingale
Closest friend	Kwame Nightingale

Secret

Quentin once turned down an offer from the Frostwall Legion that would have made them rich, and wonders about it nightly.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Quentin: I am the noodle-stall cook. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Quentin: Cold roast root vegetables. Do not tell Cassius I said so.

Visitor: Is Yolk yours?

Quentin: Yolk belongs to nobody. Yolk tolerates me. Lucky number is 841, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, summer of year 41

The weather turned. Quentin moved the iron kettle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about whether the bridge will hold. Ursula came by asking about the quarantine. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 7 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Quentin repaired the iron kettle at the frozen moat for Zeph, who paid in 45 iron pennies and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 2, spring of year 41

Tallulah came by asking about the comet. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 3, spring of year 41

The weather turned. Quentin moved the bolt of linen indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about whether the bridge will hold. Quentin was hired to carry a brass lantern from the signal tower to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Quentin was hired to carry a cracked compass from the signal tower to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 4, winter of year 41

Quentin closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the frozen moat; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 5, winter of year 41

A dispute over the census flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin repaired the wax seal at the signal tower for Thaddeus, who paid in 46 iron pennies and a long story about the quarantine. Quentin was hired to carry a hand bell from the signal tower to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Quentin repaired the glass float at the signal tower for Sunniva, who paid in 29 iron pennies and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 6, autumn of year 41

An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Quentin repaired the glass float at the quartermaster's stores for Greta, who paid in 70 iron pennies and a long story about the census. Quentin repaired the copper pipe at the quartermaster's stores for Dashiell, who paid in 19 iron pennies and a long story about the tax on doors.

Entry 7, spring of year 41

Quentin was hired to carry a tin whistle from the quartermaster's stores to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin was hired to carry a hand bell from the quartermaster's stores to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 8, summer of year 41

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the comet. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin repaired the sack of salt at the east rampart for Seraphine, who paid in 61 iron pennies and a long story about the tariff on salt. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 9, autumn of year 41

Hollis came by asking about the singing at the docks. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the new curfew. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 10, winter of year 41

Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right. A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the harvest count. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the old tunnels. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Noor came by asking about the missing shipment. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 11, spring of year 41

Quentin closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right. At the frozen moat, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 12, winter of year 41

Imogen came by asking about the harvest count. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Tallulah came by asking about the census. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 13, summer of year 42

Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the mess hall. Quentin pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the mess hall; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. The weather turned. Quentin moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about whether the bridge will hold. The weather turned. Quentin moved the cracked compass indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the missing shipment.

Entry 14, spring of year 42

Quentin won 45 iron pennies on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on supper. Quentin repaired the copper pipe at the east rampart for Cassius, who paid in 20 iron pennies and a long story about the tariff on salt. At the east rampart, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin found a tin whistle half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Quentin found a sextant half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 15, spring of year 42

Quentin closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right. Quentin repaired the brass lantern at the quartermaster's stores for Rhoswen, who paid in 88 iron pennies and a long story about the comet. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 16, summer of year 42

Quentin closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. Quentin closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 17, autumn of year 43

Quentin closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xavier came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin was hired to carry a sextant from the quartermaster's stores to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 18, spring of year 43

Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the mess hall, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 19, summer of year 43

The weather turned. Quentin moved the tin whistle indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the tariff on salt. Quentin won 13 iron pennies on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on supper. Liora came by asking about the comet. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin won 48 iron pennies on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on supper.

Entry 20, spring of year 43

At the frozen moat, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin found a bolt of linen half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Quentin repaired the cracked compass at the frozen moat for Hollis, who paid in 56 iron pennies and a long story about the singing at the docks.

Entry 21, summer of year 44

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin repaired the oilskin map at the mess hall for Eamon, who paid in 44 iron pennies and a long story about the missing shipment. A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the new curfew. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 22, spring of year 44

A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Quentin spent the day counting stock at the signal tower: 22 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short.

Entry 23, spring of year 44

Quentin won 47 iron pennies on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on supper. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the quartermaster's stores; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin found a ledger half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 24, summer of year 44

Quentin was hired to carry a cracked compass from the mess hall to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Magnus came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the harvest count reached the mess hall. Quentin pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 25, summer of year 44

Quentin was hired to carry a sextant from the signal tower to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Quentin won 59 iron pennies on a bet about the census and spent all of it on supper. A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the signal tower, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin was hired to carry a tin whistle from the signal tower to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 26, spring of year 44

A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 27, winter of year 44

Quentin found a grain scale half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Quentin was hired to carry a brass lantern from the mess hall to the signal tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Brigid came by asking about the tariff on salt. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Wilhelmina came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 28, winter of year 44

Rumours about the harvest count reached the signal tower. Quentin pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Quentin found a spool of wire half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the signal tower, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 29, summer of year 44

Quentin spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 13 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. The weather turned. Quentin moved the pair of spectacles indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the price of lamp oil. Rumours about the harvest count reached the quartermaster's stores. Quentin pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the quarantine. Quentin read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 30, spring of year 44

Quentin won 87 iron pennies on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on supper. At the signal tower, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Quentin spent the day counting stock at the signal tower: 20 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. Quentin was hired to carry a tin whistle from the signal tower to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 31, summer of year 44

A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the mess hall, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin repaired the bundle of letters at the mess hall for Wilhelmina, who paid in 54 iron pennies and a long story about who really won the regatta. Jasper came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Quentin has a suspect and is probably right.

Entry 32, spring of year 44

Quentin won 81 iron pennies on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on supper. At the signal tower, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin won 46 iron pennies on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on supper. Quentin closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on.

Entry 33, winter of year 45

At the mess hall, Quentin taught a newcomer how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 6 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. An old teacher visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 34, winter of year 45

Quentin spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 89 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Elowen came by asking about the quarantine. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Quentin moved the clockwork bird indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about whether the bridge will hold. Imogen came by asking about the old tunnels. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 35, spring of year 45

Gideon came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Sunniva came by asking about the comet. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Quentin closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. A stranger asked Quentin for the password to the workshop. Quentin laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 36, summer of year 45

Quentin closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Quentin and a neighbour outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Quentin moved the spool of wire indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about whether the bridge will hold.

Entry 37, winter of year 46

The weather turned. Quentin moved the bundle of letters indoors and wrote three lines to an old friend about the right way to mend a net. Quentin repaired the sextant at the east rampart for Percival, who paid in 73 iron pennies and a long story about the tax on doors. Dashiell came by asking about the tax on doors. Quentin said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin repaired the wax seal at the east rampart for Octavia, who paid in 38 iron pennies and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Rumours about the new curfew reached the east rampart. Quentin pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.