

Zora Duskmere

Character Dossier

Restless and curious lighthouse keeper of the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light

Overview

Zora Duskmere is a lighthouse keeper living in the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light. Zora is 53 years old, originally from Wickham Hollow, and is known around the big top as restless and curious. In conversation Zora switches to formal speech when angry.

Background

Zora arrived in the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light 18 years ago after leaving Wickham Hollow under circumstances Zora describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Ringmaster's troupe; the second was the one that stuck. Today Zora works as a lighthouse keeper near the menagerie wagons and is paid, when paid at all, in copper bits.

Zora learned the trade from Seraphine Kaldwin, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Zora's life is with Matthias Larkspur, over a matter neither will explain. The person Zora trusts most is Octavia Ravensworth.

Current goal: to win the harvest fair for the fifth time. Greatest fear: fire in enclosed spaces.

Personality and speech

Temperament: restless and curious.

Speech pattern: Zora switches to formal speech when angry.

Tells: when lying, Zora mentions Dumpling the tortoise for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Zora Duskmere
Role	lighthouse keeper
Home	the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light
Hometown	Wickham Hollow
Age	53
Favourite dish	cold fried plantains
Pet	Dumpling, a tortoise
Lucky number	264

Workshop password	ember-slate
Mentor	Seraphine Kaldwin
Rival	Matthias Larkspur
Closest friend	Octavia Ravensworth

Secret

Zora once turned down an offer from the Ringmaster's troupe that would have made them rich, and wonders about it nightly.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Zora: I am the lighthouse keeper. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Zora: Cold fried plantains. Do not tell Matthias I said so.

Visitor: Is Dumpling yours?

Zora: Dumpling belongs to nobody. Dumpling tolerates me. Lucky number is 264, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, autumn of year 36

A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 2, spring of year 36

Rumours about the old tunnels reached the cookfire. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Zora won 33 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 3, winter of year 36

Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. The weather turned. Zora moved the grain scale indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about who really won the regatta. At the ticket wagon, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 4, spring of year 36

A dispute over the census flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the menagerie wagons. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 5, spring of year 37

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Zora spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 68 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. At the menagerie wagons, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 6, summer of year 37

A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora repaired the copper pipe at the big top for Isadora, who paid in 44 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Zora won 73 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on cold fried plantains.

Entry 7, summer of year 37

A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. Zora repaired the brass lantern at the cookfire for Kestrel, who paid in 59 copper bits and a long story about the missing shipment. Zora was hired to carry a glass float from the cookfire to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 8, summer of year 37

Zora found a ledger half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the big top, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. Lucienne came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 9, autumn of year 38

Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora found a wax seal half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 10, spring of year 38

Zora was hired to carry a tin whistle from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Nadira came by asking about the old tunnels. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the menagerie wagons, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. Zora was hired to carry a oilskin map from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 11, summer of year 38

Zora closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. The weather turned. Zora moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the right way to mend a net. The weather turned. Zora moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the tax on doors. Zora came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 12, autumn of year 38

At the ticket wagon, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Zora found a grain scale half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the ticket wagon. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks.

Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 13, winter of year 38

At the costume tent, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Zora closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora won 56 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on cold fried plantains.

Entry 14, winter of year 38

Zora spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 4 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Tallulah came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Zora moved the grain scale indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the tariff on salt.

Entry 15, summer of year 38

Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the menagerie wagons. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 79 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the menagerie wagons. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 16, winter of year 38

Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Zora closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Emeric came by asking about the quarantine. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 17, winter of year 39

Zora closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 47 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Zora repaired the tin whistle at the cookfire for Zora, who paid in 11 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors.

Entry 18, winter of year 39

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 19, autumn of year 39

Zora repaired the ledger at the costume tent for Octavia, who paid in 15 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. At the costume tent, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 23 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short. Zora found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 20, spring of year 39

At the costume tent, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Zora closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right.

Entry 21, autumn of year 39

A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Zora found a sack of salt half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 22, summer of year 39

Zora won 35 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 23, autumn of year 39

Zora spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 70 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 24, autumn of year 39

The weather turned. Zora moved the wax seal indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the tariff on salt. Zora repaired the bundle of letters at the cookfire for Astrid, who paid in 57 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 25, autumn of year 39

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Zora moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about who really won the regatta. Zora was hired to carry a cracked compass from the cookfire to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 26, winter of year 39

Ysolde came by asking about the harvest count. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora repaired the bolt of linen at the big top for Wendeline, who paid in 62 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt. Zora was hired to carry a grain scale from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 27, autumn of year 39

The weather turned. Zora moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the rumour of a second well. Zora closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 28, autumn of year 39

A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Zora moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about who really won the regatta. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 29, autumn of year 39

Zora closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Oduya came by asking about who really won the regatta. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 30, summer of year 39

A dispute over the comet flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the big top, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. At the big top, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 31, winter of year 39

Zora spent the day counting stock at the big top: 87 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora spent the day counting stock at the big top: 73 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. Hyacinth came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 32, autumn of year 39

Calloway came by asking about the quarantine. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. The weather turned. Zora moved the hand bell indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the tax on doors.

Entry 33, spring of year 40

Zora spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 18 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. Zora closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora found a hand bell half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora found a wax seal half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 34, winter of year 40

Zora won 25 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora repaired the sextant at the big top for Jasper, who paid in 88 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 35, summer of year 40

Zora spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 29 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora repaired the coil of rope at the ticket wagon for Winifred, who paid in 61 copper bits and a long story about the missing shipment.

Entry 36, autumn of year 40

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Zora moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the tax on doors. Zora closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the menagerie wagons. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 37, winter of year 41

A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora won 5 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 38, summer of year 41

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Zora found a bundle of letters half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right.

Entry 39, autumn of year 41

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Zora repaired the oilskin map at the costume tent for Tomasz, who paid in 49 copper bits and a long story about the harvest count. At the costume tent, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the costume tent. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 40, winter of year 41

Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Rumours about the quarantine reached the cookfire. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Matthias came by asking about the old tunnels. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Zora moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the tax on doors. Elowen came by asking about the missing shipment. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 41, winter of year 41

Zora found a grain scale half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Mara came by asking about the singing at the docks. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora repaired the spool of wire at the cookfire for Matthias, who paid in 75 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Zora spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 84 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 42, summer of year 41

Zora won 38 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora won 80 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora found a brass lantern half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 43, autumn of year 41

Zora spent the day counting stock at the big top: 85 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. At the big top, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Zora spent the day counting stock at the big top: 81 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 44, summer of year 41

Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora won 64 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora was hired to carry a iron kettle from the big top to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 45, autumn of year 42

Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Zora moved the hand bell indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the tax on doors.

Entry 46, summer of year 42

A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora found a glass float half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 47, autumn of year 42

A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine came by asking about the singing at the docks. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora won 5 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right.

Entry 48, summer of year 42

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora was hired to carry a glass float from the costume tent to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Zora moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about who really won the regatta.

Entry 49, summer of year 43

Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the costume tent. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 61 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Zora found a bolt of linen half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zora repaired the spool of wire at the costume tent for Pilar, who paid in 82 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 50, summer of year 43

Zora was hired to carry a signal flag from the ticket wagon to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora found a clockwork bird half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zora found a coil of rope half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 51, winter of year 43

Rumours about the harvest count reached the menagerie wagons. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Juniper came by asking about the missing shipment. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Leocadia came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 52, summer of year 43

The weather turned. Zora moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the singing at the docks. At the menagerie wagons, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. Cassius came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Zora moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the quarantine.

Entry 53, autumn of year 43

Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the cookfire. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 32 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Torvald came by asking about the tariff on salt. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. Zora found a copper pipe half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 54, autumn of year 43

Zora spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 32 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the census flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the menagerie wagons, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 55, summer of year 43

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the quarantine reached the cookfire. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora repaired the grain scale at the cookfire for Eamon, who paid in 39 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Zora repaired the grain scale at the cookfire for Xavier, who paid in 6 copper bits and a long story about the missing shipment.

Entry 56, summer of year 43

A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 53 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora repaired the coil of rope at the cookfire for Rurik, who paid in 73 copper bits and a long story about the census.

Entry 57, summer of year 43

Zora won 17 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora repaired the coil of rope at the cookfire for Jorah, who paid in 16 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. The weather turned. Zora moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the comet. Zora spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 88 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Zora found a wax seal half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 58, winter of year 43

Zora closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the ticket wagon. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 59, summer of year 43

Zora closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 60, winter of year 43

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora repaired the cracked compass at the ticket wagon for Marisol, who paid in 58 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. At the ticket wagon, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. At the ticket wagon, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 61, spring of year 43

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora found a signal flag half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 62, summer of year 43

Rumours about the census reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 63, summer of year 43

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Ysolde came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Corvina came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 64, autumn of year 43

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. At the menagerie wagons, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. Zora won 27 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on cold fried plantains.

Entry 65, autumn of year 43

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora won 24 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 66, winter of year 43

Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Zora closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora was hired to carry a cracked compass from the cookfire to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 67, autumn of year 43

Zora was hired to carry a oilskin map from the ticket wagon to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 68, spring of year 43

At the ticket wagon, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Zora was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the ticket wagon to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zora was hired to carry a oilskin map from the ticket wagon to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zora repaired the spool of wire at the ticket wagon for Soren, who paid in 10 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Zora repaired the pair of spectacles at the ticket wagon for Qadira, who paid in 70 copper bits and a long story about the missing shipment.

Entry 69, spring of year 43

Zora closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora won 67 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora found a hand bell half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 70, autumn of year 43

At the big top, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 71, winter of year 43

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 72, summer of year 43

Zora repaired the wax seal at the costume tent for Corvina, who paid in 18 copper bits and a long story about the harvest count. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. A dispute over the comet flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 73, winter of year 44

A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora repaired the grain scale at the ticket wagon for Nikolai, who paid in 38 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the ticket wagon. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora won 35 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on cold fried plantains.

Entry 74, winter of year 44

At the big top, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the comet flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the harvest count reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the census flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora repaired the copper pipe at the big top for Quentin, who paid in 22 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew.

Entry 75, autumn of year 44

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora won 80 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora won 62 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on cold fried plantains.

Entry 76, autumn of year 44

Zora won 50 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Olwen came by asking about the old tunnels. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora spent the day counting stock at the big top: 44 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 77, summer of year 44

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 78, summer of year 44

Zora found a bundle of letters half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zora won 38 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. The weather turned. Zora moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the tax on doors.

Entry 79, summer of year 44

Rurik came by asking about the missing shipment. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 80, autumn of year 44

A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 19 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. The weather turned. Zora moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the old tunnels. Fitzgerald came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 81, autumn of year 44

Zora found a hand bell half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zora found a oilskin map half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zora found a iron kettle half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Zora moved the wax seal indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the tax on doors.

Entry 82, spring of year 44

Zora repaired the glass float at the costume tent for Kenji, who paid in 51 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Zora moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the right way to mend a net. Quillon came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 83, winter of year 44

Zora found a grain scale half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora won 25 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 84, winter of year 44

The weather turned. Zora moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the census. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the ticket wagon. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Zora moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 85, spring of year 44

Zora repaired the copper pipe at the cookfire for Imogen, who paid in 74 copper bits and a long story about the comet. Zora came by asking about the census. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora won 88 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 86, spring of year 44

Rumours about the census reached the menagerie wagons. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Hyacinth came by asking about the quarantine. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 14 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short.

Entry 87, spring of year 44

Zora found a copper pipe half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora repaired the wax seal at the costume tent for Delphine, who paid in 47 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 88, winter of year 44

Zora was hired to carry a glass float from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zora found a sextant half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Quentin came by asking about the missing shipment. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 89, spring of year 44

Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. The weather turned. Zora moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the new curfew. Halcyon came by asking about the quarantine. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 90, summer of year 44

At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. Zora spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 14 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora won 68 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on cold fried plantains.

Entry 91, autumn of year 44

Zora won 45 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora won 90 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the ticket wagon. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 92, autumn of year 44

Kwame came by asking about the new curfew. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora won 22 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora was hired to carry a spool of wire from the ticket wagon to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zora closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 81 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short.

Entry 93, winter of year 45

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the cookfire. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 94, winter of year 45

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Tomasz came by asking about the tariff on salt. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 95, spring of year 45

Zora was hired to carry a sack of salt from the menagerie wagons to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zora won 54 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right.

Entry 96, autumn of year 45

Zora was hired to carry a coil of rope from the cookfire to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Zora moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the old tunnels. Zora found a ledger half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 97, summer of year 46

Rumours about the comet reached the menagerie wagons. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 98, spring of year 46

Zora was hired to carry a tin whistle from the menagerie wagons to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Zora moved the sack of salt indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the census. Zora spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 37 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora was hired to carry a grain scale from the menagerie wagons to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 99, autumn of year 46

Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora spent the day counting stock at the big top: 62 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. The weather turned. Zora moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about who really won the regatta. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Zora moved the sextant indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the quarantine.

Entry 100, summer of year 46

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rowan came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora found a iron kettle half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 101, winter of year 46

Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Zora found a coil of rope half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. Zora spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 24 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short.

Entry 102, winter of year 46

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Zora found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Zora moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about who really won the regatta. At the big top, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 103, autumn of year 46

Zora found a brass lantern half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zora repaired the tin whistle at the ticket wagon for Valentin, who paid in 75 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Zora was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the ticket wagon to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zora closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 104, winter of year 46

Zora spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 32 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Zora spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 69 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. The weather turned. Zora moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the census. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 105, spring of year 46

Zora closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Zora moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the old tunnels. Baptiste came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Zora closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 106, autumn of year 46

Zora found a bolt of linen half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Liora came by asking about the singing at the docks. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 107, autumn of year 46

Rumours about the harvest count reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the big top. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Zora moved the wax seal indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the new curfew. Zora was hired to carry a copper pipe from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tax on doors. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 108, summer of year 46

Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the ticket wagon. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Rumours about the quarantine reached the ticket wagon. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 109, winter of year 47

Zora repaired the glass float at the costume tent for Matthias, who paid in 48 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Zora was hired to carry a signal flag from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the costume tent, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. Zora closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 110, winter of year 47

Zora won 4 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora was hired to carry a cracked compass from the menagerie wagons to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zora repaired the brass lantern at the menagerie wagons for Gideon, who paid in 77 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels.

Entry 111, autumn of year 47

A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the menagerie wagons. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zora closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora repaired the sextant at the menagerie wagons for Umberto, who paid in 48 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold.

Entry 112, spring of year 47

At the ticket wagon, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. Zora spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 62 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 113, spring of year 47

A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zora won 46 copper bits from Matthias on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on cold fried plantains. Zora repaired the pair of spectacles at the menagerie wagons for Petra, who paid in 84 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance.

Entry 114, summer of year 47

A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora found a sextant half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zora was hired to carry a glass float from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Zora moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about who really won the regatta.

Entry 115, autumn of year 47

Zora closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora repaired the copper pipe at the cookfire for Isadora, who paid in 68 copper bits and a long story about the census. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 116, summer of year 47

Zora repaired the cracked compass at the menagerie wagons for Olwen, who paid in 39 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. Noor came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 62 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short.

Entry 117, summer of year 47

At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Zora closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Tiberius came by asking about the singing at the docks. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Zora moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about the missing shipment.

Entry 118, summer of year 47

A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right.

Entry 119, winter of year 47

Zora repaired the copper pipe at the big top for Xanthe, who paid in 54 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 120, winter of year 47

At the cookfire, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora found a oilskin map half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 121, winter of year 47

The weather turned. Zora moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Dumpling, and wrote three lines to Seraphine about who really won the regatta. A dispute over the census flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zora repaired the iron kettle at the big top for Caspian, who paid in 65 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Zora spent the day counting stock at the big top: 18 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 122, autumn of year 47

Zora found a tin whistle half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right.

Entry 123, winter of year 47

Zora repaired the brass lantern at the menagerie wagons for Qadira, who paid in 68 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the menagerie wagons. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right.

Entry 124, summer of year 47

Zora repaired the wax seal at the big top for Noor, who paid in 41 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Zora found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zora closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Cassius came by asking about the quarantine. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 125, autumn of year 48

Zora closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 126, winter of year 48

Zora was hired to carry a grain scale from the ticket wagon to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zora was hired to carry a oilskin map from the ticket wagon to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the ticket wagon. Zora pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 127, winter of year 48

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Zora read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Caspian came by asking about the missing shipment. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zora closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. Zora was hired to carry a spool of wire from the cookfire to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 128, autumn of year 48

At the costume tent, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the costume tent, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 129, autumn of year 48

Percival came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Zora said nothing useful and made tea instead. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zora closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Dumpling followed at a distance. At the ticket wagon, Zora taught Octavia how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 130, spring of year 48

Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Zora suspects Octavia and is probably right. A dispute over the comet flared up between Zora and Matthias outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Seraphine visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Zora for the password to the workshop. Zora laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.