

Delphine Norwood

Character Dossier

Melancholy but funny alchemist of Kepler Station, a mining outpost orbiting the gas giant Oryn

Overview

Delphine Norwood is a alchemist living in Kepler Station, a mining outpost orbiting the gas giant Oryn. Delphine is 25 years old, originally from the Weeping Shoals, and is known around Ring Deck 4 as melancholy but funny. In conversation Delphine refuses to say the word 'no' outright.

Background

Delphine arrived in Kepler Station, a mining outpost orbiting the gas giant Oryn 9 years ago after leaving the Weeping Shoals under circumstances Delphine describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Oryn Extraction Consortium; the second was the one that stuck. Today Delphine works as a alchemist near the hydroponics bay and is paid, when paid at all, in station credits.

Delphine learned the trade from Wilhelmina Corvane, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Delphine's life is with Qadira Lindqvist, over a matter neither will explain. The person Delphine trusts most is Sixten Dunmore.

Current goal: to pay off the last of the debt by winter. Greatest fear: being forgotten.

Personality and speech

Temperament: melancholy but funny.

Speech pattern: Delphine refuses to say the word 'no' outright.

Tells: when lying, Delphine mentions Waffles the rabbit for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Delphine Norwood
Role	alchemist
Home	Kepler Station, a mining outpost orbiting the gas giant Oryn
Hometown	the Weeping Shoals
Age	25
Favourite dish	midnight oat and ale bread
Pet	Waffles, a rabbit
Lucky number	820

Workshop password	velvet-gale
Mentor	Wilhelmina Corvane
Rival	Qadira Lindqvist
Closest friend	Sixten Dunmore

Secret

Delphine has never told Wilhelmina Corvane that the famous 'accident' was deliberate.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Delphine: I am the alchemist. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Delphine: Midnight oat and ale bread. Do not tell Qadira I said so.

Visitor: Is Waffles yours?

Delphine: Waffles belongs to nobody. Waffles tolerates me. Lucky number is 820, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, summer of year 24

Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine was hired to carry a sack of salt from the ore refinery to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the ore refinery to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine was hired to carry a ledger from the ore refinery to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 2, summer of year 24

Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the census flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the harvest count reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the missing shipment. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 3, spring of year 24

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the quarantine. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine repaired the glass float at the hydroponics bay for Yusuf, who paid in 55 station credits and a long story about the quarantine. Delphine repaired the iron kettle at the hydroponics bay for Percival, who paid in 53 station credits and a long story about the comet. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the new curfew. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 4, winter of year 24

At the ore refinery, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the ore refinery: 76 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short. Delphine won 9 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Sable came by asking about the new curfew. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Delphine found a glass float half-buried near the ore refinery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 5, winter of year 25

The weather turned. Delphine moved the signal flag indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the rumour of a second well. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine repaired the sextant at the observation lounge for Orsolya, who paid in 2 station credits and a long story about the missing shipment. Delphine repaired the bolt of linen at the observation lounge for Leocadia, who paid in 15 station credits and a long story about the tariff on salt.

Entry 6, autumn of year 25

Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Freya came by asking about the tax on doors. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 7, summer of year 25

Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the census reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine won 29 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread.

Entry 8, winter of year 25

Delphine won 77 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine found a sextant half-buried near the ore refinery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 9, autumn of year 25

Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 13 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 33 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short.

Entry 10, summer of year 25

The weather turned. Delphine moved the hand bell indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the price of lamp oil. Delphine repaired the pair of spectacles at Ring Deck 4 for Leocadia, who paid in 83 station credits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. At Ring Deck 4, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 11, spring of year 25

Delphine repaired the cracked compass at the hydroponics bay for Winifred, who paid in 67 station credits and a long story about the harvest count. The weather turned. Delphine moved the glass float indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the quarantine. The weather turned. Delphine moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the missing shipment. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 12, autumn of year 25

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the comet. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine repaired the cracked compass at Ring Deck 4 for Soren, who paid in 64 station credits and a long story about the comet. Delphine was hired to carry a glass float from Ring Deck 4 to the ore refinery without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 13, winter of year 25

The weather turned. Delphine moved the sack of salt indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the rumour of a second well. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Ring Deck 4: 82 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short.

Entry 14, spring of year 25

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine found a signal flag half-buried near the observation lounge and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 15, autumn of year 25

Rumours about the census reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine found a oilskin map half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the hydroponics bay, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Delphine found a copper pipe half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 16, autumn of year 25

Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Delphine repaired the cracked compass at Ring Deck 4 for Phaedra, who paid in 9 station credits and a long story about who really won the regatta. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 17, summer of year 26

Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 41 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Delphine was hired to carry a coil of rope from Dockmaster's Row to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the comet. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 18, autumn of year 26

Delphine found a clockwork bird half-buried near Ring Deck 4 and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 19, autumn of year 26

Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine was hired to carry a bolt of linen from Dockmaster's Row to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the tax on doors reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 20, spring of year 26

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the tax on doors. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the harvest count reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine won 85 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread.

Entry 21, summer of year 27

Delphine spent the day counting stock at the ore refinery: 83 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Delphine found a signal flag half-buried near the ore refinery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Delphine moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about whether the bridge will hold.

Entry 22, summer of year 27

Delphine found a ledger half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 23, autumn of year 27

At the hydroponics bay, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 24, winter of year 27

Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 25, summer of year 27

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine found a oilskin map half-buried near the ore refinery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the ore refinery, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the ore refinery: 51 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 26, autumn of year 27

Delphine won 2 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. The weather turned. Delphine moved the glass float indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about who really won the regatta. At the hydroponics bay, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 27, summer of year 27

Delphine found a hand bell half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the comet flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine closed early, walked to the ore refinery, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine closed early, walked to the ore refinery, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 28, autumn of year 27

Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. A dispute over the census flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 29, spring of year 28

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the old tunnels. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Delphine moved the hand bell indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the tariff on salt. Delphine closed early, walked to the ore refinery, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the tax on doors. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Delphine moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the quarantine.

Entry 30, spring of year 28

At Dockmaster's Row, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. Delphine found a spool of wire half-buried near Dockmaster's Row and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Marisol came by asking about the singing at the docks. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Delphine was hired to carry a coil of rope from Dockmaster's Row to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 31, spring of year 28

Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the ore refinery to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine won 9 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread.

Entry 32, autumn of year 28

Delphine repaired the wax seal at Dockmaster's Row for Farida, who paid in 67 station credits and a long story about the quarantine. At Dockmaster's Row, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 58 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. At Dockmaster's Row, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 33, summer of year 29

Delphine closed early, walked to the observation lounge, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Rumours about the tax on doors reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 55 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short.

Entry 34, winter of year 29

At the hydroponics bay, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 35, autumn of year 29

Osric came by asking about the harvest count. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. At Ring Deck 4, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 36, autumn of year 29

Delphine was hired to carry a sextant from the hydroponics bay to the observation lounge without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine closed early, walked to the observation lounge, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 37, autumn of year 29

Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 38, summer of year 29

Delphine repaired the bolt of linen at the hydroponics bay for Farida, who paid in 81 station credits and a long story about the missing shipment. Delphine closed early, walked to the observation lounge, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the hydroponics bay: 7 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short.

Entry 39, winter of year 29

Delphine was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the observation lounge to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine was hired to carry a sextant from the observation lounge to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine repaired the clockwork bird at the observation lounge for Yevgenia, who paid in 19 station credits and a long story about the harvest count. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 40, spring of year 29

Delphine found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the observation lounge and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine won 15 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine won 88 station credits from Qadira on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Delphine repaired the bolt of linen at the observation lounge for Phaedra, who paid in 43 station credits and a long story about the tax on doors.

Entry 41, autumn of year 29

Delphine won 54 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. Delphine was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the observation lounge to the ore refinery without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 42, summer of year 29

Delphine found a glass float half-buried near the observation lounge and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Bram came by asking about who really won the regatta. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 43, spring of year 29

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine repaired the sack of salt at the observation lounge for Pilar, who paid in 13 station credits and a long story about who really won the regatta. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the observation lounge: 85 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short.

Entry 44, autumn of year 29

Delphine won 8 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the comet reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 45, autumn of year 29

Delphine spent the day counting stock at the hydroponics bay: 16 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the hydroponics bay: 39 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Delphine found a coil of rope half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 46, spring of year 29

Delphine won 49 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine was hired to carry a hand bell from the observation lounge to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 47, winter of year 29

Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Delphine was hired to carry a wax seal from the ore refinery to the observation lounge without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the ore refinery, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 48, autumn of year 29

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine closed early, walked to the ore refinery, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the tax on doors. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Kwame came by asking about the census. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 49, autumn of year 29

Delphine closed early, walked to Dockmaster's Row, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. At Ring Deck 4, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 50, autumn of year 29

Bram came by asking about the comet. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the ore refinery, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. Delphine won 38 station credits from Qadira on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Teodora came by asking about the tariff on salt. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 51, spring of year 29

Delphine found a iron kettle half-buried near Ring Deck 4 and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine was hired to carry a brass lantern from Ring Deck 4 to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Rumours about the new curfew reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 52, winter of year 29

Rumours about the old tunnels reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 53, autumn of year 30

Delphine was hired to carry a brass lantern from Ring Deck 4 to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the harvest count. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin came by asking about the tariff on salt. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 54, autumn of year 30

Delphine closed early, walked to Dockmaster's Row, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. The weather turned. Delphine moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the rumour of a second well. Rumours about the quarantine reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 55, spring of year 30

Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Delphine repaired the oilskin map at the observation lounge for Nkechi, who paid in 37 station credits and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 56, winter of year 30

Delphine repaired the pair of spectacles at the observation lounge for Soren, who paid in 15 station credits and a long story about the comet. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the observation lounge: 28 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the observation lounge: 78 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short.

Entry 57, autumn of year 30

Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 58, autumn of year 30

Delphine was hired to carry a grain scale from the observation lounge to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the observation lounge to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine was hired to carry a spool of wire from the observation lounge to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the census. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 59, spring of year 30

Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 60, autumn of year 30

At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Delphine moved the glass float indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the new curfew. Delphine was hired to carry a grain scale from the observation lounge to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 61, autumn of year 30

The weather turned. Delphine moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the old tunnels. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Delphine moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about who really won the regatta. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 62, autumn of year 30

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the tax on doors. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Delphine moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the tax on doors.

Entry 63, spring of year 30

The weather turned. Delphine moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the price of lamp oil. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 64, winter of year 30

Delphine was hired to carry a copper pipe from Ring Deck 4 to the ore refinery without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine won 31 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread.

Entry 65, spring of year 30

At the ore refinery, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Delphine closed early, walked to Dockmaster's Row, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine found a tin whistle half-buried near the ore refinery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine won 35 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Delphine was hired to carry a cracked compass from the ore refinery to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 66, spring of year 30

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Delphine moved the signal flag indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about who really won the regatta. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the hydroponics bay: 67 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine closed early, walked to the ore refinery, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 67, winter of year 30

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine was hired to carry a clockwork bird from Dockmaster's Row to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Olwen came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 68, spring of year 30

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine repaired the ledger at the ore refinery for Fenwick, who paid in 10 station credits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Delphine repaired the tin whistle at the ore refinery for Xavier, who paid in 52 station credits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. At the ore refinery, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 69, winter of year 30

Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. The weather turned. Delphine moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the new curfew. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 70, summer of year 30

Delphine closed early, walked to the ore refinery, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine closed early, walked to the ore refinery, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 71, autumn of year 30

Delphine found a sextant half-buried near the observation lounge and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the comet reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 72, summer of year 30

Delphine was hired to carry a signal flag from Ring Deck 4 to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the new curfew reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Delphine moved the sextant indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the missing shipment.

Entry 73, summer of year 31

Rumours about the comet reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 74, autumn of year 31

Freya came by asking about the missing shipment. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine won 63 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Delphine moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the singing at the docks.

Entry 75, autumn of year 31

Delphine repaired the signal flag at Ring Deck 4 for Greta, who paid in 61 station credits and a long story about who really won the regatta. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At Ring Deck 4, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 76, spring of year 31

Lucienne came by asking about the tax on doors. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Ignatius came by asking about the census. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 77, spring of year 32

At Ring Deck 4, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the new curfew reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine was hired to carry a sack of salt from Ring Deck 4 to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 78, spring of year 32

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the ore refinery. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine found a coil of rope half-buried near the ore refinery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 79, autumn of year 32

Delphine found a tin whistle half-buried near the observation lounge and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Delphine repaired the bolt of linen at the observation lounge for Mara, who paid in 14 station credits and a long story about the comet.

Entry 80, summer of year 32

Delphine was hired to carry a glass float from Ring Deck 4 to the observation lounge without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Ulla came by asking about the new curfew. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine repaired the grain scale at Ring Deck 4 for Astrid, who paid in 81 station credits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Delphine found a signal flag half-buried near Ring Deck 4 and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 81, spring of year 33

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Freya came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the ore refinery. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine closed early, walked to the observation lounge, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 82, autumn of year 33

A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 83, summer of year 33

Sixten came by asking about the missing shipment. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 85 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. At Dockmaster's Row, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. At Dockmaster's Row, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 84, summer of year 33

Delphine won 71 station credits from Qadira on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Delphine won 6 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 85, spring of year 34

The weather turned. Delphine moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the new curfew. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 86, spring of year 34

Delphine was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from Ring Deck 4 to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Ring Deck 4: 35 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 87, autumn of year 34

Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine found a iron kettle half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 88, winter of year 34

Delphine won 37 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Ignatius came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Delphine was hired to carry a bundle of letters from Ring Deck 4 to the ore refinery without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine was hired to carry a copper pipe from Ring Deck 4 to the ore refinery without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 89, winter of year 35

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine was hired to carry a brass lantern from Ring Deck 4 to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Ring Deck 4: 74 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Ring Deck 4: 81 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 90, winter of year 35

Delphine was hired to carry a signal flag from Ring Deck 4 to the observation lounge without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Ring Deck 4: 22 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Ring Deck 4: 46 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside Ring Deck 4; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 91, winter of year 35

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine repaired the hand bell at the observation lounge for Wilhelmina, who paid in 78 station credits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe came by asking about the singing at the docks. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 92, winter of year 35

Delphine closed early, walked to Dockmaster's Row, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine was hired to carry a ledger from the hydroponics bay to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the old tunnels. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 93, summer of year 35

Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the ore refinery. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 94, spring of year 35

Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 63 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Farida came by asking about the tax on doors. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 95, autumn of year 35

Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine was hired to carry a coil of rope from the ore refinery to the observation lounge without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine found a glass float half-buried near the ore refinery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 96, autumn of year 35

A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the hydroponics bay: 78 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 97, winter of year 35

Rumours about the quarantine reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the old tunnels. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the hydroponics bay, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 98, summer of year 35

Delphine found a wax seal half-buried near the ore refinery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 99, autumn of year 35

Delphine spent the day counting stock at Ring Deck 4: 15 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Delphine was hired to carry a glass float from Ring Deck 4 to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Wilhelmina came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 100, winter of year 35

Rumours about the census reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Delphine moved the sack of salt indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about who really won the regatta.

Entry 101, winter of year 36

Delphine found a hand bell half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the hydroponics bay: 22 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 102, summer of year 36

Delphine was hired to carry a oilskin map from the hydroponics bay to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Delphine moved the wax seal indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 103, winter of year 36

Delphine closed early, walked to the observation lounge, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the new curfew. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the harvest count reached the ore refinery. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 104, winter of year 36

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the census. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine found a sack of salt half-buried near Dockmaster's Row and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. A dispute over the census flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside Dockmaster's Row; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 105, winter of year 36

Delphine found a iron kettle half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the hydroponics bay, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine found a bundle of letters half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 106, autumn of year 36

A dispute over the census flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside Ring Deck 4; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Delphine moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the missing shipment.

Entry 107, summer of year 36

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the census. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the ore refinery, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the tax on doors. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 108, summer of year 36

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine won 25 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Delphine won 28 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Delphine was hired to carry a cracked compass from the observation lounge to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 109, summer of year 37

Rumours about the census reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Ring Deck 4: 60 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 110, spring of year 37

Delphine found a glass float half-buried near the observation lounge and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the census flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 111, winter of year 37

The weather turned. Delphine moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the comet. Delphine found a coil of rope half-buried near Ring Deck 4 and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Delphine moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the tax on doors.

Entry 112, autumn of year 37

Delphine was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the ore refinery to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 113, autumn of year 38

The weather turned. Delphine moved the signal flag indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the old tunnels. Delphine won 65 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. At Ring Deck 4, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 114, spring of year 38

A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the harvest count. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine found a tin whistle half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the hydroponics bay: 43 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short.

Entry 115, summer of year 38

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At Dockmaster's Row, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 116, winter of year 38

Delphine repaired the tin whistle at the observation lounge for Benedikt, who paid in 18 station credits and a long story about the new curfew. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Yusuf came by asking about who really won the regatta. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the observation lounge: 50 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 117, winter of year 38

Delphine repaired the bundle of letters at Dockmaster's Row for Magnus, who paid in 80 station credits and a long story about who really won the regatta. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 17 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Delphine repaired the clockwork bird at Dockmaster's Row for Sable, who paid in 5 station credits and a long story about the old tunnels. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 118, autumn of year 38

Delphine found a brass lantern half-buried near Dockmaster's Row and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine was hired to carry a clockwork bird from Dockmaster's Row to the observation lounge without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine won 9 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread.

Entry 119, autumn of year 38

Delphine was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the ore refinery to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine won 43 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 120, summer of year 38

Delphine spent the day counting stock at the hydroponics bay: 6 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine repaired the bundle of letters at the hydroponics bay for Xiomara, who paid in 38 station credits and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 121, winter of year 38

Delphine repaired the clockwork bird at the observation lounge for Ingrid, who paid in 65 station credits and a long story about the missing shipment. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine found a spool of wire half-buried near the observation lounge and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine was hired to carry a coil of rope from the observation lounge to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 122, autumn of year 38

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside Ring Deck 4; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 123, winter of year 38

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the observation lounge; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 124, summer of year 38

Xavier came by asking about the quarantine. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Delphine was hired to carry a glass float from the observation lounge to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Delphine moved the signal flag indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the census.

Entry 125, spring of year 39

The weather turned. Delphine moved the signal flag indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the tariff on salt. Vesna came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the missing shipment. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 25 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short.

Entry 126, autumn of year 39

Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. The weather turned. Delphine moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about whether the bridge will hold. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 127, spring of year 39

Delphine won 19 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Hyacinth came by asking about the tax on doors. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 128, autumn of year 39

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine was hired to carry a brass lantern from the ore refinery to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine was hired to carry a signal flag from the ore refinery to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 129, autumn of year 39

Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 130, autumn of year 39

Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine won 9 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread.

Entry 131, winter of year 39

Delphine found a tin whistle half-buried near Ring Deck 4 and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Delphine found a sextant half-buried near Ring Deck 4 and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside Ring Deck 4; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 132, summer of year 39

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine found a grain scale half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine won 45 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 133, winter of year 39

Delphine found a wax seal half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the census. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the hydroponics bay; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 134, winter of year 39

A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine won 39 station credits from Qadira on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread.

Entry 135, spring of year 39

Rumours about the quarantine reached the ore refinery. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 136, summer of year 39

Zora came by asking about the new curfew. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Rumours about the comet reached the observation lounge. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right.

Entry 137, summer of year 39

Delphine closed early, walked to the observation lounge, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 138, autumn of year 39

Delphine spent the day counting stock at the hydroponics bay: 62 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine repaired the bolt of linen at the hydroponics bay for Wilhelmina, who paid in 17 station credits and a long story about the comet. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 139, autumn of year 39

The weather turned. Delphine moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about who really won the regatta. Delphine found a sack of salt half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine won 86 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the census and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 140, autumn of year 39

Rumours about the tariff on salt reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Delphine moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the new curfew. Ingrid came by asking about the quarantine. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. At Ring Deck 4, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached Ring Deck 4. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 141, winter of year 40

Delphine won 15 station credits from Qadira on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Delphine won 10 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Delphine found a ledger half-buried near Dockmaster's Row and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 142, summer of year 40

Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached Dockmaster's Row. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine was hired to carry a ledger from Dockmaster's Row to the ore refinery without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Delphine spent the day counting stock at Dockmaster's Row: 61 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 143, winter of year 40

The weather turned. Delphine moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about whether the bridge will hold. Delphine found a tin whistle half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine was hired to carry a glass float from the hydroponics bay to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Torvald came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 144, autumn of year 40

Delphine won 70 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. The weather turned. Delphine moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the rumour of a second well. Delphine was hired to carry a tin whistle from the hydroponics bay to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 145, winter of year 41

Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the ore refinery. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Delphine won 49 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Delphine closed early, walked to Ring Deck 4, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 146, winter of year 41

Delphine closed early, walked to Dockmaster's Row, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. Delphine won 65 station credits from Qadira on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the tax on doors. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Delphine closed early, walked to Dockmaster's Row, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance. A stranger asked Delphine for the password to the workshop. Delphine laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 147, autumn of year 41

Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Delphine suspects Sixten and is probably right. The weather turned. Delphine moved the signal flag indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the census. Delphine was hired to carry a coil of rope from Dockmaster's Row to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine closed early, walked to the hydroponics bay, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 148, winter of year 41

the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about the harvest count. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the census flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside Ring Deck 4; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine won 69 station credits from Qadira on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. The weather turned. Delphine moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the price of lamp oil. Delphine won 36 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread.

Entry 149, summer of year 41

Delphine spent the day counting stock at the observation lounge: 42 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short. Delphine repaired the signal flag at the observation lounge for Bram, who paid in 61 station credits and a long story about the missing shipment. The weather turned. Delphine moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 150, spring of year 41

A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside Ring Deck 4; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine repaired the pair of spectacles at Ring Deck 4 for Wilhelmina, who paid in 7 station credits and a long story about the tariff on salt. Delphine was hired to carry a coil of rope from Ring Deck 4 to the hydroponics bay without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine won 89 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread.

Entry 151, spring of year 41

Delphine repaired the wax seal at the hydroponics bay for Sunniva, who paid in 2 station credits and a long story about the singing at the docks. Soren came by asking about who really won the regatta. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Delphine was hired to carry a coil of rope from the hydroponics bay to the observation lounge without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Delphine moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the tax on doors. Delphine found a ledger half-buried near the hydroponics bay and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 152, spring of year 41

Delphine won 10 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. Wilhelmina visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Delphine found a clockwork bird half-buried near the observation lounge and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Delphine closed early, walked to Dockmaster's Row, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 153, summer of year 41

Petra came by asking about the quarantine. Delphine said nothing useful and made tea instead. Delphine was hired to carry a cracked compass from the observation lounge to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine was hired to carry a ledger from the observation lounge to Ring Deck 4 without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine won 88 station credits from Qadira on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on midnight oat and ale bread. At the observation lounge, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 154, winter of year 41

Delphine found a bolt of linen half-buried near the ore refinery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the ore refinery, Delphine taught Sixten how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Delphine moved the hand bell indoors, fed Waffles, and wrote three lines to Wilhelmina about the comet. Delphine spent the day counting stock at the ore refinery: 61 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short.

Entry 155, autumn of year 41

Rumours about the old tunnels reached the hydroponics bay. Delphine pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Delphine was hired to carry a oilskin map from the hydroponics bay to Dockmaster's Row without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine closed early, walked to Dockmaster's Row, and watched the lights come on. Waffles followed at a distance.

Entry 156, winter of year 41

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Delphine and Qadira outside the ore refinery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Delphine repaired the clockwork bird at the ore refinery for Tomasz, who paid in 89 station credits and a long story about who really won the regatta. the Oryn Extraction Consortium sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Delphine read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.