

Eamon Blackwater

Character Dossier

Stubborn, principled and tired scout of Neon Meridian, a rain-soaked megacity

Overview

Eamon Blackwater is a scout living in Neon Meridian, a rain-soaked megacity. Eamon is 70 years old, originally from Greywater, and is known around the Undermarket as stubborn, principled and tired. In conversation Eamon gives directions by landmark, never by street name.

Background

Eamon arrived in Neon Meridian, a rain-soaked megacity 28 years ago after leaving Greywater under circumstances Eamon describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Halcyon Syndicate; the second was the one that stuck. Today Eamon works as a scout near Sector 9 transit hub and is paid, when paid at all, in meridian scrip.

Eamon learned the trade from Xiomara Grimsby, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Eamon's life is with Rhoswen Fairweather, over a matter neither will explain. The person Eamon trusts most is Tiberius Okonkwo.

Current goal: to be trusted by the Halcyon Syndicate again. Greatest fear: mirrors in the dark.

Personality and speech

Temperament: stubborn, principled and tired.

Speech pattern: Eamon gives directions by landmark, never by street name.

Tells: when lying, Eamon mentions Sorrow the pigeon for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Eamon Blackwater
Role	scout
Home	Neon Meridian, a rain-soaked megacity
Hometown	Greywater
Age	70
Favourite dish	midnight goat cheese tart
Pet	Sorrow, a pigeon
Lucky number	804

Workshop password	plume-vellum
Mentor	Xiomara Grimsby
Rival	Rhoswen Fairweather
Closest friend	Tiberius Okonkwo

Secret

Eamon sold a family heirloom to pay for Tiberius Okonkwo's medicine and told everyone it was stolen.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Eamon: I am the scout. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Eamon: Midnight goat cheese tart. Do not tell Rhoswen I said so.

Visitor: Is Sorrow yours?

Eamon: Sorrow belongs to nobody. Sorrow tolerates me. Lucky number is 804, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, spring of year 30

Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached Kowloon Arcade. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Eamon closed early, walked to the Undermarket, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. Orsolya came by asking about the singing at the docks. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead. Lysander came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 2, summer of year 30

Eamon closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Eamon closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Eamon repaired the hand bell at the Undermarket for Astrid, who paid in 14 meridian scrip and a long story about the harvest count.

Entry 3, summer of year 30

Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached Sector 9 transit hub. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Eamon moved the ledger indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the tax on doors. Eamon was hired to carry a wax seal from Sector 9 transit hub to the flooded lower rings without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 4, summer of year 30

Eamon repaired the clockwork bird at the Glass District for Petra, who paid in 18 meridian scrip and a long story about who really won the regatta. Eamon closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside the Glass District; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Eamon moved the ledger indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the rumour of a second well. Eamon repaired the coil of rope at the Glass District for Umberto, who paid in 70 meridian scrip and a long story about the singing at the docks.

Entry 5, autumn of year 30

Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Eamon found a iron kettle half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Eamon was hired to carry a hand bell from Kowloon Arcade to Sector 9 transit hub without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Delphine came by asking about the census. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 6, summer of year 30

The weather turned. Eamon moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about whether the bridge will hold. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the flooded lower rings. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Eamon found a sextant half-buried near the flooded lower rings and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Eamon won 20 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart.

Entry 7, autumn of year 30

At Kowloon Arcade, Eamon taught Tiberius how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. Eamon found a cracked compass half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Eamon found a brass lantern half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Eamon won 7 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart.

Entry 8, spring of year 30

A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Katarina came by asking about the comet. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Eamon moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the new curfew.

Entry 9, autumn of year 30

Eamon was hired to carry a clockwork bird from Sector 9 transit hub to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached Sector 9 transit hub. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 10, spring of year 30

Eamon repaired the brass lantern at Sector 9 transit hub for Emeric, who paid in 21 meridian scrip and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Eamon was hired to carry a bundle of letters from Sector 9 transit hub to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Eamon suspects Tiberius and is probably right.

Entry 11, spring of year 30

At Sector 9 transit hub, Eamon taught Tiberius how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Eamon suspects Tiberius and is probably right. A dispute over the comet flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside Sector 9 transit hub; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 12, winter of year 30

A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside the flooded lower rings; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Eamon closed early, walked to the Glass District, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the missing shipment. Eamon read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside the flooded lower rings; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 13, summer of year 30

The weather turned. Eamon moved the hand bell indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the price of lamp oil. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached Kowloon Arcade. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Eamon was hired to carry a coil of rope from Kowloon Arcade to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Eamon closed early, walked to the Glass District, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 14, summer of year 30

Eamon found a grain scale half-buried near the Undermarket and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the Undermarket, Eamon taught Tiberius how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. At the Undermarket, Eamon taught Tiberius how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Eamon found a copper pipe half-buried near the Undermarket and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Eamon closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance.

Entry 15, winter of year 30

Eamon won 64 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart. Eamon won 87 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart. Eamon repaired the grain scale at the flooded lower rings for Dashiell, who paid in 44 meridian scrip and a long story about the quarantine. Eamon closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance.

Entry 16, winter of year 30

A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Eamon found a sack of salt half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Eamon repaired the bundle of letters at Kowloon Arcade for Freya, who paid in 24 meridian scrip and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 17, spring of year 31

Rumours about the tax on doors reached Kowloon Arcade. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Eamon won 19 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart. Eamon found a sack of salt half-buried near Kowloon Arcade and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Eamon closed early, walked to Sector 9 transit hub, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. Eamon repaired the clockwork bird at Kowloon Arcade for Tomasz, who paid in 54 meridian scrip and a long story about who really won the regatta.

Entry 18, spring of year 31

The weather turned. Eamon moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the missing shipment. At the Undermarket, Eamon taught Tiberius how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the Undermarket. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside the Undermarket; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Mara came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 19, autumn of year 31

Eamon won 31 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside the Undermarket; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Eamon found a bolt of linen half-buried near the Undermarket and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 20, spring of year 31

The weather turned. Eamon moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about who really won the regatta. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At Sector 9 transit hub, Eamon taught Tiberius how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. Magnus came by asking about the old tunnels. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 21, summer of year 32

The weather turned. Eamon moved the signal flag indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the missing shipment. Eamon repaired the hand bell at the flooded lower rings for Wren, who paid in 29 meridian scrip and a long story about who really won the regatta. Eamon closed early, walked to the Undermarket, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Eamon moved the hand bell indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about who really won the regatta.

Entry 22, autumn of year 32

Rumours about the comet reached Kowloon Arcade. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Eamon read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Eamon spent the day counting stock at Kowloon Arcade: 7 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short.

Entry 23, summer of year 32

At the Glass District, Eamon taught Tiberius how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. Calloway came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Eamon suspects Tiberius and is probably right. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the Glass District. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 24, winter of year 32

the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Eamon read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Eamon was hired to carry a bundle of letters from Kowloon Arcade to the flooded lower rings without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Eamon repaired the bundle of letters at Kowloon Arcade for Tiberius, who paid in 31 meridian scrip and a long story about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 25, summer of year 32

the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the quarantine. Eamon read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Eamon was hired to carry a oilskin map from Kowloon Arcade to the flooded lower rings without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Eamon was hired to carry a bundle of letters from Kowloon Arcade to the flooded lower rings without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Eamon was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from Kowloon Arcade to the flooded lower rings without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Eamon closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance.

Entry 26, autumn of year 32

Eamon repaired the bundle of letters at Kowloon Arcade for Zelda, who paid in 70 meridian scrip and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Rumours about the harvest count reached Kowloon Arcade. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Eamon repaired the grain scale at Kowloon Arcade for Quillon, who paid in 19 meridian scrip and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Eamon was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from Kowloon Arcade to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 27, summer of year 32

A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside Kowloon Arcade; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Eamon moved the signal flag indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the tax on doors.

Entry 28, summer of year 32

Eamon spent the day counting stock at the Undermarket: 54 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. The weather turned. Eamon moved the grain scale indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the census. Eamon was hired to carry a signal flag from the Undermarket to Sector 9 transit hub without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the Undermarket. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 29, spring of year 33

Rumours about the missing shipment reached the flooded lower rings. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Eamon spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 65 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the harvest count. Eamon read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 30, spring of year 33

Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Eamon suspects Tiberius and is probably right. Eamon closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. Eamon was hired to carry a wax seal from Sector 9 transit hub to Kowloon Arcade without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Eamon closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance.

Entry 31, winter of year 33

Eamon spent the day counting stock at Sector 9 transit hub: 72 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. Eamon won 54 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached Sector 9 transit hub. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside Sector 9 transit hub; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 32, summer of year 33

Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached Kowloon Arcade. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 33, spring of year 34

Eamon found a bolt of linen half-buried near the flooded lower rings and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the new curfew. Eamon read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Eamon spent the day counting stock at the flooded lower rings: 36 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short.

Entry 34, spring of year 34

Eamon won 62 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart. The weather turned. Eamon moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the new curfew. The weather turned. Eamon moved the glass float indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the right way to mend a net. Eamon repaired the tin whistle at Sector 9 transit hub for Sunniva, who paid in 63 meridian scrip and a long story about the price of lamp oil. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 35, summer of year 34

Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Eamon suspects Tiberius and is probably right. Xavier came by asking about the singing at the docks. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead. Eamon was hired to carry a signal flag from the Glass District to Kowloon Arcade without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the Glass District. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 36, summer of year 34

A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside the Glass District; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Eamon moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the tariff on salt. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Eamon and Rhoswen outside the Glass District; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quillon came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 37, autumn of year 35

Eamon closed early, walked to Kowloon Arcade, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Eamon was hired to carry a cracked compass from the Undermarket to Kowloon Arcade without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 38, winter of year 35

The weather turned. Eamon moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Sorrow, and wrote three lines to Xiomara about the tax on doors. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the missing shipment reached Sector 9 transit hub. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Eamon won 62 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart.

Entry 39, autumn of year 35

Eamon closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. Zeph came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead. Eamon spent the day counting stock at Sector 9 transit hub: 84 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. At Sector 9 transit hub, Eamon taught Tiberius how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Eamon read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 40, summer of year 35

Eamon won 46 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Eamon found a pair of spectacles half-buried near Sector 9 transit hub and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Eamon suspects Tiberius and is probably right.

Entry 41, autumn of year 35

Eamon spent the day counting stock at the Undermarket: 50 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. Eamon won 23 meridian scrip from Rhoswen on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on midnight goat cheese tart. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the Undermarket. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the Undermarket. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 42, winter of year 35

Lucienne came by asking about the missing shipment. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xiomara visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Eamon was hired to carry a oilskin map from Kowloon Arcade to the Glass District without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 43, summer of year 35

Eamon closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. Bram came by asking about the singing at the docks. Eamon said nothing useful and made tea instead. Eamon repaired the clockwork bird at Kowloon Arcade for Greta, who paid in 62 meridian scrip and a long story about the tax on doors. Eamon closed early, walked to the flooded lower rings, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. the Halcyon Syndicate sent a notice about the comet. Eamon read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 44, summer of year 35

A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Eamon closed early, walked to the Undermarket, and watched the lights come on. Sorrow followed at a distance. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Eamon suspects Tiberius and is probably right. Eamon found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the flooded lower rings and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 45, autumn of year 35

Rumours about the old tunnels reached the flooded lower rings. Eamon pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Eamon found a sextant half-buried near the flooded lower rings and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Eamon suspects Tiberius and is probably right. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Eamon for the password to the workshop. Eamon laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.