

Tallulah Castellan

Character Dossier

Boisterous, generous, easily bored herbalist of Verdance, a floating garden city

Overview

Tallulah Castellan is a herbalist living in Verdance, a floating garden city. Tallulah is 57 years old, originally from Redgate, and is known around the Canopy Walk as boisterous, generous, easily bored. In conversation Tallulah switches to formal speech when angry.

Background

Tallulah arrived in Verdance, a floating garden city 7 years ago after leaving Redgate under circumstances Tallulah describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Verdance Stewardship; the second was the one that stuck. Today Tallulah works as a herbalist near the root-cellar markets and is paid, when paid at all, in seed-notes.

Tallulah learned the trade from Matthias Larkspur, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Tallulah's life is with Greta Corvane, over a matter neither will explain. The person Tallulah trusts most is Ignatius Marchetti.

Current goal: to map every path through the Canopy Walk. Greatest fear: running out of salt.

Personality and speech

Temperament: boisterous, generous, easily bored.

Speech pattern: Tallulah switches to formal speech when angry.

Tells: when lying, Tallulah mentions Halo the crow for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Tallulah Castellan
Role	herbalist
Home	Verdance, a floating garden city
Hometown	Redgate
Age	57
Favourite dish	grandmother's mushroom dumplings
Pet	Halo, a crow
Lucky number	466

Workshop password	reed-wick
Mentor	Matthias Larkspur
Rival	Greta Corvane
Closest friend	Ignatius Marchetti

Secret

Tallulah was the one who let the animals loose during the festival three years ago.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Tallulah: I am the herbalist. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Tallulah: Grandmother's mushroom dumplings. Do not tell Greta I said so.

Visitor: Is Halo yours?

Tallulah: Halo belongs to nobody. Halo tolerates me. Lucky number is 466, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, spring of year 15

Tallulah found a tin whistle half-buried near the tether docks and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Halcyon came by asking about the singing at the docks. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the tether docks, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 2, spring of year 15

Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Tallulah suspects Ignatius and is probably right. Tallulah was hired to carry a coil of rope from the root-cellar markets to Terrace Twelve without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the root-cellar markets: 53 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. The weather turned. Tallulah moved the signal flag indoors, fed Halo, and wrote three lines to Matthias about the comet.

Entry 3, autumn of year 15

Tallulah repaired the pair of spectacles at the root-cellar markets for Magnus, who paid in 59 seed-notes and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Tallulah closed early, walked to Terrace Twelve, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 4, winter of year 15

Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the Canopy Walk: 15 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. Tallulah was hired to carry a iron kettle from the Canopy Walk to the root-cellar markets without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the Canopy Walk, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 5, summer of year 15

A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Tallulah moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Halo, and wrote three lines to Matthias about the tariff on salt. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached Terrace Twelve. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the new curfew. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 6, spring of year 15

Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the pollinators' hall, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Tallulah was hired to carry a copper pipe from the pollinators' hall to the tether docks without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 7, spring of year 15

Tallulah was hired to carry a sack of salt from the root-cellar markets to the Canopy Walk without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Tallulah closed early, walked to the Canopy Walk, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Tallulah was hired to carry a wax seal from the root-cellar markets to the Canopy Walk without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 8, spring of year 15

The weather turned. Tallulah moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Halo, and wrote three lines to Matthias about the rumour of a second well. Tallulah was hired to carry a spool of wire from the tether docks to the pollinators' hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zeph came by asking about the census. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 9, spring of year 15

Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Tallulah suspects Ignatius and is probably right. A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Tallulah moved the hand bell indoors, fed Halo, and wrote three lines to Matthias about the comet.

Entry 10, spring of year 15

Tallulah closed early, walked to the root-cellar markets, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Tallulah suspects Ignatius and is probably right. Tallulah won 18 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings. The weather turned. Tallulah moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Halo, and wrote three lines to Matthias about the old tunnels.

Entry 11, spring of year 15

Delphine came by asking about the quarantine. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. Baptiste came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 12, summer of year 15

The weather turned. Tallulah moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Halo, and wrote three lines to Matthias about the tax on doors. Tallulah found a grain scale half-buried near the tether docks and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the tether docks. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 13, summer of year 15

Tallulah found a brass lantern half-buried near the Canopy Walk and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the census. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the Canopy Walk: 7 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the Canopy Walk. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Tallulah suspects Ignatius and is probably right.

Entry 14, spring of year 15

the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Tallulah found a brass lantern half-buried near the root-cellar markets and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the root-cellar markets. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Tallulah repaired the sextant at the root-cellar markets for Zubair, who paid in 9 seed-notes and a long story about the quarantine. Tallulah closed early, walked to Terrace Twelve, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance.

Entry 15, summer of year 15

Tallulah repaired the bolt of linen at the Canopy Walk for Astrid, who paid in 21 seed-notes and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Tallulah found a sack of salt half-buried near the Canopy Walk and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tomasz came by asking about the singing at the docks. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the Canopy Walk: 14 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 16, summer of year 15

Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Tallulah repaired the oilskin map at the Canopy Walk for Kenji, who paid in 49 seed-notes and a long story about the harvest count. Tallulah was hired to carry a spool of wire from the Canopy Walk to the pollinators' hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Tallulah and Greta outside the Canopy Walk; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 17, summer of year 15

Tallulah found a glass float half-buried near Terrace Twelve and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tallulah won 26 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings. Tallulah closed early, walked to the pollinators' hall, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Tallulah was hired to carry a glass float from Terrace Twelve to the pollinators' hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Tallulah closed early, walked to the pollinators' hall, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance.

Entry 18, winter of year 15

Tallulah spent the day counting stock at Terrace Twelve: 3 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Tallulah moved the ledger indoors, fed Halo, and wrote three lines to Matthias about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 19, winter of year 15

A dispute over the comet flared up between Tallulah and Greta outside Terrace Twelve; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At Terrace Twelve, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 20, autumn of year 15

the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the harvest count. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Tallulah closed early, walked to the tether docks, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the census. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 21, summer of year 16

Tallulah repaired the bundle of letters at the Canopy Walk for Rurik, who paid in 62 seed-notes and a long story about the new curfew. Tallulah won 62 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the Canopy Walk, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 22, autumn of year 16

Tallulah closed early, walked to Terrace Twelve, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. A dispute over the census flared up between Tallulah and Greta outside the tether docks; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Tallulah was hired to carry a grain scale from the tether docks to Terrace Twelve without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the census reached the tether docks. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the tax on doors. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 23, spring of year 16

Tallulah closed early, walked to the pollinators' hall, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Tallulah won 5 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Tallulah and Greta outside Terrace Twelve; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Leocadia came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 24, winter of year 16

A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the pollinators' hall, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Matthias came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Tallulah suspects Ignatius and is probably right. At the pollinators' hall, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 25, spring of year 16

Lysander came by asking about the tax on doors. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the tax on doors. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Tallulah closed early, walked to the tether docks, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance.

Entry 26, winter of year 16

Tallulah found a bundle of letters half-buried near the pollinators' hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Tallulah suspects Ignatius and is probably right. Tallulah closed early, walked to the tether docks, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance.

Entry 27, winter of year 16

A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xiomara came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. Tallulah spent the day counting stock at Terrace Twelve: 74 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Tallulah closed early, walked to the pollinators' hall, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Tallulah found a brass lantern half-buried near Terrace Twelve and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 28, summer of year 16

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Tallulah and Greta outside Terrace Twelve; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Tallulah closed early, walked to the tether docks, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Tallulah found a sack of salt half-buried near Terrace Twelve and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the harvest count reached Terrace Twelve. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 29, summer of year 17

Tallulah found a ledger half-buried near Terrace Twelve and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Tallulah repaired the brass lantern at Terrace Twelve for Ignatius, who paid in 79 seed-notes and a long story about who really won the regatta. Tallulah was hired to carry a sextant from Terrace Twelve to the root-cellar markets without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At Terrace Twelve, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 30, winter of year 17

Tallulah found a brass lantern half-buried near the tether docks and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the tether docks: 14 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the tether docks: 70 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the tether docks: 55 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Tallulah found a iron kettle half-buried near the tether docks and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 31, spring of year 17

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Tallulah and Greta outside Terrace Twelve; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the quarantine reached Terrace Twelve. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Tallulah and Greta outside Terrace Twelve; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At Terrace Twelve, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 32, spring of year 17

Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the Canopy Walk: 25 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. At the Canopy Walk, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the Canopy Walk: 63 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the new curfew. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Tallulah closed early, walked to the tether docks, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance.

Entry 33, spring of year 18

Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the tether docks: 71 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 34, summer of year 18

the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the census. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Tallulah found a bundle of letters half-buried near the root-cellar markets and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Tallulah and Greta outside the root-cellar markets; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 35, spring of year 18

Pilar came by asking about the harvest count. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. Tallulah won 17 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings. Tallulah won 43 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings.

Entry 36, winter of year 18

Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the pollinators' hall, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the pollinators' hall. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Winifred came by asking about the missing shipment. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. Tallulah spent the day counting stock at the pollinators' hall: 32 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short.

Entry 37, autumn of year 18

Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Tallulah found a wax seal half-buried near the root-cellar markets and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Tallulah for the password to the workshop. Tallulah laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 38, summer of year 18

At Terrace Twelve, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Tallulah repaired the clockwork bird at Terrace Twelve for Leocadia, who paid in 28 seed-notes and a long story about the tariff on salt. Tallulah was hired to carry a oilskin map from Terrace Twelve to the pollinators' hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Tallulah moved the glass float indoors, fed Halo, and wrote three lines to Matthias about the singing at the docks.

Entry 39, spring of year 18

Rumours about the harvest count reached the Canopy Walk. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Tallulah found a sack of salt half-buried near the Canopy Walk and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Kwame came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Tallulah said nothing useful and made tea instead. Tallulah found a sack of salt half-buried near the Canopy Walk and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 40, summer of year 18

Tallulah closed early, walked to Terrace Twelve, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Tallulah found a copper pipe half-buried near the pollinators' hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Verdance Stewardship sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Tallulah read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 41, winter of year 18

Tallulah was hired to carry a copper pipe from the root-cellar markets to the pollinators' hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Tallulah won 37 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about the census and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings. Tallulah closed early, walked to the pollinators' hall, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance.

Entry 42, spring of year 18

Tallulah won 53 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings. Tallulah repaired the cracked compass at Terrace Twelve for Dashiell, who paid in 23 seed-notes and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Tallulah closed early, walked to the tether docks, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Tallulah suspects Ignatius and is probably right.

Entry 43, summer of year 18

Tallulah closed early, walked to the Canopy Walk, and watched the lights come on. Halo followed at a distance. Tallulah won 33 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings. At the tether docks, Tallulah taught Ignatius how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Tallulah moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Halo, and wrote three lines to Matthias about the harvest count. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 44, spring of year 18

Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Tallulah suspects Ignatius and is probably right. Matthias visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the new curfew reached the tether docks. Tallulah pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 45, winter of year 19

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Tallulah and Greta outside Terrace Twelve; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Tallulah won 49 seed-notes from Greta on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on grandmother's mushroom dumplings. Tallulah repaired the spool of wire at Terrace Twelve for Eamon, who paid in 64 seed-notes and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Tallulah was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from Terrace Twelve to the tether docks without opening it, and mostly succeeded.