

Astrid Achterberg

Character Dossier

Proud of a craft nobody appreciates salvage pilot of the Academy of Vell

Overview

Astrid Achterberg is a salvage pilot living in the Academy of Vell. Astrid is 35 years old, originally from New Aster, and is known around the Hall of Echoes as proud of a craft nobody appreciates. In conversation Astrid mutters prices and measurements while thinking.

Background

Astrid arrived in the Academy of Vell 27 years ago after leaving New Aster under circumstances Astrid describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Faculty of Applied Wonders; the second was the one that stuck. Today Astrid works as a salvage pilot near the north observatory and is paid, when paid at all, in guilders.

Astrid learned the trade from Tallulah Castellan, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Astrid's life is with Nikolai Hartwell, over a matter neither will explain. The person Astrid trusts most is Phaedra Corvane.

Current goal: to see the ocean once. Greatest fear: the bells at midnight.

Personality and speech

Temperament: proud of a craft nobody appreciates.

Speech pattern: Astrid mutters prices and measurements while thinking.

Tells: when lying, Astrid mentions Pockets the ferret for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Astrid Achterberg
Role	salvage pilot
Home	the Academy of Vell
Hometown	New Aster
Age	35
Favourite dish	the tavern's fig and walnut bread
Pet	Pockets, a ferret
Lucky number	119

Workshop password	thistle-jade
Mentor	Tallulah Castellan
Rival	Nikolai Hartwell
Closest friend	Phaedra Corvane

Secret

Astrid owes Nikolai Hartwell a debt of 39 guilders that neither of them mentions.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Astrid: I am the salvage pilot. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Astrid: The tavern's fig and walnut bread. Do not tell Nikolai I said so.

Visitor: Is Pockets yours?

Astrid: Pockets belongs to nobody. Pockets tolerates me. Lucky number is 119, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, summer of year 19

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 45 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 2, winter of year 19

Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the greenhouse cloisters. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid was hired to carry a cracked compass from the greenhouse cloisters to the bell tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the comet. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 3, autumn of year 19

Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 4, summer of year 19

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the tax on doors. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance.

Entry 5, winter of year 19

Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Jorah came by asking about the comet. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid repaired the tin whistle at the north observatory for Xiomara, who paid in 37 guilders and a long story about the comet.

Entry 6, autumn of year 19

At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Astrid moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the comet. At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. Astrid found a oilskin map half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 7, autumn of year 19

At the candle library, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. Astrid found a spool of wire half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid repaired the ledger at the candle library for Phaedra, who paid in 24 guilders and a long story about the census. The weather turned. Astrid moved the grain scale indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the harvest count.

Entry 8, autumn of year 19

Jasper came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right.

Entry 9, winter of year 19

Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 20 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. Astrid found a bundle of letters half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 10, autumn of year 19

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right.

Entry 11, winter of year 19

Astrid won 36 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 31 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 12, winter of year 19

Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 67 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Astrid was hired to carry a hand bell from the Hall of Echoes to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 13, autumn of year 20

Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid was hired to carry a wax seal from the north observatory to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 47 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Astrid repaired the coil of rope at the north observatory for Ursula, who paid in 87 guilders and a long story about the census.

Entry 14, summer of year 20

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Astrid moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the census. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the bell tower. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Qadira came by asking about the tariff on salt. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 15, winter of year 20

Astrid closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Torvald came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the comet flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 16, summer of year 20

Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid won 27 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid won 52 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread.

Entry 17, spring of year 21

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid won 69 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid found a bundle of letters half-buried near the bell tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 18, winter of year 21

At the candle library, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 13 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short.

Entry 19, spring of year 21

Astrid repaired the sextant at the bell tower for Hyacinth, who paid in 88 guilders and a long story about the old tunnels. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the bell tower. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 20, spring of year 21

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the quarantine. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the old tunnels. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 21, winter of year 21

Astrid repaired the brass lantern at the greenhouse cloisters for Phaedra, who paid in 22 guilders and a long story about the tax on doors. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid won 11 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread.

Entry 22, summer of year 21

The weather turned. Astrid moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the tariff on salt. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the candle library; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Astrid closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance.

Entry 23, winter of year 21

Astrid repaired the wax seal at the greenhouse cloisters for Rhoswen, who paid in 57 guilders and a long story about the old tunnels. At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid found a glass float half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 24, spring of year 21

At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 25, spring of year 21

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance.

Entry 26, autumn of year 21

The weather turned. Astrid moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the new curfew. Rumours about the census reached the bell tower. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid won 19 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread.

Entry 27, autumn of year 21

Astrid found a spool of wire half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the north observatory to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Astrid moved the sextant indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the census.

Entry 28, autumn of year 21

Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 86 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance.

Entry 29, summer of year 21

A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 48 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Astrid was hired to carry a copper pipe from the north observatory to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid won 24 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread.

Entry 30, summer of year 21

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the harvest count. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Corvina came by asking about the comet. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid found a iron kettle half-buried near the bell tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 31, autumn of year 21

Astrid won 13 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 3 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. A dispute over the comet flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Astrid moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the census. Astrid found a clockwork bird half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 32, summer of year 21

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the bell tower to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid repaired the spool of wire at the bell tower for Caspian, who paid in 40 guilders and a long story about the census. Astrid found a coil of rope half-buried near the bell tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance.

Entry 33, summer of year 21

Astrid repaired the signal flag at the north observatory for Amadou, who paid in 79 guilders and a long story about the harvest count. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 22 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. Astrid won 81 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the census. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Winifred came by asking about who really won the regatta. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 34, spring of year 21

Astrid found a grain scale half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rurik came by asking about the comet. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Caspian came by asking about the missing shipment. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 35, autumn of year 21

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid found a clockwork bird half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid repaired the wax seal at the greenhouse cloisters for Pilar, who paid in 87 guilders and a long story about the tariff on salt. Hamish came by asking about who really won the regatta. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 36, spring of year 21

Astrid closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid repaired the bolt of linen at the north observatory for Yannick, who paid in 59 guilders and a long story about the singing at the docks. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the north observatory. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right.

Entry 37, spring of year 22

Astrid was hired to carry a signal flag from the candle library to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 38, spring of year 22

At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the greenhouse cloisters. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 39, winter of year 22

The weather turned. Astrid moved the sextant indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the missing shipment. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the north observatory. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid repaired the bundle of letters at the north observatory for Liora, who paid in 75 guilders and a long story about the tariff on salt.

Entry 40, winter of year 22

At the candle library, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. At the candle library, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 31 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. Astrid closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance.

Entry 41, spring of year 22

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 74 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 42, autumn of year 22

At the north observatory, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid won 59 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid repaired the sextant at the north observatory for Yevgenia, who paid in 59 guilders and a long story about the missing shipment.

Entry 43, spring of year 22

Astrid was hired to carry a sextant from the greenhouse cloisters to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid was hired to carry a iron kettle from the greenhouse cloisters to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid found a clockwork bird half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Astrid moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the singing at the docks. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 44, autumn of year 22

Astrid found a spool of wire half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Astrid moved the glass float indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the comet.

Entry 45, summer of year 23

Astrid repaired the ledger at the bell tower for Gustav, who paid in 59 guilders and a long story about the comet. Astrid repaired the sextant at the bell tower for Rhoswen, who paid in 30 guilders and a long story about the old tunnels. Greta came by asking about the new curfew. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 46, summer of year 23

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Astrid found a spool of wire half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the north observatory, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. Astrid found a wax seal half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right.

Entry 47, winter of year 23

Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the candle library. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid was hired to carry a glass float from the candle library to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid found a signal flag half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 48, autumn of year 23

At the candle library, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the candle library. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the candle library to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid repaired the brass lantern at the candle library for Astrid, who paid in 71 guilders and a long story about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 49, spring of year 23

Astrid found a bolt of linen half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid was hired to carry a oilskin map from the Hall of Echoes to the bell tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 50, summer of year 23

Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 28 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Juniper came by asking about the tariff on salt. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 51, summer of year 23

Rumours about the quarantine reached the bell tower. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the bell tower. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance.

Entry 52, summer of year 23

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid repaired the signal flag at the north observatory for Zubair, who paid in 3 guilders and a long story about the tax on doors.

Entry 53, summer of year 23

Isadora came by asking about the missing shipment. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Olwen came by asking about the singing at the docks. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the census. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 54, summer of year 23

At the candle library, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid repaired the sextant at the candle library for Dashiell, who paid in 71 guilders and a long story about the census. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the candle library; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 55, winter of year 23

Elowen came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid won 72 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Astrid moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the old tunnels.

Entry 56, spring of year 23

Astrid found a spool of wire half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the new curfew. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 57, autumn of year 23

Astrid closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. The weather turned. Astrid moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the missing shipment. Rumours about the comet reached the greenhouse cloisters. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 58, winter of year 23

Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the greenhouse cloisters. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Yannick came by asking about the missing shipment. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the greenhouse cloisters. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 59, winter of year 23

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid found a wax seal half-buried near the bell tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the bell tower: 47 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short.

Entry 60, summer of year 23

Quentin came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 13 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. The weather turned. Astrid moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the singing at the docks. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the census reached the Hall of Echoes. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 61, autumn of year 23

The weather turned. Astrid moved the signal flag indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the tariff on salt. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the candle library; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the candle library, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 75 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short.

Entry 62, winter of year 23

Orsolya came by asking about the tariff on salt. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid won 63 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid won 79 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the census. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 63, spring of year 23

Astrid repaired the hand bell at the bell tower for Kwame, who paid in 6 guilders and a long story about the comet. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid was hired to carry a iron kettle from the bell tower to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the bell tower. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid was hired to carry a iron kettle from the bell tower to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 64, winter of year 23

Astrid found a coil of rope half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 9 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 12 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Astrid closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance.

Entry 65, autumn of year 24

Astrid repaired the hand bell at the north observatory for Qadira, who paid in 49 guilders and a long story about the old tunnels. Rumours about the census reached the north observatory. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about the harvest count reached the north observatory. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 66, winter of year 24

Rumours about the new curfew reached the bell tower. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the missing shipment. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid was hired to carry a ledger from the bell tower to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 67, autumn of year 24

Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedora and is probably right. Astrid found a signal flag half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the tax on doors. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 68, winter of year 24

Astrid won 14 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the bell tower, Astrid taught Phaedora how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 69, spring of year 24

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the census. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid won 45 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the Hall of Echoes. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid won 2 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 70, spring of year 24

At the candle library, Astrid taught Phaedora how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the harvest count reached the candle library. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Astrid moved the glass float indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the new curfew. Astrid repaired the spool of wire at the candle library for Juniper, who paid in 25 guilders and a long story about the harvest count.

Entry 71, winter of year 24

Liora came by asking about the quarantine. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the bell tower: 14 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Astrid was hired to carry a ledger from the bell tower to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 72, autumn of year 24

Astrid found a bolt of linen half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 42 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. Astrid closed early, walked to the Hall of Echoes, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. The weather turned. Astrid moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about whether the bridge will hold. Astrid won 64 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread.

Entry 73, autumn of year 25

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Astrid found a brass lantern half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedora and is probably right.

Entry 74, winter of year 25

Astrid spent the day counting stock at the bell tower: 74 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedora and is probably right. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedora and is probably right. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedora and is probably right.

Entry 75, autumn of year 25

Astrid won 26 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid was hired to carry a hand bell from the candle library to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedora and is probably right.

Entry 76, autumn of year 25

A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Astrid moved the grain scale indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the census. The weather turned. Astrid moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the census.

Entry 77, summer of year 25

Astrid closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedora and is probably right. Astrid repaired the iron kettle at the north observatory for Hollis, who paid in 75 guilders and a long story about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 78, autumn of year 25

Astrid was hired to carry a grain scale from the Hall of Echoes to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedora how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 79, spring of year 25

Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the tax on doors. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 30 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short.

Entry 80, autumn of year 25

Astrid found a coil of rope half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Jasper came by asking about the tariff on salt. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 81, autumn of year 26

A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the Hall of Echoes; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. The weather turned. Astrid moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 82, winter of year 26

Astrid closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. The weather turned. Astrid moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the singing at the docks. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the bell tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 83, winter of year 26

Rumours about the census reached the greenhouse cloisters. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Astrid moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the tariff on salt.

Entry 84, spring of year 26

At the north observatory, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Astrid moved the glass float indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the new curfew. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Astrid was hired to carry a glass float from the north observatory to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 85, winter of year 26

Astrid spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 85 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. The weather turned. Astrid moved the glass float indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the tariff on salt. At the candle library, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 86, autumn of year 26

Astrid was hired to carry a ledger from the greenhouse cloisters to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid was hired to carry a wax seal from the greenhouse cloisters to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid repaired the wax seal at the greenhouse cloisters for Xiomara, who paid in 43 guilders and a long story about the missing shipment. Bram came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 87, winter of year 26

Astrid found a tin whistle half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid found a glass float half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid was hired to carry a signal flag from the Hall of Echoes to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 65 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short.

Entry 88, winter of year 26

Quentin came by asking about the singing at the docks. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid won 6 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid found a grain scale half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid won 25 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread.

Entry 89, summer of year 27

Astrid was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the north observatory to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Astrid moved the signal flag indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the old tunnels. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the quarantine. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 90, winter of year 27

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid found a tin whistle half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid was hired to carry a iron kettle from the Hall of Echoes to the bell tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 91, autumn of year 27

At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the Hall of Echoes, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 92, winter of year 27

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 46 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Astrid found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 93, winter of year 27

Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid found a bundle of letters half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid was hired to carry a coil of rope from the north observatory to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right.

Entry 94, summer of year 27

Astrid repaired the sack of salt at the bell tower for Xavier, who paid in 86 guilders and a long story about who really won the regatta. Rumours about the census reached the bell tower. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the bell tower: 62 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. At the bell tower, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Astrid was hired to carry a copper pipe from the bell tower to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 95, autumn of year 27

Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Rumours about the quarantine reached the candle library. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 96, summer of year 27

At the bell tower, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. At the bell tower, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Imogen came by asking about the tax on doors. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the bell tower to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 97, summer of year 27

Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on.

Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 56 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. Soren came by asking about the old tunnels. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid was hired to carry a iron kettle from the candle library to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 98, autumn of year 27

Astrid was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the greenhouse cloisters to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 63 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Astrid won 46 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 45 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 99, autumn of year 27

Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid won 60 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the north observatory, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 100, spring of year 27

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid found a copper pipe half-buried near the bell tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid won 9 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid was hired to carry a wax seal from the bell tower to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid was hired to carry a ledger from the bell tower to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 101, spring of year 27

The weather turned. Astrid moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the harvest count. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid found a brass lantern half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 20 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 102, winter of year 27

Astrid closed early, walked to the bell tower, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the candle library; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 103, spring of year 27

The weather turned. Astrid moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the quarantine. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid repaired the signal flag at the Hall of Echoes for Katarina, who paid in 4 guilders and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 104, autumn of year 27

Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the harvest count. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 105, winter of year 28

Astrid repaired the wax seal at the Hall of Echoes for Matthias, who paid in 35 guilders and a long story about the tariff on salt. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the Hall of Echoes. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 56 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Astrid repaired the bundle of letters at the Hall of Echoes for Fenwick, who paid in 18 guilders and a long story about the singing at the docks.

Entry 106, summer of year 28

Astrid spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 81 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. The weather turned. Astrid moved the hand bell indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the new curfew. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right.

Entry 107, winter of year 28

Rumours about the comet reached the Hall of Echoes. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid found a ledger half-buried near the Hall of Echoes and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 108, winter of year 28

Astrid repaired the coil of rope at the candle library for Wilhelmina, who paid in 66 guilders and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Astrid was hired to carry a signal flag from the candle library to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the new curfew. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 109, winter of year 29

Rumours about the missing shipment reached the north observatory. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Astrid moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the rumour of a second well. Astrid found a bolt of linen half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 110, spring of year 29

Astrid was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the Hall of Echoes to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedora and is probably right.

Entry 111, winter of year 29

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the bell tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Isadora came by asking about the new curfew. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 112, autumn of year 29

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the comet flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the bell tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedora and is probably right.

Entry 113, summer of year 30

The weather turned. Astrid moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about who really won the regatta. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid was hired to carry a hand bell from the bell tower to the greenhouse cloisters without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the bell tower: 40 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 114, autumn of year 30

The weather turned. Astrid moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the comet. Astrid found a spool of wire half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the candle library and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the comet flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the candle library; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the harvest count. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 115, summer of year 30

Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the bell tower. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the bell tower, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 116, winter of year 30

The weather turned. Astrid moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the census. Astrid closed early, walked to the north observatory, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 4 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short.

Entry 117, spring of year 31

Astrid closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. The weather turned. Astrid moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the tariff on salt. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance.

Entry 118, spring of year 31

Ravi came by asking about the comet. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Astrid closed early, walked to the candle library, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the harvest count. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 119, spring of year 31

Astrid spent the day counting stock at the north observatory: 64 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. At the north observatory, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the new curfew reached the north observatory. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 120, winter of year 31

Astrid won 73 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 70 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right.

Entry 121, winter of year 32

Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 19 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 122, autumn of year 32

Astrid repaired the iron kettle at the bell tower for Rhoswen, who paid in 26 guilders and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Astrid was hired to carry a sack of salt from the bell tower to the candle library without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 123, autumn of year 32

Astrid spent the day counting stock at the greenhouse cloisters: 36 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. Liora came by asking about the quarantine. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid repaired the spool of wire at the greenhouse cloisters for Thaddeus, who paid in 50 guilders and a long story about the quarantine. Halcyon came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 124, winter of year 32

A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the comet flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the candle library; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 125, winter of year 32

Astrid won 34 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the missing shipment. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the north observatory, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the north observatory. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 126, spring of year 32

Rumours about the missing shipment reached the candle library. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the candle library: 81 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid repaired the bolt of linen at the candle library for Caspian, who paid in 89 guilders and a long story about the tariff on salt.

Entry 127, spring of year 32

Astrid closed early, walked to the greenhouse cloisters, and watched the lights come on. Pockets followed at a distance. Astrid won 19 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Dashiell came by asking about who really won the regatta. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 128, winter of year 32

Greta came by asking about the harvest count. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the census flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the north observatory; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 129, summer of year 33

Astrid found a glass float half-buried near the greenhouse cloisters and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid won 50 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid was hired to carry a coil of rope from the greenhouse cloisters to the Hall of Echoes without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the greenhouse cloisters. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 130, autumn of year 33

Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right. Astrid won 44 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid spent the day counting stock at the Hall of Echoes: 13 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 131, spring of year 33

Rumours about the missing shipment reached the north observatory. Astrid pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Astrid moved the glass float indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the rumour of a second well. Astrid found a sextant half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Tallulah visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Astrid won 84 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread.

Entry 132, autumn of year 33

the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid repaired the tin whistle at the Hall of Echoes for Dorothea, who paid in 55 guilders and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Astrid repaired the clockwork bird at the Hall of Echoes for Qadira, who paid in 21 guilders and a long story about the old tunnels.

Entry 133, summer of year 34

Ravi came by asking about the old tunnels. Astrid said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Astrid found a iron kettle half-buried near the north observatory and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 134, autumn of year 34

A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the bell tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Astrid found a grain scale half-buried near the bell tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Astrid was hired to carry a glass float from the bell tower to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 135, summer of year 34

Astrid won 82 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid won 78 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. At the bell tower, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 136, winter of year 34

Astrid was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the Hall of Echoes to the north observatory without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Astrid won 18 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Astrid suspects Phaedra and is probably right.

Entry 137, spring of year 34

At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the missing shipment. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Astrid repaired the spool of wire at the greenhouse cloisters for Hamish, who paid in 28 guilders and a long story about the tariff on salt.

Entry 138, spring of year 34

At the greenhouse cloisters, Astrid taught Phaedra how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Astrid for the password to the workshop. Astrid laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Faculty of Applied Wonders sent a notice about the harvest count. Astrid read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Astrid and Nikolai outside the greenhouse cloisters; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 139, autumn of year 34

The weather turned. Astrid moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Pockets, and wrote three lines to Tallulah about the quarantine. Astrid won 83 guilders from Nikolai on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's fig and walnut bread. Astrid repaired the bolt of linen at the bell tower for Valentin, who paid in 68 guilders and a long story about who really won the regatta.