

Greta Corvane

Character Dossier

Sardonic with a soft center ring announcer of the Frostwall garrison on the northern border

Overview

Greta Corvane is a ring announcer living in the Frostwall garrison on the northern border. Greta is 78 years old, originally from the Copper Coast, and is known around the east rampart as sardonic with a soft center. In conversation Greta ends sentences with 'you understand?'.

Background

Greta arrived in the Frostwall garrison on the northern border 30 years ago after leaving the Copper Coast under circumstances Greta describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Frostwall Legion; the second was the one that stuck. Today Greta works as a ring announcer near the quartermaster's stores and is paid, when paid at all, in iron pennies.

Greta learned the trade from Zubair Oakhurst, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Greta's life is with Tiberius Okonkwo, over a matter neither will explain. The person Greta trusts most is Ysolde Fairweather.

Current goal: to win the harvest fair for the fifth time. Greatest fear: crowds that go quiet all at once.

Personality and speech

Temperament: sardonic with a soft center.

Speech pattern: Greta ends sentences with 'you understand?'.

Tells: when lying, Greta mentions Captain the raven for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Greta Corvane
Role	ring announcer
Home	the Frostwall garrison on the northern border
Hometown	the Copper Coast
Age	78
Favourite dish	hand-rolled sesame brittle
Pet	Captain, a raven
Lucky number	530

Workshop password	umber-saffron
Mentor	Zubair Oakhurst
Rival	Tiberius Okonkwo
Closest friend	Ysolde Fairweather

Secret

Greta secretly funds an orphanage in the Copper Coast and would be mortified if anyone found out.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Greta: I am the ring announcer. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Greta: Hand-rolled sesame brittle. Do not tell Tiberius I said so.

Visitor: Is Captain yours?

Greta: Captain belongs to nobody. Captain tolerates me. Lucky number is 530, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, summer of year 39

A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the east rampart to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta found a sack of salt half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 2, summer of year 39

Greta spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 77 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Greta closed early, walked to the signal tower, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 3, summer of year 39

The weather turned. Greta moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the census. Brigid came by asking about who really won the regatta. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the mess hall, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 4, spring of year 39

Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta found a wax seal half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 5, autumn of year 40

The weather turned. Greta moved the hand bell indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the price of lamp oil. At the quartermaster's stores, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. At the quartermaster's stores, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 6, autumn of year 40

Greta won 45 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Amadou came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. Greta was hired to carry a coil of rope from the mess hall to the signal tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 75 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short.

Entry 7, winter of year 40

Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the frozen moat, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 8, autumn of year 40

Greta found a copper pipe half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta repaired the grain scale at the quartermaster's stores for Orsolya, who paid in 70 iron pennies and a long story about the harvest count. At the quartermaster's stores, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. At the quartermaster's stores, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 9, spring of year 41

Greta found a bundle of letters half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta found a copper pipe half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the census. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the mess hall, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 10, spring of year 41

Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Greta spent the day counting stock at the signal tower: 70 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the signal tower. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Greta moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the tax on doors. Greta won 76 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle.

Entry 11, winter of year 41

Greta spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 30 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Greta won 13 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Greta repaired the glass float at the east rampart for Rhoswen, who paid in 10 iron pennies and a long story about the rumour of a second well. The weather turned. Greta moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about who really won the regatta. The weather turned. Greta moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about who really won the regatta.

Entry 12, autumn of year 41

The weather turned. Greta moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the old tunnels. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Teodora came by asking about the census. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. Greta won 90 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle.

Entry 13, autumn of year 41

Greta was hired to carry a iron kettle from the quartermaster's stores to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the old tunnels. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the quartermaster's stores; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 14, spring of year 41

Greta found a sack of salt half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta repaired the pair of spectacles at the frozen moat for Hyacinth, who paid in 19 iron pennies and a long story about the quarantine. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 15, summer of year 41

Greta was hired to carry a wax seal from the east rampart to the quartermaster's stores without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 37 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Greta found a cracked compass half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance.

Entry 16, winter of year 41

Greta closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta won 62 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Greta repaired the signal flag at the mess hall for Xanthe, who paid in 79 iron pennies and a long story about the old tunnels.

Entry 17, autumn of year 41

Greta was hired to carry a cracked compass from the quartermaster's stores to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 11 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Greta was hired to carry a sextant from the quartermaster's stores to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the quartermaster's stores; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 18, summer of year 41

At the quartermaster's stores, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. Greta spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 33 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance.

Entry 19, winter of year 41

At the signal tower, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the quarantine reached the signal tower. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Emeric came by asking about the missing shipment. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 20, autumn of year 41

A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the frozen moat; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the comet reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Greta moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the quarantine. Greta won 12 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle.

Entry 21, autumn of year 41

Greta closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Tomasz came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. Greta spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 62 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short.

Entry 22, winter of year 41

Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 84 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 23, winter of year 41

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the census. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the mess hall; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right.

Entry 24, winter of year 41

Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Greta moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the missing shipment. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the census. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 25, spring of year 41

Greta won 25 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Greta repaired the cracked compass at the frozen moat for Nkechi, who paid in 32 iron pennies and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Greta won 79 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right.

Entry 26, spring of year 41

Greta was hired to carry a glass float from the frozen moat to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta found a iron kettle half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the frozen moat, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 27, winter of year 41

Greta closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta repaired the hand bell at the signal tower for Tomasz, who paid in 57 iron pennies and a long story about the tax on doors. At the signal tower, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta found a brass lantern half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 28, winter of year 41

At the mess hall, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. At the mess hall, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. Greta won 36 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. At the mess hall, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Greta repaired the bundle of letters at the mess hall for Yevgenia, who paid in 90 iron pennies and a long story about the old tunnels.

Entry 29, autumn of year 41

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Greta repaired the wax seal at the signal tower for Tiberius, who paid in 28 iron pennies and a long story about the missing shipment. Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance.

Entry 30, summer of year 41

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Greta repaired the glass float at the signal tower for Fitzgerald, who paid in 36 iron pennies and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Greta repaired the glass float at the signal tower for Magnus, who paid in 77 iron pennies and a long story about the tariff on salt.

Entry 31, autumn of year 41

A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Greta was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the signal tower to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the signal tower to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 32, winter of year 41

Greta closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. The weather turned. Greta moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the rumour of a second well. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the harvest count. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Greta closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance.

Entry 33, summer of year 42

The weather turned. Greta moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the comet. Greta was hired to carry a ledger from the mess hall to the quartermaster's stores without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta was hired to carry a wax seal from the mess hall to the quartermaster's stores without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Greta moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about who really won the regatta. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the mess hall. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 34, summer of year 42

Greta spent the day counting stock at the signal tower: 23 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 35, summer of year 42

A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta found a wax seal half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 36, spring of year 42

Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Rumours about the comet reached the mess hall. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Greta won 63 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle.

Entry 37, winter of year 42

Phaedra came by asking about the comet. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta found a spool of wire half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Greta moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the comet.

Entry 38, autumn of year 42

Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 25 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. Ysolde came by asking about the singing at the docks. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 39, autumn of year 42

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the quartermaster's stores; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Greta moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the missing shipment. Greta closed early, walked to the signal tower, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta won 88 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Greta found a copper pipe half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 40, autumn of year 42

A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the quartermaster's stores; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta found a coil of rope half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta won 63 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Anouk came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 41, summer of year 43

Greta spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 36 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. Greta repaired the bolt of linen at the mess hall for Corvina, who paid in 50 iron pennies and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta won 44 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the mess hall. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 42, spring of year 43

A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta repaired the oilskin map at the east rampart for Caspian, who paid in 64 iron pennies and a long story about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 43, autumn of year 43

Ulla came by asking about the missing shipment. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Greta moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the quarantine. Greta spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 61 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. The weather turned. Greta moved the ledger indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 44, winter of year 43

Greta closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the quartermaster's stores; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right.

Entry 45, summer of year 43

Greta found a iron kettle half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. At the frozen moat, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Greta closed early, walked to the signal tower, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right.

Entry 46, summer of year 43

Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the comet. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Greta found a ledger half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 47, winter of year 43

Greta repaired the spool of wire at the quartermaster's stores for Umberto, who paid in 6 iron pennies and a long story about the quarantine. Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. The weather turned. Greta moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the rumour of a second well. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Greta moved the ledger indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the census.

Entry 48, summer of year 43

Greta spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 67 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Greta found a tin whistle half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta was hired to carry a tin whistle from the quartermaster's stores to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 49, summer of year 43

Greta was hired to carry a sack of salt from the frozen moat to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Greta moved the signal flag indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the tariff on salt. Greta spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 64 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 50, summer of year 43

Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the mess hall. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Greta repaired the glass float at the mess hall for Jasper, who paid in 48 iron pennies and a long story about the missing shipment. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the mess hall to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right.

Entry 51, autumn of year 43

Greta was hired to carry a tin whistle from the east rampart to the quartermaster's stores without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta was hired to carry a cracked compass from the east rampart to the quartermaster's stores without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the missing shipment. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 52, autumn of year 43

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 6 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short.

Entry 53, summer of year 43

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Greta closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance.

Entry 54, autumn of year 43

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the missing shipment. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the signal tower. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Greta found a tin whistle half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right.

Entry 55, winter of year 43

Greta won 69 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Greta found a hand bell half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Greta moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the tariff on salt. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the quartermaster's stores. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Greta moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the harvest count.

Entry 56, autumn of year 43

Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Greta was hired to carry a spool of wire from the frozen moat to the signal tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta closed early, walked to the signal tower, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 52 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short.

Entry 57, spring of year 44

Greta repaired the glass float at the mess hall for Corvina, who paid in 34 iron pennies and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the mess hall. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 58, winter of year 44

Greta found a glass float half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta repaired the signal flag at the frozen moat for Sixten, who paid in 83 iron pennies and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 59, summer of year 44

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the tax on doors. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about the new curfew reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. The weather turned. Greta moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the old tunnels.

Entry 60, spring of year 44

Greta was hired to carry a ledger from the signal tower to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 61, autumn of year 45

Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta won 50 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Greta won 13 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle.

Entry 62, spring of year 45

Greta won 33 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Greta spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 73 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Greta found a cracked compass half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 63, summer of year 45

Greta won 7 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Greta spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 60 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right.

Entry 64, summer of year 45

A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Greta moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the old tunnels. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 65, autumn of year 46

Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. The weather turned. Greta moved the glass float indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the comet. Greta spent the day counting stock at the signal tower: 26 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Greta found a clockwork bird half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 66, summer of year 46

Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the quartermaster's stores; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta repaired the cracked compass at the quartermaster's stores for Matthias, who paid in 28 iron pennies and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. At the quartermaster's stores, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 67, winter of year 46

Greta found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the east rampart, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Greta closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta won 84 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Greta repaired the sextant at the east rampart for Greta, who paid in 69 iron pennies and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 68, spring of year 46

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the old tunnels. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta was hired to carry a hand bell from the east rampart to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Kenji came by asking about the harvest count. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 69, spring of year 46

Greta repaired the spool of wire at the frozen moat for Petra, who paid in 9 iron pennies and a long story about the harvest count. Greta was hired to carry a grain scale from the frozen moat to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta repaired the sextant at the frozen moat for Gideon, who paid in 85 iron pennies and a long story about the old tunnels.

Entry 70, summer of year 46

Greta found a glass float half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the frozen moat, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the new curfew. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right.

Entry 71, winter of year 46

A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the frozen moat; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta was hired to carry a tin whistle from the frozen moat to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta was hired to carry a brass lantern from the frozen moat to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the frozen moat, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 72, winter of year 46

A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Greta moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the rumour of a second well. Greta repaired the tin whistle at the quartermaster's stores for Greta, who paid in 53 iron pennies and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 73, winter of year 46

Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance.

Entry 74, spring of year 46

A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the signal tower, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Greta moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the tariff on salt.

Entry 75, winter of year 46

Rumours about the harvest count reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 76, autumn of year 46

Greta repaired the sack of salt at the mess hall for Olwen, who paid in 29 iron pennies and a long story about the tax on doors. Greta was hired to carry a tin whistle from the mess hall to the signal tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the mess hall; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 77, autumn of year 47

Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta repaired the glass float at the mess hall for Oduya, who paid in 84 iron pennies and a long story about the tariff on salt. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 78, spring of year 47

Ingrid came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. Greta closed early, walked to the signal tower, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta was hired to carry a wax seal from the east rampart to the signal tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta found a grain scale half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 79, winter of year 47

Greta spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 75 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. At the east rampart, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 80, winter of year 47

Greta spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 39 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. Greta closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. At the mess hall, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Greta moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the price of lamp oil. Greta was hired to carry a ledger from the mess hall to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 81, autumn of year 47

A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the east rampart, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Greta moved the sextant indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 82, autumn of year 47

Greta repaired the copper pipe at the quartermaster's stores for Gustav, who paid in 20 iron pennies and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Greta repaired the wax seal at the quartermaster's stores for Osric, who paid in 22 iron pennies and a long story about the price of lamp oil. The weather turned. Greta moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the rumour of a second well. Greta spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 43 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. Greta found a cracked compass half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 83, spring of year 47

Greta repaired the oilskin map at the frozen moat for Baptiste, who paid in 15 iron pennies and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the frozen moat. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 84, spring of year 47

Marisol came by asking about the quarantine. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. Greta closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta repaired the oilskin map at the frozen moat for Cassius, who paid in 33 iron pennies and a long story about the missing shipment. Greta was hired to carry a oilskin map from the frozen moat to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta was hired to carry a iron kettle from the frozen moat to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 85, spring of year 47

At the signal tower, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the comet flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. Greta was hired to carry a grain scale from the signal tower to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the signal tower to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 86, winter of year 47

Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. At the east rampart, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 87, autumn of year 47

A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta repaired the pair of spectacles at the signal tower for Kestrel, who paid in 47 iron pennies and a long story about the tax on doors. Greta found a cracked compass half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta was hired to carry a tin whistle from the signal tower to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 88, summer of year 47

Greta spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 83 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. Greta found a iron kettle half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 89, autumn of year 47

Greta won 53 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. A dispute over the comet flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta repaired the brass lantern at the east rampart for Wren, who paid in 10 iron pennies and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 90, spring of year 47

Greta was hired to carry a wax seal from the quartermaster's stores to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta was hired to carry a ledger from the quartermaster's stores to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta repaired the bundle of letters at the quartermaster's stores for Benedikt, who paid in 19 iron pennies and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Greta found a brass lantern half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 91, winter of year 47

Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Greta found a clockwork bird half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta found a signal flag half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 92, spring of year 47

Greta repaired the bundle of letters at the signal tower for Ursula, who paid in 6 iron pennies and a long story about the new curfew. Fenwick came by asking about the tax on doors. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. Greta won 15 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle.

Entry 93, autumn of year 48

Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. At the signal tower, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Gideon came by asking about the singing at the docks. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the missing shipment. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 94, autumn of year 48

At the frozen moat, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. Eamon came by asking about who really won the regatta. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. Greta spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 52 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short.

Entry 95, winter of year 48

Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the mess hall to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 96, summer of year 48

The weather turned. Greta moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about who really won the regatta. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop.

Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta repaired the oilskin map at the east rampart for Leocadia, who paid in 51 iron pennies and a long story about the tax on doors. Greta repaired the ledger at the east rampart for Baptiste, who paid in 84 iron pennies and a long story about who really won the regatta.

Entry 97, summer of year 48

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Greta found a clockwork bird half-buried near the signal tower and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the new curfew. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 98, spring of year 48

Greta found a sextant half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. The weather turned. Greta moved the signal flag indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the quarantine.

Entry 99, spring of year 48

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta found a bundle of letters half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the mess hall to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Greta moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about who really won the regatta.

Entry 100, winter of year 48

The weather turned. Greta moved the grain scale indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the quarantine. Greta won 84 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. Greta won 53 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle.

Entry 101, spring of year 48

Petra came by asking about the tax on doors. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. Greta was hired to carry a oilskin map from the quartermaster's stores to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right. Greta was hired to carry a copper pipe from the quartermaster's stores to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance.

Entry 102, autumn of year 48

Greta was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the quartermaster's stores to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 32 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Greta repaired the signal flag at the quartermaster's stores for Eamon, who paid in 80 iron pennies and a long story about the census.

Entry 103, autumn of year 48

Greta repaired the pair of spectacles at the frozen moat for Hyacinth, who paid in 5 iron pennies and a long story about who really won the regatta. Greta repaired the iron kettle at the frozen moat for Rosalind, who paid in 6 iron pennies and a long story about the tariff on salt. Greta won 78 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the harvest count. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 104, summer of year 48

Nadira came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the quartermaster's stores, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Greta was hired to carry a oilskin map from the quartermaster's stores to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 83 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Hollis came by asking about the tax on doors. Greta said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 105, winter of year 49

Greta was hired to carry a grain scale from the mess hall to the quartermaster's stores without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta found a iron kettle half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 106, spring of year 49

Greta repaired the glass float at the frozen moat for Dashiell, who paid in 33 iron pennies and a long story about who really won the regatta. Greta found a cracked compass half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 107, winter of year 49

At the mess hall, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the mess hall. Greta pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Greta suspects Ysolde and is probably right.

Entry 108, summer of year 49

Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Greta read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Greta repaired the coil of rope at the frozen moat for Hollis, who paid in 87 iron pennies and a long story about the comet.

Entry 109, autumn of year 49

At the east rampart, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Zubair visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Greta won 54 iron pennies from Tiberius on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on hand-rolled sesame brittle. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta found a hand bell half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 110, winter of year 49

Greta found a oilskin map half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 111, summer of year 49

Greta spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 77 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. Greta was hired to carry a ledger from the mess hall to the quartermaster's stores without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 112, spring of year 49

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Greta and Tiberius outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Greta closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Captain followed at a distance. At the signal tower, Greta taught Ysolde how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 113, autumn of year 50

A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 82 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. The weather turned. Greta moved the grain scale indoors, fed Captain, and wrote three lines to Zubair about the right way to mend a net. A stranger asked Greta for the password to the workshop. Greta laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Greta found a coil of rope half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.