

Xanthe Blackwater

Character Dossier

Cheerfully pessimistic retired duelist of the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light

Overview

Xanthe Blackwater is a retired duelist living in the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light. Xanthe is 45 years old, originally from Kettering, and is known around the big top as cheerfully pessimistic. In conversation Xanthe counts things aloud when nervous.

Background

Xanthe arrived in the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light 15 years ago after leaving Kettering under circumstances Xanthe describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Ringmaster's troupe; the second was the one that stuck. Today Xanthe works as a retired duelist near the menagerie wagons and is paid, when paid at all, in copper bits.

Xanthe learned the trade from Quentin Kaldwin, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Xanthe's life is with Kenji Marchetti, over a matter neither will explain. The person Xanthe trusts most is Quillon Norwood.

Current goal: to be forgotten by the people who remember the fire. Greatest fear: the far side of the big top.

Personality and speech

Temperament: cheerfully pessimistic.

Speech pattern: Xanthe counts things aloud when nervous.

Tells: when lying, Xanthe mentions Nutmeg the rabbit for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Xanthe Blackwater
Role	retired duelist
Home	the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light
Hometown	Kettering
Age	45
Favourite dish	the tavern's tamarind chicken
Pet	Nutmeg, a rabbit

Lucky number	857
Workshop password	quartz-tide
Mentor	Quentin Kaldwin
Rival	Kenji Marchetti
Closest friend	Quillon Norwood

Secret

Xanthe has a sibling nobody in the traveling Circus of Marrow and Light knows about, living quietly in Kettering.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Xanthe: I am the retired duelist. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Xanthe: The tavern's tamarind chicken. Do not tell Kenji I said so.

Visitor: Is Nutmeg yours?

Xanthe: Nutmeg belongs to nobody. Nutmeg tolerates me. Lucky number is 857, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, winter of year 14

Olwen came by asking about the harvest count. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 2, spring of year 14

Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe found a copper pipe half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 3, autumn of year 14

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 31 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the census and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 4, autumn of year 14

Xanthe won 53 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe repaired the grain scale at the costume tent for Octavia, who paid in 39 copper bits and a long story about the census.

Entry 5, winter of year 14

Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the big top to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe was hired to carry a copper pipe from the big top to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 6, autumn of year 14

Astrid came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe found a bolt of linen half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe was hired to carry a copper pipe from the ticket wagon to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 7, winter of year 14

A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe repaired the spool of wire at the costume tent for Wilhelmina, who paid in 83 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 8, winter of year 14

Viggo came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a hand bell from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Greta came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 2 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Dashiell came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 9, spring of year 15

Xanthe repaired the iron kettle at the menagerie wagons for Osric, who paid in 67 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta. Xanthe was hired to carry a iron kettle from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 10, autumn of year 15

Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Rumours about the census reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe won 49 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 11, summer of year 15

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 20 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe was hired to carry a tin whistle from the ticket wagon to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe repaired the glass float at the ticket wagon for Phaedra, who paid in 33 copper bits and a long story about the census.

Entry 12, winter of year 15

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 18 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short. Xanthe repaired the bundle of letters at the costume tent for Rurik, who paid in 76 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 37 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Rumours about the harvest count reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 13, spring of year 15

Xanthe repaired the tin whistle at the cookfire for Xavier, who paid in 32 copper bits and a long story about the census. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 14, summer of year 15

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 15, spring of year 15

Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 16, spring of year 15

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 17, spring of year 15

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe repaired the sack of salt at the big top for Wren, who paid in 59 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 18, summer of year 15

Xanthe found a sextant half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 19, winter of year 15

Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the costume tent to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 20, summer of year 15

Xanthe won 12 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 21, summer of year 16

Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the coil of rope at the big top for Vesna, who paid in 50 copper bits and a long story about the census. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 22, spring of year 16

Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe won 79 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the census and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe was hired to carry a cracked compass from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 23, summer of year 16

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 14 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Kwame came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the quarantine. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 61 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. Xanthe found a grain scale half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 24, autumn of year 16

Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 25, autumn of year 16

Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Tomasz came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 26, spring of year 16

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 27, summer of year 16

Xanthe was hired to carry a oilskin map from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tax on doors. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe won 72 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 28, spring of year 16

Xanthe repaired the signal flag at the costume tent for Sunniva, who paid in 26 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 29, summer of year 17

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the signal flag indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tariff on salt. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 88 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 30, summer of year 17

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about who really won the regatta. Xanthe found a sextant half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe won 35 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 31, winter of year 17

Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 34 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the comet flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 32, winter of year 17

At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 33, spring of year 17

At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Elowen came by asking about the old tunnels. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 34, autumn of year 17

Dashiell came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 35, autumn of year 17

Rumours about the missing shipment reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors. Xanthe repaired the oilskin map at the ticket wagon for Kwame, who paid in 43 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks.

Entry 36, summer of year 17

At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Fenwick came by asking about the tax on doors. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe won 13 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 37, summer of year 17

Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe won 60 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 38, summer of year 17

Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Rurik came by asking about the tax on doors. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 39, spring of year 17

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 37 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Xanthe found a brass lantern half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 40, winter of year 17

Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 41, spring of year 17

Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the cookfire to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 42, summer of year 17

Xanthe won 10 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe won 11 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the comet. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rosalind came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 43, summer of year 17

Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 44, autumn of year 17

Xanthe won 45 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 45, spring of year 17

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe found a hand bell half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 46, winter of year 17

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 54 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 2 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Xanthe found a signal flag half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 47, summer of year 17

Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 48, spring of year 17

A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Rumours about the census reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Rumours about the comet reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 49, summer of year 17

Xanthe was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe won 71 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe won 40 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe was hired to carry a spool of wire from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe was hired to carry a copper pipe from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 50, autumn of year 17

At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 79 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 51, autumn of year 17

At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 52, autumn of year 17

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 58 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Ingrid came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 53, summer of year 17

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Ignatius came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 54, summer of year 17

Xanthe found a sack of salt half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 55, spring of year 17

Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 50 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 33 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short.

Entry 56, autumn of year 17

Xanthe found a oilskin map half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 29 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the harvest count.

Entry 57, winter of year 18

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 33 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe found a clockwork bird half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 58, winter of year 18

Xanthe was hired to carry a signal flag from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe won 62 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors.

Entry 59, winter of year 18

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sextant indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the quarantine. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 19 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 60, spring of year 18

Xanthe repaired the iron kettle at the cookfire for Xiomara, who paid in 77 copper bits and a long story about the missing shipment. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the cracked compass at the cookfire for Tomasz, who paid in 63 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold.

Entry 61, winter of year 18

Xanthe repaired the sack of salt at the ticket wagon for Caspian, who paid in 63 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 24 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. Rumours about the quarantine reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the clockwork bird at the ticket wagon for Matthias, who paid in 64 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks.

Entry 62, winter of year 18

Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the hand bell indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 63, spring of year 18

Dashiell came by asking about the old tunnels. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Thaddeus came by asking about the harvest count. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe repaired the ledger at the ticket wagon for Ingrid, who paid in 39 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta.

Entry 64, summer of year 18

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 40 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 65, autumn of year 19

Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Pilar came by asking about the quarantine. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 66, winter of year 19

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tax on doors. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 16 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 67, autumn of year 19

Xanthe repaired the copper pipe at the ticket wagon for Hollis, who paid in 37 copper bits and a long story about the census. Xanthe found a cracked compass half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe found a brass lantern half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 68, summer of year 19

At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Marisol came by asking about the census. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 69, summer of year 19

Xanthe repaired the pair of spectacles at the menagerie wagons for Freya, who paid in 35 copper bits and a long story about the harvest count. Xanthe won 32 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe was hired to carry a brass lantern from the menagerie wagons to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe found a clockwork bird half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 70, summer of year 19

Ulla came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe repaired the hand bell at the cookfire for Zora, who paid in 66 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Rumours about the comet reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 71, spring of year 19

Ravi came by asking about the census. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the singing at the docks. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the new curfew.

Entry 72, spring of year 19

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the new curfew. Xanthe won 34 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 14 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 73, autumn of year 20

Xanthe found a sextant half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe repaired the pair of spectacles at the big top for Fitzgerald, who paid in 51 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe was hired to carry a iron kettle from the big top to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 74, autumn of year 20

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 12 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe found a spool of wire half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Qadira came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 75, winter of year 20

Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe won 59 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the singing at the docks. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 76, summer of year 20

At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet.

Entry 77, winter of year 21

A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Ravi came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the comet. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Pilar came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 78, autumn of year 21

At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sack of salt indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the harvest count. Tomasz came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe found a glass float half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 79, autumn of year 21

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe was hired to carry a tin whistle from the costume tent to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Rumours about the census reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 80, autumn of year 21

Xanthe repaired the signal flag at the cookfire for Viggo, who paid in 4 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Winifred came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 81, autumn of year 22

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 35 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the grain scale indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe repaired the sextant at the cookfire for Yevgenia, who paid in 65 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. Rumours about the new curfew reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 82, spring of year 22

Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the glass float indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. Wendeline came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 83, autumn of year 22

Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 84, summer of year 22

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 76 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sextant indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 85, winter of year 22

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the harvest count reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Isadora came by asking about the harvest count. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 22 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 86, winter of year 22

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe repaired the wax seal at the big top for Ravi, who paid in 60 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe repaired the sextant at the big top for Benedikt, who paid in 12 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt. Xanthe won 53 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 87, spring of year 22

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 88, spring of year 22

Xanthe was hired to carry a hand bell from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 89, autumn of year 22

Xanthe repaired the glass float at the costume tent for Imogen, who paid in 49 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the new curfew. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 12 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe found a coil of rope half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 90, winter of year 22

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 47 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Xanthe repaired the grain scale at the menagerie wagons for Lucienne, who paid in 10 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors.

Entry 91, spring of year 22

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 82 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 92, spring of year 22

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe was hired to carry a grain scale from the menagerie wagons to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 93, winter of year 22

At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the census. Xanthe found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 94, summer of year 22

Xanthe repaired the copper pipe at the ticket wagon for Xiomara, who paid in 11 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe repaired the wax seal at the ticket wagon for Gustav, who paid in 61 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 95, autumn of year 22

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 96, summer of year 22

Xanthe won 62 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 19 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 97, autumn of year 22

Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe was hired to carry a iron kettle from the cookfire to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe won 39 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 98, winter of year 22

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe found a wax seal half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Zubair came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 99, winter of year 22

Xanthe found a oilskin map half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 100, summer of year 22

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 14 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short.

Entry 101, summer of year 23

Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 102, spring of year 23

Xanthe won 74 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Rhoswen came by asking about the harvest count. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe repaired the pair of spectacles at the big top for Yusuf, who paid in 40 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold.

Entry 103, winter of year 23

At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe won 77 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 104, spring of year 23

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe repaired the brass lantern at the ticket wagon for Ignatius, who paid in 37 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 105, spring of year 24

Xanthe won 66 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 106, autumn of year 24

Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Gideon came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 107, spring of year 24

Rumours about the tax on doors reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Thaddeus came by asking about the quarantine. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a ledger from the ticket wagon to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 108, autumn of year 24

A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe was hired to carry a sack of salt from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the comet flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 66 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 39 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short.

Entry 109, spring of year 24

Gideon came by asking about the census. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe found a grain scale half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 110, winter of year 24

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 55 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 111, autumn of year 24

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about who really won the regatta. Rhoswen came by asking about the singing at the docks. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Yusuf came by asking about the missing shipment. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a ledger from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 112, autumn of year 24

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Nikolai came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe repaired the signal flag at the menagerie wagons for Gustav, who paid in 43 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta. Xanthe won 10 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 113, winter of year 25

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 30 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 77 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Xavier came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 114, summer of year 25

Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the price of lamp oil. Ravi came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 115, winter of year 25

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the hand bell indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the quarantine. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 116, winter of year 25

Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the hand bell indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the new curfew. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the cookfire to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 117, autumn of year 26

Rumours about the census reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe won 5 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe won 34 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe was hired to carry a hand bell from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 118, autumn of year 26

Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe was hired to carry a coil of rope from the ticket wagon to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 119, summer of year 26

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 120, spring of year 26

Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tariff on salt. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 121, spring of year 27

At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 122, autumn of year 27

At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe found a bolt of linen half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 123, summer of year 27

Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe found a spool of wire half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 124, winter of year 27

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 46 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Xanthe won 80 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe found a wax seal half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 125, winter of year 27

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the wax seal indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe repaired the copper pipe at the menagerie wagons for Rosalind, who paid in 10 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 126, summer of year 27

At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe repaired the oilskin map at the cookfire for Imogen, who paid in 47 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Xanthe repaired the bolt of linen at the cookfire for Kestrel, who paid in 38 copper bits and a long story about the harvest count. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Olwen came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 127, winter of year 27

Xanthe repaired the tin whistle at the ticket wagon for Rhoswen, who paid in 14 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 128, winter of year 27

Rumours about the new curfew reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 129, spring of year 28

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 76 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the signal flag indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the price of lamp oil. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 130, autumn of year 28

Xanthe repaired the clockwork bird at the ticket wagon for Fitzgerald, who paid in 62 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe found a grain scale half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 131, summer of year 28

Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 18 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 132, summer of year 28

Nkechi came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 87 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short.

Entry 133, winter of year 28

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe found a bolt of linen half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 134, summer of year 28

Xanthe won 51 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the signal flag indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe repaired the bundle of letters at the big top for Phaedra, who paid in 12 copper bits and a long story about the census.

Entry 135, summer of year 28

Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe repaired the bolt of linen at the ticket wagon for Yevgenia, who paid in 65 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. Xanthe found a wax seal half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 136, winter of year 28

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe found a grain scale half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 26 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 137, winter of year 28

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the wax seal indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 138, winter of year 28

Sable came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe won 81 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Vesna came by asking about the old tunnels. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 139, winter of year 28

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 18 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 140, winter of year 28

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the grain scale indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe repaired the signal flag at the big top for Calloway, who paid in 44 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt. Xanthe won 34 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 141, winter of year 29

Xanthe won 9 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe found a brass lantern half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the ticket wagon to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 142, summer of year 29

Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 143, spring of year 29

Xanthe was hired to carry a ledger from the ticket wagon to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the quarantine reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe won 17 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 144, spring of year 29

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe was hired to carry a ledger from the menagerie wagons to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe won 13 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 7 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 145, autumn of year 30

Percival came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 41 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Rumours about the census reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 146, winter of year 30

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 86 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe found a wax seal half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 147, winter of year 30

Caspian came by asking about the quarantine. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the comet flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 148, summer of year 30

Xanthe won 62 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the census and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe repaired the pair of spectacles at the menagerie wagons for Yusuf, who paid in 6 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. Eamon came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 149, winter of year 30

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Rosalind came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 150, winter of year 30

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 7 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Greta came by asking about the tax on doors. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the comet reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 151, summer of year 30

Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Farida came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 152, winter of year 30

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 153, autumn of year 31

At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 78 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short.

Entry 154, winter of year 31

Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe won 70 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 155, autumn of year 31

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 57 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 156, winter of year 31

Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 157, spring of year 31

At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 48 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 158, winter of year 31

Xanthe won 64 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe repaired the spool of wire at the costume tent for Benedikt, who paid in 68 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 159, summer of year 31

Rumours about the tax on doors reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the hand bell at the big top for Sixten, who paid in 11 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe won 83 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 160, summer of year 31

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 60 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Xanthe won 16 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the census and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 161, summer of year 31

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe repaired the signal flag at the costume tent for Corvina, who paid in 23 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt.

Entry 162, spring of year 31

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tax on doors. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 163, autumn of year 31

Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the signal flag indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. Sable came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 164, summer of year 31

Xanthe was hired to carry a coil of rope from the ticket wagon to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 75 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe won 59 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 165, summer of year 32

At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 74 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Xanthe was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the ticket wagon to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 3 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Xanthe was hired to carry a iron kettle from the ticket wagon to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 166, autumn of year 32

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 167, autumn of year 32

Rumours about the census reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the rumour of a second well flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe was hired to carry a sack of salt from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 168, winter of year 32

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 169, autumn of year 33

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe was hired to carry a copper pipe from the ticket wagon to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sextant indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tariff on salt.

Entry 170, winter of year 33

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the harvest count. Xanthe won 11 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 171, spring of year 33

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 34 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 28 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 172, autumn of year 33

Xanthe won 75 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sack of salt indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 173, summer of year 33

Xanthe repaired the copper pipe at the big top for Valentin, who paid in 58 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Rumours about the census reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 174, autumn of year 33

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 33 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. Xanthe found a wax seal half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the cookfire to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 175, winter of year 33

Freya came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Vesna came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe found a grain scale half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe repaired the pair of spectacles at the menagerie wagons for Zora, who paid in 49 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 176, winter of year 33

Ysolde came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the new curfew reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 177, summer of year 34

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors.

Entry 178, spring of year 34

A dispute over the comet flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe repaired the iron kettle at the big top for Fenwick, who paid in 52 copper bits and a long story about the census.

Entry 179, autumn of year 34

At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe found a spool of wire half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe repaired the wax seal at the ticket wagon for Elowen, who paid in 75 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 180, summer of year 34

A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 181, autumn of year 34

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe won 33 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the census and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe won 25 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe repaired the oilskin map at the big top for Nadira, who paid in 16 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 182, summer of year 34

Xanthe found a clockwork bird half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe found a grain scale half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe won 40 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe found a copper pipe half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 183, autumn of year 34

Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the tin whistle at the cookfire for Lysander, who paid in 25 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 184, spring of year 34

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the quarantine reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tariff on salt. Xanthe won 29 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 185, spring of year 35

Rumours about the missing shipment reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 186, summer of year 35

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the quarantine reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the brass lantern at the ticket wagon for Tiberius, who paid in 41 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 187, summer of year 35

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Sixten came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe was hired to carry a pair of spectacles from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 188, summer of year 35

Xavier came by asking about the singing at the docks. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the glass float indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 189, summer of year 36

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 190, summer of year 36

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 57 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 191, spring of year 36

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the grain scale at the ticket wagon for Hyacinth, who paid in 19 copper bits and a long story about the comet.

Entry 192, summer of year 36

Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 64 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short.

Entry 193, spring of year 36

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 51 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Teodora came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 194, autumn of year 36

Xanthe repaired the signal flag at the big top for Xanthe, who paid in 9 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. Phaedra came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the new curfew reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 195, autumn of year 36

Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 20 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 196, spring of year 36

Xanthe was hired to carry a sack of salt from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the comet reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe was hired to carry a cracked compass from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 197, summer of year 36

A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Amadou came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 198, spring of year 36

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the census. Xanthe won 5 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe won 61 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the ledger indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. Xanthe repaired the bolt of linen at the big top for Yevgenia, who paid in 13 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks.

Entry 199, spring of year 36

Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe repaired the spool of wire at the menagerie wagons for Thaddeus, who paid in 47 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Xanthe won 24 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 200, winter of year 36

A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe repaired the copper pipe at the costume tent for Tallulah, who paid in 9 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt. Xanthe repaired the coil of rope at the costume tent for Orsolya, who paid in 23 copper bits and a long story about the comet. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 201, spring of year 36

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about who really won the regatta. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 41 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 202, spring of year 36

Quillon came by asking about the singing at the docks. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 40 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the ticket wagon to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe found a grain scale half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 203, autumn of year 36

At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Rumours about the harvest count reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 204, winter of year 36

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the harvest count. Torvald came by asking about the old tunnels. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe won 72 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 205, autumn of year 37

Teodora came by asking about the tariff on salt. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the coil of rope at the menagerie wagons for Lysander, who paid in 74 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 206, spring of year 37

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the hand bell indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sack of salt indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 207, autumn of year 37

Xanthe won 14 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 35 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe repaired the sextant at the cookfire for Ursula, who paid in 55 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta.

Entry 208, spring of year 37

Xanthe found a hand bell half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 209, autumn of year 38

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 27 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Bram came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 210, autumn of year 38

Xanthe found a bolt of linen half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe won 8 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the spool of wire at the menagerie wagons for Imogen, who paid in 79 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe found a spool of wire half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 211, winter of year 38

Tomasz came by asking about the old tunnels. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 16 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short.

Entry 212, winter of year 38

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 50 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the quarantine reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 213, winter of year 39

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the singing at the docks. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 214, summer of year 39

At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 215, summer of year 39

Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 15 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the quarantine.

Entry 216, summer of year 39

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Sunniva came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the grain scale indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tariff on salt.

Entry 217, autumn of year 39

Xanthe won 46 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the census and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the ledger indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 218, summer of year 39

Tiberius came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the big top to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe was hired to carry a grain scale from the big top to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 219, spring of year 39

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 90 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe found a sextant half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 220, summer of year 39

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the grain scale indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe repaired the ledger at the big top for Ignatius, who paid in 13 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels. Xanthe won 54 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the census and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Nikolai came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe found a coil of rope half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 221, autumn of year 39

Xanthe repaired the bolt of linen at the big top for Hollis, who paid in 3 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe won 90 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 222, autumn of year 39

Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe won 13 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe won 30 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 223, spring of year 39

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe was hired to carry a signal flag from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 224, spring of year 39

Astrid came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Torvald came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 20 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 225, spring of year 40

Xanthe was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the menagerie wagons to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe repaired the cracked compass at the menagerie wagons for Hamish, who paid in 16 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 226, spring of year 40

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe was hired to carry a copper pipe from the menagerie wagons to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 227, winter of year 40

Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the comet reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 74 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short.

Entry 228, autumn of year 40

Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe found a sextant half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 229, autumn of year 41

Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the menagerie wagons to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 84 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Xanthe found a oilskin map half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the harvest count reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 230, spring of year 41

Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 58 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Xanthe won 70 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe found a grain scale half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 231, autumn of year 41

Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe found a glass float half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 232, summer of year 41

Xanthe won 36 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe repaired the copper pipe at the menagerie wagons for Winifred, who paid in 4 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 233, autumn of year 41

Rumours about the old tunnels reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the oilskin map at the menagerie wagons for Imogen, who paid in 6 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. Xanthe found a brass lantern half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 234, autumn of year 41

Xanthe repaired the hand bell at the big top for Octavia, who paid in 61 copper bits and a long story about the census. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the singing at the docks. Xanthe repaired the bundle of letters at the big top for Xanthe, who paid in 74 copper bits and a long story about the census.

Entry 235, spring of year 41

Xanthe repaired the bundle of letters at the big top for Nadira, who paid in 11 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about who really won the regatta. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 236, summer of year 41

Quentin came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 37 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the ticket wagon to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 237, autumn of year 41

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 73 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. Xanthe won 69 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 238, winter of year 41

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the missing shipment. Rumours about the new curfew reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 239, summer of year 41

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe found a iron kettle half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the ledger indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the census. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 240, winter of year 41

Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 241, autumn of year 41

Xanthe repaired the cracked compass at the costume tent for Zelda, who paid in 16 copper bits and a long story about the missing shipment. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Greta came by asking about the tax on doors. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 242, summer of year 41

Xanthe repaired the brass lantern at the ticket wagon for Ingrid, who paid in 17 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. Tiberius came by asking about the quarantine. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe found a copper pipe half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 243, spring of year 41

Rumours about the old tunnels reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe won 18 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 64 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 244, spring of year 41

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the harvest count.

Entry 245, spring of year 42

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the signal flag indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the missing shipment. Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 246, summer of year 42

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 247, summer of year 42

Mara came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 89 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 248, spring of year 42

Freya came by asking about the singing at the docks. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 249, winter of year 43

Xanthe won 67 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe repaired the hand bell at the costume tent for Benedikt, who paid in 62 copper bits and a long story about the census. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 250, spring of year 43

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 33 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 8 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 251, spring of year 43

Xanthe won 81 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 10 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 252, autumn of year 43

Xanthe was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the ticket wagon to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the grain scale indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe won 63 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 253, summer of year 44

Xanthe repaired the signal flag at the costume tent for Hyacinth, who paid in 65 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Rowan came by asking about the census. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe found a oilskin map half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 254, spring of year 44

Hamish came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe repaired the oilskin map at the menagerie wagons for Xanthe, who paid in 28 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 255, spring of year 44

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 31 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. Xanthe won 46 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe was hired to carry a hand bell from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 256, winter of year 44

Xanthe repaired the glass float at the ticket wagon for Bram, who paid in 63 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 257, autumn of year 45

Xanthe won 76 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the cookfire to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Yusuf came by asking about the tax on doors. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 258, autumn of year 45

Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe won 46 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Viggo came by asking about the missing shipment. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe won 2 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 259, winter of year 45

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe found a grain scale half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 60 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short.

Entry 260, spring of year 45

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sextant indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the singing at the docks. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors.

Entry 261, spring of year 46

Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 262, spring of year 46

Xanthe repaired the spool of wire at the big top for Rosalind, who paid in 87 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the harvest count. Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 263, spring of year 46

Seraphine came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 14 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 264, spring of year 46

Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Eamon came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 265, spring of year 46

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe was hired to carry a copper pipe from the costume tent to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 266, winter of year 46

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Lucienne came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe repaired the iron kettle at the menagerie wagons for Fitzgerald, who paid in 63 copper bits and a long story about the missing shipment. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 267, summer of year 46

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe repaired the iron kettle at the ticket wagon for Hollis, who paid in 17 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 268, spring of year 46

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sack of salt indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tariff on salt. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 269, spring of year 47

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the quarantine. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe found a cracked compass half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Zubair came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 270, spring of year 47

A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe was hired to carry a grain scale from the costume tent to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe won 87 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 271, spring of year 47

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 272, spring of year 47

Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the wax seal at the menagerie wagons for Rurik, who paid in 24 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the quarantine. Xanthe was hired to carry a ledger from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 273, autumn of year 48

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 274, winter of year 48

Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the ledger at the menagerie wagons for Quillon, who paid in 29 copper bits and a long story about the comet. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 275, winter of year 48

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe won 53 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 276, spring of year 48

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 67 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 277, autumn of year 49

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Katarina came by asking about the harvest count. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 278, summer of year 49

Eamon came by asking about the missing shipment. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the comet reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 279, spring of year 49

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 88 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 280, autumn of year 49

At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe repaired the oilskin map at the cookfire for Bram, who paid in 79 copper bits and a long story about the comet. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 281, spring of year 49

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 23 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 69 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short.

Entry 282, autumn of year 49

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 68 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short.

Entry 283, autumn of year 49

Xanthe repaired the sack of salt at the ticket wagon for Soren, who paid in 85 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe found a wax seal half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 284, summer of year 49

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xiomara came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 69 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short.

Entry 285, summer of year 50

Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 46 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 286, winter of year 50

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 287, autumn of year 50

Ingrid came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the costume tent to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 288, autumn of year 50

At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 289, winter of year 50

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the grain scale indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the harvest count. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 70 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Zeph came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 290, autumn of year 50

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 291, spring of year 50

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 292, summer of year 50

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the glass float indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the ticket wagon to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe found a coil of rope half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 293, autumn of year 51

Xanthe repaired the grain scale at the big top for Sixten, who paid in 75 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 294, summer of year 51

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 295, summer of year 51

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tax on doors. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Yusuf came by asking about who really won the regatta. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 296, autumn of year 51

Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the hand bell indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the singing at the docks. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the harvest count.

Entry 297, summer of year 51

Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe found a iron kettle half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the census.

Entry 298, autumn of year 51

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 76 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. Xanthe repaired the grain scale at the costume tent for Tiberius, who paid in 6 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 299, summer of year 51

Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 40 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short.

Entry 300, winter of year 51

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Tiberius came by asking about the tariff on salt. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 301, winter of year 51

Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 31 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the copper pipe at the costume tent for Emeric, who paid in 45 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold.

Entry 302, autumn of year 51

Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe found a coil of rope half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 303, spring of year 51

At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe repaired the cracked compass at the ticket wagon for Rurik, who paid in 15 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe found a spool of wire half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 304, autumn of year 51

Xanthe found a oilskin map half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 52 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 20 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short.

Entry 305, winter of year 52

Xanthe found a iron kettle half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe won 76 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 306, spring of year 52

Xanthe was hired to carry a tin whistle from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe won 14 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the census. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 77 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short.

Entry 307, spring of year 52

At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 77 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note.

Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 308, autumn of year 52

Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe was hired to carry a sack of salt from the costume tent to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the ledger indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the singing at the docks. Xanthe won 21 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 309, winter of year 53

Xanthe repaired the ledger at the ticket wagon for Tomasz, who paid in 52 copper bits and a long story about the new curfew. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet.

Entry 310, spring of year 53

Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the ticket wagon to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 311, spring of year 53

Xanthe repaired the iron kettle at the menagerie wagons for Greta, who paid in 56 copper bits and a long story about the census. Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe found a hand bell half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 312, winter of year 53

Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe won 70 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Sunniva came by asking about the census. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 19 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short.

Entry 313, spring of year 54

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 7 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short. Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the cookfire to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 314, summer of year 54

Xanthe found a sextant half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 26 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe won 88 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 315, autumn of year 54

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a bolt of linen on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the spool of wire at the menagerie wagons for Viggo, who paid in 59 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks.

Entry 316, autumn of year 54

Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the comet reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe was hired to carry a spool of wire from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 317, winter of year 55

A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe won 22 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the quarantine and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 29 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 318, winter of year 55

Xanthe found a sextant half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe repaired the bundle of letters at the ticket wagon for Xanthe, who paid in 37 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 319, summer of year 55

Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe was hired to carry a tin whistle from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 44 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 320, autumn of year 55

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 51 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe repaired the clockwork bird at the ticket wagon for Xanthe, who paid in 55 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe repaired the grain scale at the ticket wagon for Nadira, who paid in 23 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Xanthe found a signal flag half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 321, autumn of year 55

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 32 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short. Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe was hired to carry a copper pipe from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 322, autumn of year 55

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the signal flag indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the quarantine. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Fenwick came by asking about the old tunnels. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 323, winter of year 55

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the new curfew. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 324, spring of year 55

Xanthe repaired the pair of spectacles at the ticket wagon for Matthias, who paid in 42 copper bits and a long story about the comet. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors. Xanthe won 34 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 325, autumn of year 56

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 326, spring of year 56

Rumours about the harvest count reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 327, summer of year 56

A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Dorothea came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 328, autumn of year 56

Xanthe found a glass float half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 55 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 329, autumn of year 57

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 62 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 79 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short.

Entry 330, spring of year 57

Xanthe was hired to carry a sack of salt from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 72 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 82 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short.

Entry 331, summer of year 57

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Juniper came by asking about who really won the regatta.

Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 332, winter of year 57

Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe was hired to carry a tin whistle from the menagerie wagons to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe repaired the ledger at the menagerie wagons for Octavia, who paid in 57 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe was hired to carry a signal flag from the menagerie wagons to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 333, winter of year 57

Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 334, autumn of year 57

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the quarantine reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 335, summer of year 57

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 336, autumn of year 57

A dispute over the comet flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the quarantine reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe was hired to carry a ledger from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 337, spring of year 58

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 22 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Leocadia came by asking about the census. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 338, summer of year 58

At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 339, spring of year 58

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe was hired to carry a coil of rope from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 340, spring of year 58

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the census reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the coil of rope at the cookfire for Zora, who paid in 27 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. Xanthe found a iron kettle half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 341, spring of year 59

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe repaired the ledger at the cookfire for Ulla, who paid in 4 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors.

Entry 342, autumn of year 59

Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe was hired to carry a iron kettle from the big top to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 69 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Xanthe won 19 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 343, spring of year 59

Xanthe won 85 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the census and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 20 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short.

Entry 344, winter of year 59

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 28 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. Xanthe was hired to carry a oilskin map from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 345, spring of year 60

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe won 7 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe repaired the sextant at the big top for Eamon, who paid in 67 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors.

Entry 346, winter of year 60

Xanthe won 70 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 68 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe won 87 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 347, winter of year 60

Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 348, winter of year 60

At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe found a brass lantern half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 349, spring of year 61

Rurik came by asking about the census. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Ingrid came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 350, summer of year 61

Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the cookfire to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the hand bell at the cookfire for Halcyon, who paid in 87 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the wax seal indoors, fed

Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors.

Entry 351, spring of year 61

Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Wilhelmina came by asking about the singing at the docks. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Astrid came by asking about the census. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 352, summer of year 61

Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe won 86 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the old tunnels and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Juniper came by asking about the tariff on salt. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 353, spring of year 62

Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 354, spring of year 62

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the new curfew. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 65 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Xanthe was hired to carry a oilskin map from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe found a coil of rope half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 355, spring of year 62

A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe found a hand bell half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 55 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 356, winter of year 62

Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe repaired the grain scale at the ticket wagon for Kenji, who paid in 34 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 357, summer of year 62

Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 358, winter of year 62

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Ingrid came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 359, spring of year 62

Xanthe was hired to carry a wax seal from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 59 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 360, autumn of year 62

Rumours about the tax on doors reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the brass lantern at the costume tent for Katarina, who paid in 87 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Olwen came by asking about the old tunnels. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe found a clockwork bird half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 361, spring of year 62

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the comet. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe was hired to carry a spool of wire from the cookfire to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 362, summer of year 62

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the hand bell indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 363, autumn of year 62

Xanthe won 80 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the singing at the docks. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 364, spring of year 62

Xanthe won 66 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tax on doors. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 365, winter of year 63

Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the ledger indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the missing shipment. Xanthe found a cracked compass half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 366, spring of year 63

Xanthe repaired the cracked compass at the big top for Greta, who paid in 59 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt. Xanthe was hired to carry a copper pipe from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe won 75 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 367, summer of year 63

Umberto came by asking about the missing shipment. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe repaired the clockwork bird at the menagerie wagons for Noor, who paid in 47 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 368, autumn of year 63

Xanthe won 46 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 72 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 58 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short.

Entry 369, winter of year 63

Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 370, winter of year 63

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about the new curfew reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 371, winter of year 63

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe won 30 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sack of salt indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the new curfew. Rumours about the comet reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 372, winter of year 63

Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe found a clockwork bird half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 373, spring of year 63

Rumours about the tax on doors reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 374, winter of year 63

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Rumours about the comet reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 27 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 375, autumn of year 63

Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe found a coil of rope half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 376, winter of year 63

Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe won 59 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Kwame came by asking about the old tunnels. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a tin whistle from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 377, winter of year 63

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 10 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short.

Entry 378, autumn of year 63

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 379, spring of year 63

A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tariff on salt.

Entry 380, spring of year 63

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe was hired to carry a tin whistle from the ticket wagon to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe won 73 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe won 55 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 381, autumn of year 63

At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 73 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Tiberius came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 382, summer of year 63

Xanthe was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rurik came by asking about the singing at the docks. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 383, spring of year 63

At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. Corvina came by asking about the harvest count. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe found a brass lantern half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the quarantine reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 384, summer of year 63

Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the quarantine reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 385, winter of year 64

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the singing at the docks. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 39 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe repaired the hand bell at the costume tent for Lucienne, who paid in 78 copper bits and a long story about the harvest count.

Entry 386, spring of year 64

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe found a brass lantern half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Farida came by asking about the tax on doors. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 387, winter of year 64

Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 20 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the census.

Entry 388, spring of year 64

Xanthe found a signal flag half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe won 64 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the pair of spectacles indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 26 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 389, spring of year 64

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the glass float indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the census. Xanthe found a sack of salt half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the big top to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 390, autumn of year 64

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the cracked compass indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 391, summer of year 64

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 39 of everything, except the sextant, which is always short. A dispute over the comet flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 392, winter of year 64

Hamish came by asking about the old tunnels. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the costume tent to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 393, winter of year 64

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe won 55 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 35 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 394, spring of year 64

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Greta came by asking about the tariff on salt. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 395, spring of year 64

Yusuf came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the census. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe won 18 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 396, spring of year 64

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe repaired the bundle of letters at the ticket wagon for Xiomara, who paid in 60 copper bits and a long story about the comet.

Entry 397, winter of year 64

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 5 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Eamon came by asking about the singing at the docks. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe found a signal flag half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 398, summer of year 64

Calloway came by asking about the tax on doors. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 399, summer of year 64

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the comet. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real cracked compass from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 400, spring of year 64

A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the harvest count reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe won 79 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 401, winter of year 65

Xanthe was hired to carry a tin whistle from the big top to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the grain scale indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the sextant indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. Xanthe won 56 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 402, winter of year 65

Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe repaired the copper pipe at the costume tent for Xiomara, who paid in 2 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 403, summer of year 65

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 404, summer of year 65

Xanthe repaired the ledger at the ticket wagon for Quentin, who paid in 88 copper bits and a long story about the harvest count. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 405, spring of year 66

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe found a cracked compass half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 406, summer of year 66

Xanthe found a hand bell half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Yannick came by asking about the census. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe repaired the cracked compass at the menagerie wagons for Sable, who paid in 14 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 407, winter of year 66

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the quarantine reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 408, winter of year 66

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 409, summer of year 66

A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe won 70 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 410, summer of year 66

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about whether the bridge will hold. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 411, spring of year 66

At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 23 of everything, except the sack of salt, which is always short. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 412, summer of year 66

Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 413, winter of year 66

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the quarantine. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 414, autumn of year 66

Xanthe was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the cookfire to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the hand bell indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the harvest count. Xanthe was hired to carry a sack of salt from the cookfire to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 415, autumn of year 66

Xanthe found a spool of wire half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Jasper came by asking about the missing shipment. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 416, summer of year 66

A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 3 of everything, except the tin whistle, which is always short.

Entry 417, autumn of year 67

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe found a wax seal half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 418, autumn of year 67

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 17 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 419, winter of year 67

Xanthe was hired to carry a brass lantern from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rumours about the census reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors.

Entry 420, winter of year 67

Xanthe repaired the spool of wire at the menagerie wagons for Farida, who paid in 41 copper bits and a long story about the census. Xanthe won 74 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 421, spring of year 67

Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe found a coil of rope half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 422, winter of year 67

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Ysolde came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 423, spring of year 67

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Someone left a oilskin map on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe won 66 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 424, summer of year 67

Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the clockwork bird at the cookfire for Seraphine, who paid in 76 copper bits and a long story about who really won the regatta. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe was hired to carry a oilskin map from the cookfire to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 425, summer of year 68

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 426, winter of year 68

Xanthe was hired to carry a bolt of linen from the ticket wagon to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 13 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe won 21 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 427, winter of year 68

Xanthe was hired to carry a coil of rope from the cookfire to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe repaired the sextant at the cookfire for Mara, who paid in 75 copper bits and a long story about the census. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the right way to mend a net.

Entry 428, spring of year 68

Xanthe found a clockwork bird half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Liora came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 19 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe won 82 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 429, spring of year 69

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the price of lamp oil. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 430, winter of year 69

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the coil of rope indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 431, winter of year 69

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the ledger indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the quarantine. Rumours about the tax on doors reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 19 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short.

Entry 432, summer of year 69

At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 433, winter of year 69

Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe found a coil of rope half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe repaired the wax seal at the menagerie wagons for Kenji, who paid in 81 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real brass lantern from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 434, summer of year 69

A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the costume tent. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the comet flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right.

Entry 435, summer of year 69

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the menagerie wagons: 17 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the census reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 436, spring of year 69

Magnus came by asking about the tariff on salt. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe repaired the oilskin map at the big top for Mara, who paid in 12 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Hollis came by asking about the singing at the docks. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 437, spring of year 70

Someone left a ledger on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Mara came by asking about the missing shipment. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 438, winter of year 70

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe repaired the cracked compass at the cookfire for Octavia, who paid in 21 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine. Xanthe found a clockwork bird half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 439, spring of year 70

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe repaired the pair of spectacles at the big top for Juniper, who paid in 75 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the price of lamp oil for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tariff on salt. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 440, spring of year 70

Xanthe won 46 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 27 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 441, summer of year 71

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone. Gustav came by asking about the tariff on salt. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe found a copper pipe half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 442, autumn of year 71

Xanthe won 70 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe repaired the coil of rope at the cookfire for Umberto, who paid in 88 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 67 of everything, except the bolt of linen, which is always short.

Entry 443, winter of year 71

Xanthe was hired to carry a copper pipe from the cookfire to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 33 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the wax seal indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the price of lamp oil. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 444, summer of year 71

Xanthe found a hand bell half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe repaired the grain scale at the menagerie wagons for Delphine, who paid in 90 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 445, spring of year 72

Anouk came by asking about the tariff on salt. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe repaired the iron kettle at the menagerie wagons for Juniper, who paid in 68 copper bits and a long story about the census. Xanthe won 31 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the harvest count and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 446, autumn of year 72

Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe won 15 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 447, summer of year 72

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 448, summer of year 72

Xanthe was hired to carry a iron kettle from the ticket wagon to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 82 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the comet. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 449, autumn of year 72

Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Rumours about the price of lamp oil reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe found a clockwork bird half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 450, spring of year 72

Rumours about the comet reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the tin whistle at the big top for Dorothea, who paid in 49 copper bits and a long story about the tariff on salt. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 451, winter of year 72

Xanthe won 29 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 88 of everything, except the coil of rope, which is always short. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the census reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 452, spring of year 72

Xanthe won 43 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the tariff on salt and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe repaired the sextant at the ticket wagon for Ignatius, who paid in 69 copper bits and a long story about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 453, winter of year 73

At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real oilskin map from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the singing at the docks flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 454, autumn of year 73

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tax on doors. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the menagerie wagons to the costume tent without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the missing shipment. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 455, spring of year 73

Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 22 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 456, summer of year 73

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the brass lantern indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about who really won the regatta. Qadira came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe won 14 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 457, summer of year 73

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a clockwork bird on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Oduya came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tax on doors for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 458, autumn of year 73

Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe repaired the sack of salt at the costume tent for Kwame, who paid in 51 copper bits and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the new curfew. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real tin whistle from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 459, spring of year 73

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the tariff on salt for an hour and parted better friends than before. Corvina came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 460, summer of year 73

Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 461, summer of year 74

Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe repaired the oilskin map at the ticket wagon for Rowan, who paid in 77 copper bits and a long story about the comet. Xanthe was hired to carry a brass lantern from the ticket wagon to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 462, summer of year 74

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the glass float indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the rumour of a second well. Rumours about the quarantine reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the quarantine for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 463, winter of year 74

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the big top: 59 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the old tunnels. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a signal flag on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Hamish came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 464, summer of year 74

A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 20 of everything, except the bundle of letters, which is always short. Xanthe repaired the glass float at the cookfire for Winifred, who paid in 57 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 465, spring of year 74

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe closed early, walked to the costume tent, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe found a wax seal half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 466, autumn of year 74

Xanthe found a brass lantern half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe repaired the bolt of linen at the big top for Yevgenia, who paid in 2 copper bits and a long story about the census. Xanthe found a oilskin map half-buried near the big top and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe closed early, walked to the menagerie wagons, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 467, spring of year 74

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 58 of everything, except the copper pipe, which is always short. Xanthe repaired the tin whistle at the costume tent for Petra, who paid in 86 copper bits and a long story about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe was hired to carry a sextant from the costume tent to the menagerie wagons without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Winifred came by asking about the harvest count. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 468, winter of year 74

A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 469, spring of year 74

the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about whether the bridge will hold for an hour and parted better friends than before. Someone left a tin whistle on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe was hired to carry a spool of wire from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 470, spring of year 74

Matthias came by asking about the tariff on salt. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the singing at the docks. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Rhoswen came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 471, winter of year 74

Zubair came by asking about the harvest count. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the price of lamp oil. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe repaired the cracked compass at the ticket wagon for Greta, who paid in 20 copper bits and a long story about the harvest count.

Entry 472, summer of year 74

Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 473, autumn of year 74

Xanthe was hired to carry a grain scale from the big top to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Someone left a cracked compass on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 474, winter of year 74

Xanthe won 89 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on.

Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe won 28 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the rumour of a second well and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 475, spring of year 74

Sunniva came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a clockwork bird from the big top to the cookfire without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A dispute over the census flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the big top; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 476, winter of year 74

At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the glass float indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. Xanthe found a oilskin map half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. A dispute over the tax on doors flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the ticket wagon; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 477, autumn of year 75

Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 73 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the census. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 478, autumn of year 75

At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 40 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Xanthe won 16 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 479, autumn of year 75

At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe found a hand bell half-buried near the cookfire and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real ledger from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the cookfire: 82 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 480, summer of year 75

Xanthe repaired the spool of wire at the menagerie wagons for Greta, who paid in 46 copper bits and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Liora came by asking about the new curfew. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Dashiell came by asking about the tax on doors. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the menagerie wagons, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the menagerie wagons. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 481, autumn of year 76

Rumours about the quarantine reached the cookfire. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a hand bell on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the glass float indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the tariff on salt. Xanthe won 76 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 482, winter of year 76

At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Fitzgerald came by asking about the harvest count. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe won 74 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the price of lamp oil and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken. At the big top, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 483, autumn of year 76

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the signal flag indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the comet for an hour and parted better friends than before. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 484, spring of year 76

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the old tunnels. Someone left a brass lantern on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the ticket wagon: 35 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short.

Entry 485, summer of year 76

Xanthe found a tin whistle half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over who really won the regatta flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe was hired to carry a glass float from the costume tent to the ticket wagon without opening it, and mostly succeeded. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the tax on doors. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 32 of everything, except the signal flag, which is always short.

Entry 486, summer of year 76

Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the quarantine. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Freya came by asking about the comet. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Xanthe was hired to carry a signal flag from the costume tent to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 487, summer of year 76

At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone. Xanthe repaired the hand bell at the costume tent for Emeric, who paid in 17 copper bits and a long story about the tax on doors. Xanthe found a bolt of linen half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real hand bell from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 488, spring of year 76

Xanthe found a bundle of letters half-buried near the ticket wagon and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Xanthe moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the comet. Rumours about the comet reached the ticket wagon. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 489, spring of year 76

Xanthe repaired the pair of spectacles at the costume tent for Fenwick, who paid in 22 copper bits and a long story about the singing at the docks. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe repaired the grain scale at the costume tent for Torvald, who paid in 83 copper bits and a long story about the quarantine.

Entry 490, spring of year 76

The weather turned. Xanthe moved the spool of wire indoors, fed Nutmeg, and wrote three lines to Quentin about the missing shipment. Xanthe closed early, walked to the ticket wagon, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. Xanthe won 88 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 491, summer of year 76

Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. Yevgenia came by asking about the quarantine. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the ticket wagon, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real bolt of linen from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 492, autumn of year 76

Xanthe found a ledger half-buried near the menagerie wagons and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe was hired to carry a cracked compass from the menagerie wagons to the big top without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Xanthe repaired the brass lantern at the menagerie wagons for Sunniva, who paid in 69 copper bits and a long story about the old tunnels. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the menagerie wagons; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Xanthe won 37 copper bits from Kenji on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on the tavern's tamarind chicken.

Entry 493, winter of year 76

A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the cookfire; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the cookfire, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the census. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about who really won the regatta for an hour and parted better friends than before. the Ringmaster's troupe sent a notice about the harvest count. Xanthe read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 494, autumn of year 76

Xanthe found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the costume tent and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Xanthe spent the day counting stock at the costume tent: 63 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. Xanthe closed early, walked to the cookfire, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance. A dispute over whether the bridge will hold flared up between Xanthe and Kenji outside the costume tent; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 495, autumn of year 76

A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Xanthe for the password to the workshop. Xanthe laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. At the costume tent, Xanthe taught Quillon how to tell a real clockwork bird from a fake one by weight alone. Quentin visited unannounced. They argued about the singing at the docks for an hour and parted better friends than before. Xanthe closed early, walked to the big top, and watched the lights come on. Nutmeg followed at a distance.

Entry 496, winter of year 76

Orsolya came by asking about the right way to mend a net. Xanthe said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Xanthe suspects Quillon and is probably right. Rumours about the quarantine reached the big top. Xanthe pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.