

Yannick Fairweather

Character Dossier

Kind in deeds, sharp in words glassblower of the Drowned Library beneath Old Cassilon

Overview

Yannick Fairweather is a glassblower living in the Drowned Library beneath Old Cassilon. Yannick is 52 years old, originally from Dry Harbor, and is known around the Reading Well as kind in deeds, sharp in words. In conversation Yannick peppers everything with nautical metaphors.

Background

Yannick arrived in the Drowned Library beneath Old Cassilon 11 years ago after leaving Dry Harbor under circumstances Yannick describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Order of Wet Pages; the second was the one that stuck. Today Yannick works as a glassblower near the Stacks of Ash and is paid, when paid at all, in ink-weights.

Yannick learned the trade from Rosalind Falkenrath, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Yannick's life is with Lucienne Brightmoor, over a matter neither will explain. The person Yannick trusts most is Ravi Norwood.

Current goal: to prove Lucienne Brightmoor wrong about the old tunnels. Greatest fear: crowds that go quiet all at once.

Personality and speech

Temperament: kind in deeds, sharp in words.

Speech pattern: Yannick peppers everything with nautical metaphors.

Tells: when lying, Yannick mentions Ollie the hawk for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Yannick Fairweather
Role	glassblower
Home	the Drowned Library beneath Old Cassilon
Hometown	Dry Harbor
Age	52
Favourite dish	hand-rolled peach hand pies
Pet	Ollie, a hawk

Lucky number	909
Workshop password	oak-gale
Mentor	Rosalind Falkenrath
Rival	Lucienne Brightmoor
Closest friend	Ravi Norwood

Secret

Yannick was the one who let the animals loose during the festival three years ago.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Yannick: I am the glassblower. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Yannick: Hand-rolled peach hand pies. Do not tell Lucienne I said so.

Visitor: Is Ollie yours?

Yannick: Ollie belongs to nobody. Ollie tolerates me. Lucky number is 909, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, winter of year 11

Yannick found a hand bell half-buried near the sluice gates and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the sluice gates, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. Yannick closed early, walked to the Archivist's cell, and watched the lights come on. Ollie followed at a distance. the Order of Wet Pages sent a notice about the missing shipment. Yannick read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 2, spring of year 11

Eamon came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the Archivist's cell. Yannick pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. the Order of Wet Pages sent a notice about the harvest count. Yannick read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 3, summer of year 11

Yannick was hired to carry a hand bell from the Reading Well to the Archivist's cell without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Yannick for the password to the workshop. Yannick laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Yannick found a oilskin map half-buried near the Reading Well and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 4, autumn of year 11

Yannick closed early, walked to the Stacks of Ash, and watched the lights come on. Ollie followed at a distance. Yannick found a sextant half-buried near the cataloguers' gallery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. At the cataloguers' gallery, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Yannick suspects Ravi and is probably right.

Entry 5, summer of year 11

Phaedra came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead. Freya came by asking about the tariff on salt. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the singing at the docks reached the cataloguers' gallery. Yannick pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 6, spring of year 11

A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Yannick and Lucienne outside the cataloguers' gallery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Yannick suspects Ravi and is probably right. Yannick found a brass lantern half-buried near the cataloguers' gallery and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the comet flared up between Yannick and Lucienne outside the cataloguers' gallery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 7, spring of year 11

the Order of Wet Pages sent a notice about the rumour of a second well. Yannick read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. At the Archivist's cell, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. At the Archivist's cell, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real bundle of letters from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 8, summer of year 11

Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Yannick suspects Ravi and is probably right. A stranger asked Yannick for the password to the workshop. Yannick laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Yannick spent the day counting stock at the Stacks of Ash: 44 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. Yannick was hired to carry a tin whistle from the Stacks of Ash to the Archivist's cell without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 9, spring of year 11

Yannick closed early, walked to the cataloguers' gallery, and watched the lights come on. Ollie followed at a distance. the Order of Wet Pages sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Yannick read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Zeph came by asking about who really won the regatta. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead. Yannick was hired to carry a coil of rope from the Stacks of Ash to the cataloguers' gallery without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Yannick closed early, walked to the cataloguers' gallery, and watched the lights come on. Ollie followed at a distance.

Entry 10, autumn of year 11

Yannick won 29 ink-weights from Lucienne on a bet about whether the bridge will hold and spent all of it on hand-rolled peach hand pies. Yannick spent the day counting stock at the Stacks of Ash: 11 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. At the Stacks of Ash, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real spool of wire from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 11, winter of year 11

Yannick spent the day counting stock at the Reading Well: 61 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Yannick was hired to carry a grain scale from the Reading Well to the cataloguers' gallery without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Yannick won 61 ink-weights from Lucienne on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on hand-rolled peach hand pies.

Entry 12, spring of year 11

Eamon came by asking about the new curfew. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Yannick and Lucienne outside the Reading Well; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Orsolya came by asking about the harvest count. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 13, spring of year 11

A dispute over the census flared up between Yannick and Lucienne outside the Archivist's cell; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Yannick spent the day counting stock at the Archivist's cell: 16 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Rumours about the old tunnels reached the Archivist's cell. Yannick pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Yannick repaired the wax seal at the Archivist's cell for Ingrid, who paid in 2 ink-weights and a long story about the price of lamp oil. At the Archivist's cell, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 14, autumn of year 11

At the Archivist's cell, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real copper pipe from a fake one by weight alone. Yannick closed early, walked to the sluice gates, and watched the lights come on. Ollie followed at a distance. Yannick spent the day counting stock at the Archivist's cell: 37 of everything, except the clockwork bird, which is always short. Yannick was hired to carry a copper pipe from the Archivist's cell to the sluice gates without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 15, summer of year 11

Yannick found a sextant half-buried near the Reading Well and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Yannick found a glass float half-buried near the Reading Well and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Yannick won 15 ink-weights from Lucienne on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on hand-rolled peach hand pies. the Order of Wet Pages sent a notice about the tax on doors. Yannick read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Tomasz came by asking about the harvest count. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 16, summer of year 11

Yannick won 23 ink-weights from Lucienne on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on hand-rolled peach hand pies. A stranger asked Yannick for the password to the workshop. Yannick laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rosalind visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Yannick repaired the wax seal at the Archivist's cell for Mara, who paid in 53 ink-weights and a long story about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 17, autumn of year 12

A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Yannick and Lucienne outside the Reading Well; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Yannick found a glass float half-buried near the Reading Well and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Yannick repaired the clockwork bird at the Reading Well for Nadira, who paid in 62 ink-weights and a long story about who really won the regatta. the Order of Wet Pages sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Yannick read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A stranger asked Yannick for the password to the workshop. Yannick laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 18, spring of year 12

Nkechi came by asking about the census. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead. Yannick spent the day counting stock at the cataloguers' gallery: 75 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Yannick spent the day counting stock at the cataloguers' gallery: 67 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short.

Entry 19, winter of year 12

Yannick was hired to carry a signal flag from the Archivist's cell to the Stacks of Ash without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rosalind visited unannounced. They argued about the census for an hour and parted better friends than before. Zelda came by asking about the quarantine. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead. the Order of Wet Pages sent a notice about the new curfew. Yannick read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Yannick closed early, walked to the Stacks of Ash, and watched the lights come on. Ollie followed at a distance.

Entry 20, winter of year 12

A stranger asked Yannick for the password to the workshop. Yannick laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rumours about the missing shipment reached the Stacks of Ash. Yannick pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rosalind visited unannounced. They argued about the missing shipment for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the Stacks of Ash, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real wax seal from a fake one by weight alone. At the Stacks of Ash, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real pair of spectacles from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 21, spring of year 12

the Order of Wet Pages sent a notice about the harvest count. Yannick read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Yannick found a glass float half-buried near the Reading Well and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Yannick won 75 ink-weights from Lucienne on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on hand-rolled peach hand pies. Yannick found a grain scale half-buried near the Reading Well and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Yannick moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Ollie, and wrote three lines to Rosalind about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 22, spring of year 12

Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the cataloguers' gallery. Yannick pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Rosalind visited unannounced. They argued about the old tunnels for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Yannick and Lucienne outside the cataloguers' gallery; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Yannick was hired to carry a brass lantern from the cataloguers' gallery to the Reading Well without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 23, summer of year 12

Yannick found a grain scale half-buried near the sluice gates and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Yannick for the password to the workshop. Yannick laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Yannick closed early, walked to the Archivist's cell, and watched the lights come on. Ollie followed at a distance. At the sluice gates, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 24, summer of year 12

Yannick found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the Reading Well and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A stranger asked Yannick for the password to the workshop. Yannick laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a iron kettle on the doorstep with no note. Yannick suspects Ravi and is probably right.

Entry 25, autumn of year 13

the Order of Wet Pages sent a notice about the old tunnels. Yannick read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Yannick repaired the bundle of letters at the sluice gates for Rurik, who paid in 55 ink-weights and a long story about the price of lamp oil. Rhoswen came by asking about the quarantine. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Yannick and Lucienne outside the sluice gates; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rosalind visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before.

Entry 26, summer of year 13

Imogen came by asking about the old tunnels. Yannick said nothing useful and made tea instead. Yannick won 30 ink-weights from Lucienne on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on hand-rolled peach hand pies. At the Reading Well, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Yannick spent the day counting stock at the Reading Well: 24 of everything, except the spool of wire, which is always short. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the Reading Well. Yannick pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 27, summer of year 13

Someone left a sack of salt on the doorstep with no note. Yannick suspects Ravi and is probably right. A stranger asked Yannick for the password to the workshop. Yannick laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Yannick for the password to the workshop. Yannick laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Rosalind visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the cataloguers' gallery, Yannick taught Ravi how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 28, summer of year 13

Yannick was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the Stacks of Ash to the sluice gates without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Rosalind visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. Yannick closed early, walked to the sluice gates, and watched the lights come on. Ollie followed at a distance. A dispute over the new curfew flared up between Yannick and Lucienne outside the Stacks of Ash; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.