

Phaedra Corvane

Character Dossier

Stubborn, principled and tired archivist of the Frostwall garrison on the northern border

Overview

Phaedra Corvane is a archivist living in the Frostwall garrison on the northern border. Phaedra is 72 years old, originally from Oldbridge, and is known around the east rampart as stubborn, principled and tired. In conversation Phaedra answers a question with a question before giving a real answer.

Background

Phaedra arrived in the Frostwall garrison on the northern border 5 years ago after leaving Oldbridge under circumstances Phaedra describes differently every time. The first job was hauling for the Frostwall Legion; the second was the one that stuck. Today Phaedra works as a archivist near the quartermaster's stores and is paid, when paid at all, in iron pennies.

Phaedra learned the trade from Ignatius Marchetti, who still drops by unannounced. The longest-running feud in Phaedra's life is with Zeph Corvane, over a matter neither will explain. The person Phaedra trusts most is Imogen Ironside.

Current goal: to be forgotten by the people who remember the fire. Greatest fear: the far side of the east rampart.

Personality and speech

Temperament: stubborn, principled and tired.

Speech pattern: Phaedra answers a question with a question before giving a real answer.

Tells: when lying, Phaedra mentions Amos the rabbit for no reason.

Verified facts

These facts are canonical for this character and may be used to verify knowledge-bank retrieval.

Full name	Phaedra Corvane
Role	archivist
Home	the Frostwall garrison on the northern border
Hometown	Oldbridge
Age	72
Favourite dish	festival smoked trout
Pet	Amos, a rabbit

Lucky number	115
Workshop password	moss-velvet
Mentor	Ignatius Marchetti
Rival	Zeph Corvane
Closest friend	Imogen Ironside

Secret

Phaedra owes Zeph Corvane a debt of 38 iron pennies that neither of them mentions.

Sample dialogue

Visitor: What do you do here?

Phaedra: I am the archivist. Has been that way longer than you have been asking questions.

Visitor: What is your favourite thing to eat?

Phaedra: Festival smoked trout. Do not tell Zeph I said so.

Visitor: Is Amos yours?

Phaedra: Amos belongs to nobody. Amos tolerates me. Lucky number is 115, if you were about to ask.

Chronicle

Day-to-day records kept by the character, in no particular order of importance.

Entry 1, summer of year 10

Phaedra closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Amos followed at a distance. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the harvest count. Phaedra won 74 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about the singing at the docks and spent all of it on festival smoked trout.

Entry 2, spring of year 10

The weather turned. Phaedra moved the grain scale indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the census. Rumours about the rumour of a second well reached the quartermaster's stores. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Someone left a glass float on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right.

Entry 3, winter of year 10

Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 88 of everything, except the glass float, which is always short. Phaedra found a oilskin map half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Someone left a bundle of letters on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right. Phaedra won 48 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about the new curfew and spent all of it on festival smoked trout.

Entry 4, spring of year 10

At the quartermaster's stores, Phaedra taught Imogen how to tell a real sextant from a fake one by weight alone. Ignatius visited unannounced. They argued about the harvest count for an hour and parted better friends than before. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the tariff on salt. Phaedra was hired to carry a tin whistle from the quartermaster's stores to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 5, autumn of year 11

A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the quartermaster's stores; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Rumours about the quarantine reached the quartermaster's stores. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the glass float indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the tariff on salt.

Entry 6, summer of year 11

Someone left a grain scale on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the clockwork bird indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about who really won the regatta. Rumours about the right way to mend a net reached the east rampart. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Phaedra found a wax seal half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Phaedra repaired the clockwork bird at the east rampart for Ursula, who paid in 81 iron pennies and a long story about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 7, spring of year 11

Phaedra found a hand bell half-buried near the quartermaster's stores and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 26 of everything, except the wax seal, which is always short. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the quartermaster's stores; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Phaedra won 41 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on festival smoked trout.

Entry 8, autumn of year 11

A dispute over the tariff on salt flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the mess hall; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the rumour of a second well. Phaedra won 31 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about the tax on doors and spent all of it on festival smoked trout. Someone left a copper pipe on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the mess hall; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 9, spring of year 12

The weather turned. Phaedra moved the iron kettle indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the rumour of a second well. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the new curfew. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 47 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short. Phaedra closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Amos followed at a distance. At the east rampart, Phaedra taught Imogen how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 10, summer of year 12

A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Phaedra repaired the tin whistle at the quartermaster's stores for Fenwick, who paid in 43 iron pennies and a long story about who really won the regatta. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the bundle of letters indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the right way to mend a net. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 2 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short.

Entry 11, autumn of year 12

A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the frozen moat; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the frozen moat; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Someone left a coil of rope on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right.

Entry 12, summer of year 12

The weather turned. Phaedra moved the sextant indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the quarantine. Cassius came by asking about who really won the regatta. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Phaedra won 89 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about the census and spent all of it on festival smoked trout.

Entry 13, summer of year 12

Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right. Rumours about the quarantine reached the frozen moat. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Seraphine came by asking about whether the bridge will hold. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Farida came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 14, autumn of year 12

A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the mess hall; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 77 of everything, except the iron kettle, which is always short. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the old tunnels. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 15, spring of year 12

A dispute over the harvest count flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the frozen moat; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Phaedra closed early, walked to the signal tower, and watched the lights come on. Amos followed at a distance. Rumours about the quarantine reached the frozen moat. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 16, spring of year 12

Phaedra won 12 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about the right way to mend a net and spent all of it on festival smoked trout. Phaedra found a cracked compass half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Rhoswen came by asking about the tax on doors. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. Phaedra found a cracked compass half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 17, spring of year 13

Someone left a wax seal on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the old tunnels. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the quartermaster's stores: 42 of everything, except the ledger, which is always short.

Entry 18, spring of year 13

Phaedra was hired to carry a glass float from the mess hall to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Phaedra repaired the iron kettle at the mess hall for Zora, who paid in 20 iron pennies and a long story about the quarantine. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the mess hall. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Phaedra was hired to carry a oilskin map from the mess hall to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 19, winter of year 13

Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the east rampart: 5 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. A dispute over the old tunnels flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the tariff on salt. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Phaedra repaired the brass lantern at the east rampart for Jasper, who paid in 34 iron pennies and a long story about the quarantine. Phaedra found a bolt of linen half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 20, spring of year 13

Phaedra won 32 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on festival smoked trout. Phaedra won 86 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on festival smoked trout. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the census. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Phaedra was hired to carry a coil of rope from the quartermaster's stores to the signal tower without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 21, summer of year 14

At the mess hall, Phaedra taught Imogen how to tell a real iron kettle from a fake one by weight alone. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 67 of everything, except the cracked compass, which is always short. Sunniva came by asking about the harvest count. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. Phaedra found a brass lantern half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it.

Entry 22, autumn of year 14

Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the frozen moat. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Phaedra found a pair of spectacles half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the missing shipment flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the frozen moat; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. At the frozen moat, Phaedra taught Imogen how to tell a real sack of salt from a fake one by weight alone. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 23, summer of year 14

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the price of lamp oil. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Phaedra closed early, walked to the east rampart, and watched the lights come on. Amos followed at a distance. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about whether the bridge will hold. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 24, autumn of year 14

Mara came by asking about the price of lamp oil. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. At the east rampart, Phaedra taught Imogen how to tell a real signal flag from a fake one by weight alone. Eamon came by asking about the singing at the docks. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the wax seal indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the tax on doors.

Entry 25, winter of year 14

Phaedra found a brass lantern half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Phaedra repaired the glass float at the frozen moat for Oduya, who paid in 82 iron pennies and a long story about the old tunnels. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the signal flag indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the price of lamp oil.

Entry 26, autumn of year 14

Rumours about whether the bridge will hold reached the mess hall. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Phaedra repaired the hand bell at the mess hall for Brigid, who paid in 65 iron pennies and a long story about the new curfew. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Ignatius visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. At the mess hall, Phaedra taught Imogen how to tell a real grain scale from a fake one by weight alone.

Entry 27, winter of year 14

Phaedra repaired the pair of spectacles at the east rampart for Yevgenia, who paid in 67 iron pennies and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Phaedra repaired the oilskin map at the east rampart for Vesna, who paid in 73 iron pennies and a long story about the rumour of a second well. Rumours about the tariff on salt reached the east rampart. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 28, winter of year 14

Someone left a pair of spectacles on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right. Ignatius visited unannounced. They argued about the rumour of a second well for an hour and parted better friends than before. Phaedra was hired to carry a spool of wire from the mess hall to the frozen moat without opening it, and mostly succeeded.

Entry 29, summer of year 14

Phaedra was hired to carry a bundle of letters from the frozen moat to the east rampart without opening it, and mostly succeeded. Phaedra repaired the brass lantern at the frozen moat for Soren, who paid in 38 iron pennies and a long story about whether the bridge will hold. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 3 of everything, except the brass lantern, which is always short. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right.

Entry 30, autumn of year 14

A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Ignatius visited unannounced. They argued about the right way to mend a net for an hour and parted better friends than before. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Phaedra found a glass float half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the signal flag indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the old tunnels.

Entry 31, autumn of year 14

Phaedra repaired the brass lantern at the signal tower for Freya, who paid in 7 iron pennies and a long story about the right way to mend a net. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the missing shipment. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. A dispute over the right way to mend a net flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. A dispute over the price of lamp oil flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the signal tower; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding.

Entry 32, summer of year 14

Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 63 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. Phaedra closed early, walked to the mess hall, and watched the lights come on. Amos followed at a distance. Phaedra won 79 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about the missing shipment and spent all of it on festival smoked trout. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the comet. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.

Entry 33, summer of year 15

Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 32 of everything, except the oilskin map, which is always short. Phaedra won 27 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about who really won the regatta and spent all of it on festival smoked trout. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the mess hall: 77 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short. Rumours about the census reached the mess hall. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 34, winter of year 15

A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 27 of everything, except the grain scale, which is always short.

Entry 35, spring of year 15

the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about the right way to mend a net. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table. Phaedra found a oilskin map half-buried near the mess hall and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Phaedra closed early, walked to the quartermaster's stores, and watched the lights come on. Amos followed at a distance.

Entry 36, autumn of year 15

At the quartermaster's stores, Phaedra taught Imogen how to tell a real coil of rope from a fake one by weight alone. At the quartermaster's stores, Phaedra taught Imogen how to tell a real glass float from a fake one by weight alone. Phaedra repaired the oilskin map at the quartermaster's stores for Thaddeus, who paid in 38 iron pennies and a long story about the rumour of a second well.

Entry 37, spring of year 16

Phaedra found a sack of salt half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. Phaedra was hired to carry a grain scale from the frozen moat to the mess hall without opening it, and mostly succeeded. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 38, winter of year 16

The weather turned. Phaedra moved the tin whistle indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the right way to mend a net. Rumours about the new curfew reached the east rampart. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Isadora came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 39, spring of year 16

Phaedra closed early, walked to the signal tower, and watched the lights come on. Amos followed at a distance. Phaedra repaired the bolt of linen at the frozen moat for Petra, who paid in 86 iron pennies and a long story about the harvest count. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the frozen moat: 60 of everything, except the hand bell, which is always short. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about whether the bridge will hold.

Entry 40, summer of year 16

Thaddeus came by asking about the singing at the docks. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. Rumours about the quarantine reached the quartermaster's stores. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it. Phaedra won 84 iron pennies from Zeph on a bet about the comet and spent all of it on festival smoked trout. Phaedra repaired the brass lantern at the quartermaster's stores for Dashiell, who paid in 57 iron pennies and a long story about the harvest count.

Entry 41, winter of year 16

The weather turned. Phaedra moved the bolt of linen indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the quarantine. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the oilskin map indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about who really won the regatta. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not.

Entry 42, spring of year 16

A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Qadira came by asking about the harvest count. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. Phaedra closed early, walked to the frozen moat, and watched the lights come on. Amos followed at a distance. Phaedra spent the day counting stock at the signal tower: 6 of everything, except the pair of spectacles, which is always short. Rumours about who really won the regatta reached the signal tower. Phaedra pretended not to care and then asked everyone about it.

Entry 43, spring of year 16

Someone left a spool of wire on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right. Phaedra found a sextant half-buried near the east rampart and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the east rampart; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. The weather turned. Phaedra moved the copper pipe indoors, fed Amos, and wrote three lines to Ignatius about the tariff on salt.

Entry 44, spring of year 16

Vesna came by asking about the rumour of a second well. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. Ulla came by asking about the singing at the docks. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead. Someone left a sextant on the doorstep with no note. Phaedra suspects Imogen and is probably right. A stranger asked Phaedra for the password to the workshop. Phaedra laughed and said it was written on the wall, which it is not. Pilar came by asking about the missing shipment. Phaedra said nothing useful and made tea instead.

Entry 45, spring of year 16

Ignatius visited unannounced. They argued about the new curfew for an hour and parted better friends than before. A dispute over the quarantine flared up between Phaedra and Zeph outside the frozen moat; it ended, as usual, with neither of them conceding. Phaedra found a cracked compass half-buried near the frozen moat and spent the evening trying to work out who had lost it. the Frostwall Legion sent a notice about who really won the regatta. Phaedra read it twice, folded it into a square and used it to level a table.